TURK DENIES SULTAN IS MOSLEM HEAD

HAS LOST ALL PRESTIGE

And Is Not Recognized as Head of Mohammedan Religion by Mussulmans Anywhere.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The Greek Legation made public today a communication addressed to President Clemenceau of the Peace Conference in Paris by former Deputy Bambakas of the Turkish Parliament in which he maintains that to retain the Sultan in Constantinople would be contrary to the interests of the Musselmans. In it he declares that the Sultan has lost all his religious prestige. Mecca, Medina, Bagdad, Yemen, Assir, and Syria, he asserts, have neverr recognized the domination of the Ottoman Caliph.

"To pretend that Constantinople has a sacred value from the Moslem point of view," says the statement in part, "and that, consequently, if you remove from Constantinople the Padishah of the Osmanlis you risk making an attack upon the faith of the followers of Mahomet is to run counter to the traditions of even faithful Mussulmans. The cities that were the centres of the Mohammedan religion are well known; they were considered holy or sacred, their names were always followed by the qualifying words 'Sherif, Moukerem, Munever,' which signify holy, sacred, enlightened. These are Damascus, which bears the name of Sham-i-Sherif, Mecca Dearing, the name of M'Ekei-mou-Kereme, and Medina, Modinel-Mounevere. Jerusalem, too, was considered by the Mussulmans as a sacred Mohammedan country and bears the name of Koudouss-i-Sherif, for Jesus Christ likewise was considered by the Mussulmans as their prophet.

"Constantinople, like all other cities of Roulilia (Turkey in Europe) and of Anatolia, (Turkey in Asia,) was considered a city of the 'Ghiaours,' a country of indifels and conquest, and has kept its name unchanged, without ever being regarded as a Mussulmanic religious centre. It is sometimes called Dersaadet, which means 'country of happiness and pleasures.'

"Keeping the Sultan in Constantinople is contrary to the interests of the Mussulmans. The Sultan, as a consequence of the frightful politics of his advisers, Old and Young Turks, has lost recently all his religious prestige. Mecca, Medina, Bagdad, Yemen, Assir, and Syria have never recognized the domination of the Ottoman Caliph.

"In matters relating to the Sultan's religious power, his representative was always the 'Schei Kulislam,' (Sheik-ul-Islam) just as regarding political power, his delegate has been the Grand Vizier. According to Moslem law, any trial, sentence, arrest, or decisions rendered by the Moslem religious heads of the Ottoman Empire had to be submitted to the 'Scheikelislama' to be invested with the Exequatur. No execution could take place without the previous approbation (sanction) of the Sultan. That is to say, of his religious representative, the 'Schelkalislam' (Sheik-ul-Islam.) However, the Arab religious chiefs have never submitted to this indispensable rule devolving from the rights of the Caliph. It is because they did not recognize the religious supremacy of the Sultan.

"Abdul-Hamid, to overcome this annoying situation, which was a severe shock to his egoism, tried to bind to himself certain notable Arabs by gifts and large subsidies; but once these notables had returned to their country they forgot the promises made to the Sultan. All the Arab provinces and especially those which really constitute the Mohammedan centres, namely Mecca and Medina, have preserved intact their independence and their religious dominion.

Would Not Admit Sultan.

"Do you wish the proof of this truth? You have only to try to install the Sultan in Mecca or Medina. The result would be that they would expressly refuse the Sultan's admittance, for he is not considered the head of the Mussulmans but simply the usurper of the Caliphate."

"As Deputy to the Ottoman Chamber I have had friendly relations with Abdullah Sherif Effendi, Deputy from Mecca, (one of the descendants of the prophet Mahomet,) and Sheik Hashim Effendi, Deputy from Medina, since I was almost the only Christian representative that had made a special study of the Moslem law, the 'sheriat.' These two representatives of the Moslem provinces par excellence declared to me that the Sultan was none other than a usurper of the Caliphate and that the rightful rulers were in Mecca. Moreover, it is well known that the representatives of the above mentioned holy countries were always, by injunction, hostile to the Turkish Government.

"And when Mecca and Medina, which are the seats of Mohammedan religion, refuse to allow the Sultan any religious supremacy. Whatever, can one believe that the opinions expressed by certain Moslems outside the ancient Ottoman Empire may have some foundation and are exempt from the Pan Islamic propaganda inaugurated by Abdul Hamid and followed in unbridled fashion under the instigation of William II. by the Young Turks?

"From the point of view of religion, for the Indians it was always Bagdad; it is there they repair in pilgrimages every year by thousands. Have you ever seen Indians, Algerians, Tunisians, and other Musulmans of the allied countries go to Constantinople to pay homage to the Padishah as do the Catholics of the entire world to the Pope?

"But is it to the interest of the allied powers who govern Moslem populations to keep the Sultan in Constantinople? Would it not be recognizing, outside the rights of their own States, an extrinsic power emanating from the Sultan, a power that even those interested have never attempted to acknowledge? And if one does not remove the Sultan from Constantinople now, when the most propitious occasion presents itself for the establishment of world peace, is it well to lose this occasion and allow a permanent danger to remain, a danger for the liberal powers as well as for the Christian populations of the Levant?

"Would it not be more in conformity with the interests of the entire world to end once for all this question of the Orient which was, perhaps, if not the sole cause at least the fundamental cause of the gigantic war?

Contrary to Turkish Interests.

"Keeping the Sultan in Turkey would be also contrary to Turkish interests; the Ottoman Government will continue to believe that they can still hope for new enterprises of conquest; it would be to make the Turks unhappy without their ever being able to be useful either to themselves or to others. But the removal of the Sultan from Constantinople and the formation of a truly Turkish State with the Vilayets of Konia, Angora, Kastamouni, and a large part of the Vilayet of Brousa, regions which have really compact Turkish populations, would not only constitute a marvelous application of the principle of nationalities but would also contribute toward rendering the Turks an element ready to put to use the vast territory of the above-mentioned vilayets.

"For we must take into consideration that the three above-mentioned Vilayets (without considering the Vilayet of Kastamouni), have an area of 209,164 square kilometers and a population of 4,122,000.

"There is, besides, another important reason for the removal of the Sultan. If he is allowed to remain in Constantinople there is also allowed to remain various influences, external and internal, which will naturally clash as in the past. The Ecumenical Patriarchate and all the Christian centres will naturally preserve each its national and political character in order to face the abovementioned influences which will be produced necessarily by the presence of the Sultan in Constantinople. There would be, on one side, a continual struggle between 'Turkism' and Christianity as in the past, and on the other a perpetuation of the antagonism between the various religions of the Orient. All the propaganda, under their various denominations, would have, once again, their need intensified, a fact which would certainly not contribute to the consolidation of peace in the Levant."

ATTACK GAMBLING SCANDAL.

Committee of 100 Opens Political Fight in Mount Vernon.

The political fight in Mount Vernon promises to be interesting this year. The parties seem to be watching each other closely before they decide on candidates.

A committee of 100 recently unanimously decided to request District Attorney Lee Parsons Davis to dispose of the old gambling scandal. It also will demand a Grand Jury investigation to ascertain where the money which it was alleged former Democratic City Clerk Peter Collins misappropriated went, and to recommend that no third party be advocated at the coming election. The decision of County Judge Young in suspending sentence on Collins was characterized by the committee as "inconsistent."

Edwin W. Fiske, who has been Mayor of Mount Vernon eight terms, continues to decline another nomination, but his friends have not given up hope that he will run again, as there seems to be a strong Fiske sentiment. Dr. Edward P. Brush, the present Mayor, has declared he is not a candidate for renomination unless unsuitable candidates are selected for the primaries. In that case, he says he will again run.

John G. Wintgen, once a Republican candidate for Mayor; Adrian Buck, President of the Common Council, and Clement M. Biddle have declined the honor of Mayoralty nominations offered by Republicans. At a recent meeting of the Republican County Committee, at which there was a large percentage of women, the names of William S. Coffey, former Assemblyman, and Elmer Kincaid, a business man, were presented, but no vote was taken.

Italian Musical League Meets.

The inaugural meeting of the Italian Musical League, of which Enrico Caruso is the head, took place yesterday afternoon at Aeolian Hall, and was attended by many prominent artists. The League has for its purpose the binding and allying of the Italian musicians of this country, and its members already number in the hundreds.

A program of dances and music was given. Among those who appeared were Mlle. Dazie, and Giuseppe Bonfiglio, ballet master of the Metropolitan, who gave three numbers; Edna Kellogg, Mana Zucca, Pietro Yon, and Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana.

Damrosch Players to Visit Holland.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 22.—According to the Vaderland, Walter Damrosch is to bring the New York Symphony Orchestra to the Dutch resort, Scheveningen, at the time of its tour of Europe next year. The American organization has been announced to play in Paris next May, and in London in June.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Dark Rosaleen" will interrupt its run at the Belasco Theatre next Saturday night and will reopen at the same playhouse on August 4. "Daddies," at the Lyceum, will also end its engagement this week.

"Who Did It?" and "Take It From Me" concluded their respective engagements last Saturday night.

Dorothy Dickson and Carl Hyson, now appearing in "The Royal Vagabond," will also dance in the Century Midnight Whirl, beginning a week from tonight.

Diero, well known as a concertina player, has been engaged for "Just a Minute," a revue which John Cort will produce early next season.

A new Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic will be produced in three weeks.

"Bink's Baby," a farce, by Sydney Stone, will be produced in July by Arthur Klein.

Virginia Fox Brooks will collaborate with Maurice Donnay, author of "Lysistrata," on an English adaptation of that piece. She will sail for France next Saturday on the Aquitania.

THE SCREEN

The person who does not like the Rialto program this week, or some substantial part of it, is hard to please with moving pictures.

Headlined on the bill is "Hay Foot, Straw Foot," with Charles Ray in his old, and also his own, part of the homely hero—but with variations, principally in the direction of more seriousness and less comic rusticity. The seriousness, however, does not overshadow the part, and there is much in it for laughter and smiles. Ray simply departs from his usual performance—and in doing so demonstrates the range of his ability. As Ulysses S. Grant Briggs he is competent in everything he attempts.

The story of the photoplay is rather hackneyed melodrama, but directed by Jerome Storm, supervised by Thomas H. Ince, with Ray, Doris Lee, William Conklin, Spottiswoodie Aitken, and J. P. Lockney in the cast, it is irresistibly entertaining. Each of the players makes his or her character live, even if within the mechanical limitations of the plot.

Ulysses S. Grant Briggs is a rookie. His fixed purpose is to do everything he thinks General Grant would have done and to leave undone everything his hero would not have done. But when he meets Betty Martin, a supposed "play-actress," he has doubts. He loves her, but fears that the General would not approve of her. She, piqued, is lured away by an outrageous villain, from whom Ulysses rescues her. To do so, however, he has to violate military regulations by going into a forbidden roadhouse, and then, to save her name, he will not explain his presence in the place. She accepts his sacrifice until she has a terrible vision in which she sees him facing a firing squad, and then she runs and tells the Colonel all about it. Ulysses is released with honor—and Betty.

"Sundown," a Bruce scenic of extraordinary beauty, shown to the accompaniment of off-stage singing by Martin Brefel and Mme. Pascova, deservedly won unusual applause from yesterday afternoon's spectators.

"Easy Street," a revived Chaplin comedy of the Lone Star Series, starts laughter that does not stop until the end of its final scene. It is one of Chaplin's best.

The Rialto Magazine is entertaining and the music is good.

Robert Warwick, who has been absent from the screen in military service, returns in "Secret Service" at the Rivoli this week. He is welcome. Many will be glad to see him again—and again.

William Gillette's famous play has been made into a pretentious motion picture, and many of the thrills of the original have been brought to the screen, though it is doubtful if those who saw the stage production will find the photoplay its equal. In the first place Mr. Gillette, with his manner and his voice, is missing; and in the second place much of the essential action is left to subtitles, which may be explanatory but are not exciting.

But the screen version of "Secret Service" has many effective scenes, for which Hugh Ford, the director, presumably is responsible, and the acting of Warwick, Wanda Hawley, Theodore Roberts, Guy Oliver—especially Guy Oliver as an old negro—and the others in the cast is excellent. Also the story holds the interest, however it is told.

An attractive number of the Rivoli program is "The White Peacock," described as a "a tone poem," by Charles T. Griffes, staged by Adolf Bolm in a setting by John Wenger. Margaret Leeraas is the peacock—gracefully.

The pictorial is, as usual, interesting.

The Strand pictorial program is made up, chiefly, of "Piking After Pisarro," an entertaining Outing-Chestar scenic made in Peru; the interesting Topical Review; "Other Men's Wives," a photoplay that is classified in the screen-shops as "society drama," with Dorothy Dalton in the leading rôle, and "Athletes in Action," an analysis-of-motion picture in colors.

"The Spark Divine," described as a story "of love and adventure" with "unconventional treatment," presenting Alice Joyce in the leading rôle, opened at the Broadway yesterday afternoon. "Sunnyside," with Charlie Chaplin, will be added to the program this afternoon.

Lay Synagogue Cornerstone.

The cornerstone of a new synagogue for the Sons of Israel, at Twenty-first and Benson Avenues, Brooklyn, was laid yesterday afternoon in the presence of a throng of worshippers and their friends. It is to cost, exclusive of fittings, $93,000, and about $30,000 has been raised. Rabbi Samuel Sacks is in charge of the congregation. An auction of twelve trowels used in laying the stone brought $1,000 each for the building fund.

ALICE BRADY RE-MARRIED.

Catholic Ceremony for Actress and Actor Who Wed on May 20.

Alice Brady, the actress both in the films and on the stage, who was married to James L. Crane, actor, on May 20, went through the ceremony again on Saturday night, this time, however, being married by a Roman Catholic priest. William A. Brady, the father of Alice, and theatrical manager, who arrived from London last Sunday, decided that his daughter be married in accordance with the Catholic rites, as the ceremony last month was performed by Frank Crane, the writer, and father of the bridegroom.

At the manager's request, therefore, Mgr. Edwin M. Sweeney, pastor of the Church of the Ascension, at Broadway and 107th Street, married them in his rectory. Mr. Brady was the only member of either the Brady or Crane family, outside the couple, who was present.

Subordinates Give Bruckner a Ring.

On the occasion of his forty-eighth birthday, which occurred Saturday, Henry Bruckner, President of the Borough of the Bronx, was presented with a handsome ring, set with diamonds and rubies, the gift of the attaches of the Borough President's office and heads of departments in the other municipal departments of the borough.

Laborers and others who receive low pay in the various departments were not asked to contribute for the gift, but were permitted to view its presentation.

Resinol

the tested skin treatment

"Resinol is what you want for your skin-trouble—Resinol to stop the itching and burning—Resinol to help heal the eruption. This gentle ointment has been so effective for years in treating skin troubles that it has become a standard skin treatment. It contains nothing that could irritate the tenderest skin."

Your druggist will also tell you that Resinol Ointment is excellent for relieving the smart, itch, and burn of mosquito-bites, and insect-stings. It soothes and cools skins burned by wind or sun. All dealers sell Resinol Ointment.

Victrola Records

voice the mighty power of the world's greatest artists

To speak the language of music in the sweetest tones that spring from human lips, or are charmed from an instrument by the skill of a master's hands—that is the province of Victrola Records.

They are true tone-portraits inscribed with the priceless art of the most famous singers and instrumentalists this generation has produced. The genius, the power, the beauty of every voice and every instrument—all are inherent in Victrola Records. They present a stupendous musical review displaying the diverse gifts possessed by the greatest artists of all the world. A privilege exclusive with Victrola Records—a distinction conferred upon them in recognition of their absolutely lifelike reproduction.

There are Victor dealers everywhere and they will gladly play any music you wish to hear.

The Illustrated Daily News

New York's New Pictorial Daily Newspaper
Appearing For The First Time Next Thursday, June 26th

Will Pay $10,000.00 For A Photograph Of The Most Beautiful Girl In Greater New York

An Unusual Offer Open to Every Girl Except Professional Beauties

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS in cash to the most beautiful girl in Greater New York! Two thousand five hundred dollars to the second prize beauty! One thousand dollars to the third prize beauty!

The judges will be three of America's most prominent beauty critics—

D. W. Griffith
Celebrated Motion Picture Producer

Harrison Fisher
World-renowned Painter of Beautiful Girls

George M. Cohan
Famous Theatrical Producer

This contest opens today. It is open to every girl residing or working in Greater New York or suburban districts except professional beauties such as stage women or artists' models.

All that is necessary is to write the name, address and occupation on a photograph and send or bring it to the office of the Illustrated Daily News, at 25 City Hall Place or uptown office, 251 Fifth Ave., northeast corner 28th Street. There is no charge of any kind. No entry fee.

This great contest will be conducted by the Illustrated Daily News—New York's new pictorial daily newspaper. It will be conducted so that every girl—unmarried girl or widow—who lives anywhere in Greater New York or suburban districts will have an opportunity to compete.

We want to find the most beautiful girl. She may be a Wall Street stenographer. She may be a department store clerk. She may be a school girl. She may be a private secretary, a home girl, a business girl, a factory girl, a sales girl, a society girl. She may be a blonde, a brunette or titian-haired.

Somewhere in Greater New York this prize beauty will be found. A fortune of $10,000.00 in cash awaits her. We will pay that price for her photograph. We will pay $2,500.00 to the second prize beauty and $1,000.00 to the third prize beauty.

How Your Picture Will Look

*Miss M*_____
Lives on Crescent St., L. I. Employed at Wanamaker's.

You are merely asked to send or bring in the photograph. Any photograph will do. The judges will review them. A large number of nominees will be selected. These girls will then be photographed at our expense by one of New York's most noted photographers. From these standard photographs the prize beauties will be selected.

Any one can enter this contest except stage women and artists' models. If you know of some girl whom you think beautiful, send in her photograph. Mark her name, address and occupation. No names will be published. You need not fear undue publicity.

In case two or more subjects are regarded equally beautiful, awards of the same offered will be paid to each. Photographs submitted by contestants failing to receive prizes will be returned upon request.

We Make This Offer to Introduce the Illustrated Daily News

This extraordinary offer of $13,500.00 in cash awards is made to introduce New York's new pictorial daily newspaper—the Illustrated Daily News. The first issue will be published Thursday, June 26th.

Two of London's most prominent daily newspapers are "picture papers," published in tabloid form. New York has none. New Yorkers will have one beginning Thursday, June 26th. It will be published every morning except Sundays.

It will be printed on high-class paper—in tabloid form. It will be a paper for men, women and children. It will be unique, distinctive. It will especially appeal to busy people who want the news of the world in pictures—at a glance. It will be sold at all newsstands at 2c per copy.

How to Enter Photographs In This Contest

To enter the Illustrated Daily News' $10,000.00 Prize Beauty Contest do this: Select a photograph of any girl—yourself or any one of your friends. Write the name, home address and occupation on the back of it. For example: "Miss Mary Smith, 100 Blank Street, Stenographer in Wall Street Office."

Send or bring the photograph to the Prize Beauty Editor at the Illustrated Daily News office, 25 City Hall Place or 251 Fifth Ave., northeast corner 28th St. Then watch the Illustrated Daily News for the announcement of the Prize Beauties. Photographs of the leading contestants will be published daily in the Illustrated Daily News beginning next Thursday, June 26th. Contest closes at midnight August 30th.

Remember, this contest opens today. It is open to every one except professional beauties. It costs you nothing. It may bring you a fortune. Be one of the first to send in your photograph.

OUR OFFER:

1st Prize Beauty $10,000.00
2nd Prize Beauty $2,500.00
3rd Prize Beauty $1,000.00

We will pay the above stated sums in cash for three photographs, selected by the Judges appointed to decide this contest—D. W. Griffith, Harrison Fisher and George M. Cohan.

Every girl residing or working in Greater New York or suburban districts shall be eligible, except professional beauties, such as stage women and artists' models.

There is no charge whatsoever. No entry fee. Nothing to pay. Payment will be made immediately upon the selection of the Prize Beauties.

OBSTRUCTION REPROVED.

Interest in the Knox resolution is now chiefly reminiscent and vestigial. It was very early made known to its sponsors that the resolution could not pass the Senate, and the country's evident displeasure at their tactics of obstruction so moderated their zeal in its behalf that they abandoned advocacy for apology; now they would be deeply grateful if their escapade could be forgotten. The wreck of the resolution remains as the monument of their hardihood, their rashness, and their folly.

If there be moral uses in adversity, we hope that Senator KNOX and Senator LODGE have well learned their lesson. It must have been made plain to them that in this great crisis of civilization the sober-minded majority of the American people has no liking for exhibitions of mean-spirited partisanship, a partisanship that puts political gain above the welfare of mankind. But without in the least intending it, the obstructionist Senators have done a great service to the cause of peace and international justice by making it plain that the country demands the ratification of the Peace Treaty and of the League covenant, that serious and responsible public opinion accepts the covenant as a promise of peace, and that even in their own party their reckless policy of obstruction is condemned. Ex-President TAFT and ex-Attorney General WICKERSHAM have correctly interpreted the sentiment of the Republicans of the country. The answer of New York Republicanism to the "round robin" and the KNOX resolution has been given in a communication addressed to Senator WADSWORTH and to Senator CALDER, which we here reproduce from our issue of Saturday:

> To Hon. JAMES W. WADSWORTH, Jr., Hon. WILLIAM M. CALDER, United States Senators:
> Gentlemen—The undersigned, regularly enrolled Republicans of the State of New York, respectfully urge that political partisanship should have no place in the consideration on its merits of the Constitution of the proposed League of Nations. The Republican Party, which has done so much to promote the principle of the peaceful settlement of international disputes, cannot justly be placed in an attitude of hostility to the project adopted by the Conference at Paris for the extension of that principle to all the associated nations for the purpose of averting all preventable wars.
>
> The undersigned urge that the treaty containing the peace covenant be promptly ratified by the Senate without attempting to embarrass it by amendment, thus delaying the conclusion of peace and the establishment of a great agency for its future preservation.
>
> May 26, 1919.
>
> G. W. WICKERSHAM, C. D. HILLES,
> H. W. TAFT, C. D. NORTON,
> HERBERT PARSONS, A. C. JAMES,
> C. H. STRONG, T. E. BURTON,
> A. E. MARLING, H. G. WARD,
> E. W. HARRIS, W. H. WADHAMS,
> C. S. WHITMAN, MARY G. HAY,
> P. D. CRAVATH, HOMER FOLKS,
> W. C. BREED, LEWIS H. POUNDS,
> LAUREN CARROLL, W. J. SCHIEFFELIN,
> W. L. RANSOM, W. F. MORGAN,
> SAM A. LEWISOHN, D. P. KINGSLEY,
> WILLIAM CHILVERS, W. D. BALDWIN,
> ADOLPH LEWISOHN, O. S. STRAUS.

These are representative men of the Republican organization. Mr. WICKERSHAM and Mr. STRAUS have been members of the Cabinet of a Republican President. Mr. PARSONS has been a member of Congress and Chairman of the Republican State Committee. Mr. BURTON has represented Ohio in the Senate, Mr. MARLING is President of the Chamber of Commerce. Ex-Governor WHITMAN is among the signers, and Judges, State and Federal, men who have held office in the city or are prominent in local organizations recognized for their service in public affairs, join in this representation to the New York Senators that opposition to the work of the Peace Conference and obstruction of the prompt conclusion of peace and the approval of measures to assure its continuance are viewed with no favor by the party in this State. Mr. ROOT's letter supporting the purposes of the obstructionists in no way controverts the evidence of these twenty-eight Republicans as to the prevailing sentiment of the party in New York. The ex-Secretary is an eminent jurist, but his views are not shared by ex-President TAFT and Mr. WICKERSHAM, who certainly are not without juristic competence; and we venture the opinion that the signers of the letter to the New York Senators are much nearer to the sources of public sentiment than Mr. ROOT.

We have never for a moment doubted that when the League covenant came to be understood, when misconceptions of its meaning, most of them put into the public mind by the enemies of the League at Washington, were swept away, it would have the approval of the great mass of the people, and that they would condemn obstruction and demand ratification of the Treaty and of the covenant.

SCUTTLING THE REPUTATION OF A NAVY.

The scuttling of the German ships surrendered to the British and American fleets may not be a bad thing in its results, since it removes a vexing question which had led to differences of opinion among the Allies. But the act itself was a characteristic piece of German treachery and a violation of the laws of war. It is not permissible to save yourself from destruction by surrendering and then destroying the property you have surrendered.

The infamy of the German Navy is complete by this act. It is the only navy in history with such a continuous record of villainy. It made war by submarine assassination; it surrendered without a fight; and after the surrender it treacherously destroyed the surrendered property. "Sailors are always gentlemen," said Admiral CERVERA; but the German Navy had not yet begun its laborious and successful effort to prove that he was mistaken so far as the sailors of one nation are concerned.

THE RED NIGHT AT THE GARDEN.

It is time, more than time, for the Government to take some steps for protection against enemies who are working openly for its destruction, such as those who met in Madison Square Garden on Friday night. These people make no concealment of the fact that they are enemies of the United States Government. It is of little avail to put stenographers in their meeting places, for they know the law and they know that a conviction cannot be obtained save for specific incitement to riot. Our laws were framed with no expectation of any such emergency as now faces this nation. They were based on a theory of Americanism, or rather on an understanding of the Americanism that has existed. It did not enter the minds of those lawmakers that some day there would arise an organized and widespread movement to destroy the Government and bring about social chaos; they made no provision for such a thing; what they provided against was sporadic violence and incitements here and there toward riot.

While the laws remain as they are and take no account of the real state of facts, such meetings as that in the Garden may not be prevented. But they will not take place if the Government is strong and energetic in enforcing certain other laws. Convicted seditionaries, under prison sentences, are permitted long after their convictions to go abroad in the land inciting revolution; they even run for office so as to obtain a better platform from which to wave the red flag. Such a condition of things is intolerable. More sternness in the application of such laws as we have would go far toward moderating such meetings as that in the Garden, which was addressed by more than one person who in theory is supposed to have begun a prison sentence long ago. Besides this, there is an inequality in the operation of the law. Some convicted seditionaries go to prison without much delay; others roam around at liberty for indefinite periods. They know they are favored, and it incites them to greater recklessness in speech.

"These people have their choice of either education or the night-stick," says Governor SMITH, but what experience have they had with the night-stick, and how many of them believe it will ever be applied to them? Besides, who is to apply the night-stick when these speakers are so crafty as to keep within the weak law? At the Garden meeting DENNIS E. BATT, a Socialist from Michigan, said: "No one knows when the revolution will break, but it is only a question of time when the proletariat will control all Europe, and here in America, over the hills, the Red sun is rising." No plainer incitement to rebellion could be made, and yet the words were so carefully chosen that under the law the speaker would probably be acquitted if placed before a jury.

At the same meeting ROSE PASTOR STOKES, referring to the calling out of 6,000 soldiers the other night, said: "Think a moment and imagine what that little 6,000 could do against the working classes." This was nothing less than a visualization of the overpowering of our soldiers by armed rebels; but again the words were chosen with the antique law in mind.

Nevertheless, though there is no sufficient law against the organization of revolution unless the revolutionists are obliging enough to put their rebellion in plain words, there is enough law to take care of the present brood if only it is firmly enforced without first looking to see who is going to be hurt. For instance, confidential communications from the Acting Secretary of State to his superior officer are not supposed to be acquired by mysterious agents of disorder and read before 6,000 shouting Reds at Madison Square Garden. When that happens, somebody ought to suffer. The incident is disquieting, because nobody can tell how many other such communications may have been stolen, or whether this very thing did not go on during the war. Presumably whoever got access to this communication and gave it to EASTMAN has had access to others.

Such raids as that which the Lusk committee made on Saturday on the Rand School, the Left Wing Socialists, and the I. W. W. are encouraging in so far as they show an aroused feeling that something must be done, and are valuable in collecting evidence. They are, however, as yet only in the stage of investigation, and we cannot yet tell what will come out of them.

What was the so-called "Ambassador" of the Soviet doing at a meeting which called for revolution in the United States? There is law to cover such cases, at least. Nothing could be more amusing than the attempt of one speaker to compare MARTENS's status with that of BENJAMIN FRANKLIN at Paris. FRANKLIN was not commissioned to go to France for the purpose of giving aid and comfort to revolutionists against the French Government. If he had done such a thing there was law enough in France to send him packing home on the first ship. There is not law enough for the night-stick, but there is law enough to cow these rebels without it; all that is lacking is the will to use it sternly and remorselessly.

JOINING HANDS.

Some day the hatred and bitterness of this war will have passed away and humanity will be reconciled. How soon that day will come is a matter on which there are different opinions; Grand Admiral VON TIRPITZ and ENVER Pasha, with a vision of the gallows blocking off the future, would like to see it dawn tomorrow; the mothers of Belgian children, the fathers of deported French girls, the surviving Armenians, may feel that this would be somewhat premature. A group of French writers, the best known of whom is the variously eminent BARBUSSE, think that the time is already at hand; they have issued an appeal to intellectuals of all lands to "scorn hatred of all kinds and join hands for the task of tomorrow."

For some unexplained reason no German response has yet been made public; but intellectuals of Austria hastened to clasp the outstretched hand, and another answer has now come from a group of American authors describing themselves as

> We, your brothers in the dear home land of EMERSON, WHITMAN, LINCOLN; lovers of our country, taught by our country the love of mankind, ourselves feeling the blood of all the races of your ancient Europe in our veins.

These lyrical ladies and gentlemen tell "the intellectual fighters of Paris and Vienna" that "we in America have heard and understand"; that "for all nations there can be but one humanity, one in its piteous sins, one in its true worth and works."

Among the lovers of the dear home land of EMERSON, WHITMAN and LINCOLN who have signed this fraternal greeting are Dr. EDMUND VON MACH, Dr. WILLIAM BAYARD HALE, Professor THOMAS C. HALL, FREDERICK FRANKLIN SCHRADER, FRANK HARRIS, and PADRAIC COLUM. Along with these representatives of intellectual entities, running all the way from the Irish Republic to the Fort Oglethorpe internment camp, there are a dozen or so authentic Americans. One may wonder how the signatures of some of them, who knew what the war was about not more than a year ago, have been obtained to this remarkable document; conceivably they didn't know what other names would appear beside theirs when the appeal for the forgiveness of the criminal before he has begun to serve his sentence was issued to the public.

WILLIAM S. DEVERY.

It is perhaps a little premature to say that WILLIAM S. DEVERY was the last survivor of a dead time, though the temptation to say it is strong. For all we know, another Devery may arise at some time. But there have been no Deverys since DEVERY, and there are none now.

Yet, on a casual meeting with the man, the character marks that made him famous did not come out. On such a meeting DEVERY's voice was soft and even low, and he did not use any slang or picturesque expressions and made no grammatical blunders worth mentioning, though his language did not rise above that of the streets. He was more witty than slangy, and had a remarkable gift of characterization. The best known of his characterizations was made in the course of the interregnum in Tammany Hall. CROKER had fled from politics to Ireland; LEWIS NIXON had been appointed his successor and had been promptly put aside, and a momentary triumvirate shared the Bossship. It consisted of CHARLES F. MURPHY, DANIEL F. MCMAHON, and LOUIS F. HAFFEN. DEVERY characterized them as "Sport, Two-Spot, and Joke." MURPHY, otherwise "Sport," subsequently tossed the other two aside and ruled alone.

DEVERY was always on trial for something or other and always being acquitted. He was one of the men held up to public obloquy by the Lexow investigation, but that investigation never did much harm to any of the men it exposed except poor Captain STEPHENSON, whose crime was accepting peaches and other bribes from merchants for letting them encroach on the sidewalks. The men who were virtual partners in gambling places and disorderly houses suffered very little. DEVERY's offenses against public decency were not light, but his humor and rough-and-readiness always disposed his adversaries to have a sort of liking for him. He should have lived in TWEED's time. In fact, the two men were quite alike in character.

TRACTION FARES.

Public Service Commissioner NIXON and Transit Commissioner DELANEY have made strong arguments against assistance to the subway companies, but without exhausting the subject. We should suppose they would agree that present conditions are abnormal, and that abnormal conditions should no more control the making of contracts for normal times than the other way about. The five-cent fare became insufficient and unjust because the War Board ordered an increase of costs with authority hardly less compelling than law, and the law itself prevents the increase of fare correspondingly. Both officials find a connection between the fares and the profits of the companies which is not contemplated by either the law or the contract, and which in itself is undesirable. Both agree that the nickel fare ought not to be altered without the most compelling reason, and yet both consider it desirable to use the present abnormal conditions to authorize, if not compel, a rate of fare altering with profits.

There have been repeated proofs that it is difficult to regulate profits, and there are many reasons why the nickel fare ought to be a fixture, if it can be made so without doing great harm to many interests. Both officials think it fair to propose mutual concessions in the reform of the contract regarding the subways, although the effect of the contract is to the profit of the city and to the loss of the companies. Both officials argue as if a public utility were a private enterprise, free to conduct its affairs in its own way, and not entitled to consideration on account of hardships imposed upon it by those who should protect it, as well as regulate it, in the interest of the public as well as of the companies. In short, both officials err in regarding the companies as approaching insolvency as if they were free-will agents, responsible for their own condition, and not reduced to distress by officials whose attitude seems something less than judicial or judicious.

It is most surprising of all that both officials think that the city should have a preference in the earnings, reversing the contract that the companies should have the preference in which there is a present deficiency, due to no fault of the companies, and largely due to the fault of the city. If the city had fulfilled its obligations, the subways would have been completed before the war upset all calculations on which the contract was based, and there might now be a profit instead of a loss. On balance there is a large debit against the city for its part in bringing it about that the companies are carrying full capital costs and operating a system far from complete, and with construction made unnecessarily costly. Yet the city is complainant, although it is receiving large profits in which the companies have no part. The city is now collecting taxes due to the values created by the subways, without which it would be beyond the constitutional debt limit and in a financial condition approaching that of the subway companies.

The connection between nickel fares and tax valuations and receipts is as direct as between nickel fares and subway company profits. The situation is that the city is receiving its profit under the dual contract, and that the companies are suffering a loss which was not contemplated at all. Yet it is proposed to reform the contract to the prejudice of the companies and in a manner also harmful to the city. A shifting fare at the cost of shifting tax values will injure the city and property owners more than it will benefit farepayers. It would seem that the situation is so abnormal, and so unexpected to all concerned, that no permanent alteration in the contract should be ventured upon. Nothing shows that it is a bad contract; rather the contrary. What the conditions call for is temporary relief to the party suffering, and that is not the city.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Addressed to Deluded "Liberals." New light, and more, on Bolshevism, or rather on the way its theories as applied in Russia have worked out with respect to the class it promises to free of all their troubles and make the rulers of a happy world, is supplied by a book just issued in London. It presents, put in form for publication by E. H. HAYWOOD, the observations and experiences of H. V. KEELING, who lived in Russia for several years before the revolution and remained there after it until he found that with the large wages—in almost worthless money—received by him as an engraver he could not buy enough food to keep himself alive.

Mr. HAYWOOD is a "labor leader," and Mr. KEELING always has been, and is, a union man in good and regular standing. Both originally were disposed to view Bolshevism with sympathy as the revolt of an oppressed people against an intolerable tyranny, but Mr. KEELING, because of what he saw, and Mr. HAYWOOD, because of his confidence that Mr. KEELING is telling the exact truth, have prepared this book in order that it may put an end to a like sympathy which still lingers in labor and "liberal" circles because most of the previous witnesses against the Bolsheviki were, or could be charged with being, inclined toward the capitalistic or imperialistic system.

It is these same witnesses whose testimony as to the nature and industrial consequences of Bolshevism the book supports and amplifies. It pictures the Lenin-Trotzky régime as a despotism far more cruel and ruthless than Czarism, reducing production to almost nothing, abolishing entirely the freedom of everybody except the revolutionary leaders and their docile agents, and causing quite as much injury to the working class as to the bourgeoisie—which means, in Russia, anybody who opposes Soviet rule.

A Gorgeous Blossom of Bolshevism. Perhaps the most striking passage in the KEELING book is one that summarizes a conversation between two Soviet Deputies, heard while they and the author were traveling together on a river steamer. The argument was as to the right division to be made of the products of labor. As reported it ran thus:

> One argued that no matter whether a man was industrious or idle their wages and their privileges must remain the same. The second demurred and said, "Some way ought to be found to differentiate." The first answered with unimpeachable logic, "That it was the only way equality could be maintained, for, if you penalize idleness, the industrious will eventually become better off than the other, a position we could never allow."

To this Mr. KEELING is content to add, as comment, only, "Unless I had heard the conversation myself, I never would have believed it possible." His incredulity is a little excessive, and the Deputy who objected to the penalization of laziness was both logical and consistent. To let the industrious profit by their industry obviously would soon destroy equality of possessions and conditions, and the inevitable effect would be the creation of a new bourgeoisie.

To Reform Expert Testimony. Consideration, though perhaps not immediate approval, is deserved by a suggestion made by Dr. C. F. MACDONALD in a paper read at the meeting of the American Medico-Psychological Association. Having himself so often testified in cases involving questions of mental responsibility, Dr. MACDONALD not only speaks as an expert with regard to the legal determination of sanity and insanity, but he is familiar with the reasons why the evidence of experts so often has the effect merely of confusing juries and so of hindering rather than helping them to reach a correct verdict.

The remedy for this state of affairs, the doctor said, was to limit the power of the jurors in such cases to deciding whether or not the defendant committed the act charged. Then, for the information of the court, a board of experts employed by it should report to the court its opinion as to the defendant's mind. Thus would the sorry spectacle so often seen, of experts seemingly contradicting one another, be no more a humiliation to science and to its exponents, and the causes of these contradictions would be removed.

Courts will be slow, however, to deprive either prosecution or defense, and especially the defense, of the old and valued privilege of employing its own experts and of getting from them the desired answers to carefully prepared questions that can be answered in no other way.

Waterloo Did Not Delay Them. As President WILSON is himself a historian, it is no wonder that all the foreign correspondents noted the speed at which his car was driven over what was not long ago perhaps the most famous and therefore the most interesting of European battlefields. They say that presumably King ALBERT told the President when they passed the crossroad at Quatre Bras, but that there was no stopping or delaying there.

That this was so may be strange, but it would have been stranger if the events of a century ago had awakened more than momentary memory in the minds of travelers whose attention, with such good reason, was fixed on more recent and more important battles than Waterloo. NAPOLEON was a great man and a great soldier—greater by far as both than were any of his conquerors—but the problems of today have little relation either to those he solved or those he created. In number of men engaged a battle like Waterloo would have been, for the war which has—or has not—just ended, a very minor engagement, worth but brief mention in the dispatches.

It shook the world then. And now a President and a King whirl by it in an automobile with only a glance and a word!

Dividing Ireland.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The British islands, speaking of the larger masses only, are two islands. Why should it be thought blasphemous and intolerant to speak of dividing the western mass into two political units when the eastern mass is divided into three? If England, Scotland, and Wales can live together quietly when there is only a geographical line between them, why must Northeastern Ulster be driven, against its will, to become a distinct minority? Was self-determination somehow kidnapped between Dublin and Belfast?

CHAOS CONGRATULATES RUSSIA.

I have nothing on you, Russia—not a thing!
In all the days when I was upside down
And downside up, and several other ways,
I did not sense that which today I praise—
Despite old Order's mandatory frown—
That which I witness as you take your fling.

At topsyturvyness of rule and man;
The mixed-up-mess of governmental plan,
And all the backside-foremost, hindmost-front
Of Bolshevik, Ukrainian, German stunt,
I yield my laurels without bickering—
You have me beaten! I but tossed about
Organic trifles, while your forces sing
Of pretty kingdoms emptied inside out!

A FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY.

Chief Engineer on Torpedoed Transport Wants the Facts Cleared Up.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a new book by H. W. Nevinson, entitled "The Dardanelles Campaign," there is a footnote on page 355 which runs as follows:

> "One of the transports, (the Southland,) conveying a battalion of the 2d Australian Division, was torpedoed near Mudros, but brought safely to port by the soldiers, who stoked and ran the engines themselves."

I was Chief Engineer of the Southland when the vessel was torpedoed at that time. The footnote casts an undeserved stigma upon the officers of the ship, and particularly upon those of my department. I wrote to Mr. Nevinson about it, and offered to let him have the part of my manuscript of wartime experiences referring to that incident to read. He accepted it, and after reading it he sent me the following letter:

> May 1, 1919.
>
> Dear Sir: Thank you very much for letting me see the part of your account which Mrs. Mackay forwarded to me, and which I now return.
>
> The whole makes a most interesting record of courage and resource.
>
> I have altered my note in accordance with your evidence, and the change will be seen in any subsequent edition.
>
> Please accept my hearty congratulations upon your most valuable services. Yours faithfully, HENRY W. NEVINSON.

The ship lay in Mudros Bay, in the island of Lemnos, for four months after she was torpedoed, having temporary repairs made to bring her home

The ship was torpedoed on Sept. 2, 1915. The censor did not pass the news for publication until Nov. 12, 1915. The papers containing the distorted and exaggerated accounts of the soldiers' services arrived out at Mudros Bay about a fortnight later. The ship's company, although naturally feeling rather annoyed about it, took no active steps in the matter. They simply adopted the attitude of the ordinary man in those stirring times, saying, "Oh, well, if it does them any good it does us no harm; it is only newspaper talk and will soon die away." We were wrong, as the aftermath proved. The distorted stories grew and Mr. Nevinson's footnote crowned them.

Life has been so full of big things for those who took part in the war, whether in the navy, army, or merchant marine, that none of us who were in it desire to be carpingly critical of any of our comrades. So I will only say that the Australians did splendidly that day, but there were others who were "among those present" on that occasion. The soldiers' work below was confined to assisting the ship's engineers to raise the steam pressure from that required to operate the auxiliary machinery, (pumps and dynamos,) at which pressure the engineers had maintained it themselves, to that required for operating the main engines, and one soldier assisted to oil the machinery before starting. By the time this was done the T. B. D. Raccoon had arrived and some of her stokers volunteered to stoke the ship to Mudros Bay, and they stoked her until we put her on the beach.

Of course, the Australians who volunteered to take the risk of assisting the engineers below deserve credit for their courage, and we give them all the credit due them; we have always done so. When the ship was beached there remained on board, of the ship's company, commander, deck officers, nine engineers, one chief petty officer, boatswain, carpenter's mate, one quartermaster, one greaser.

BAGPIPES AND MUSIC.

An American Poet Called to Witness by a Scot.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As some years ago the question whether Bacon or Shakespeare wrote the plays which have gone under the latter's name was put up for decision to a United States court, why not also let the question whether the Scottish bagpipes make music or make noise be settled by a court decision? Now as to whether the pipes really make music or simply noise, the writer's opinion is not worth anything, as he is a native Scot, one who can say with the poet:

> Auld Scotia's wild romantic pipe,
> Long linked to many a stirring tale,
> I love to hear thy martial notes
> Come swelling on the gale.

I will venture an opinion on one matter, however, and that is that the two finest poems on the bagpipes ever written were both written by Americans, one of them by our gentle Quaker poet, Whittier:

> "The sweetest of all music the pipes at Lucknow played."

The other poem was written by I. Edgar Jones, and was published a good many years ago in The Springfield Republican. At this time many would be interested to see it reprinted:

THE VOICE OF THE BAGPIPES.

A thing all prongs and bell-mouthed open tips,
Supplied with air from bellows, cheeks, and lips,
Adapted well to rout all carking cares,
Converting Scottish air to Scottish airs—
With something in its breezy, witchlike wail
Suggestive of a haunting old ghost tale.

In it the mountain falcon's piercing note,
The eagle's scream, the bleat of hillside goat,
The plaintive call of partridge, quail or grouse,
The fresh breeze whistling by a straw-thatched house,
The trill of birds in fern-clad rocky dells,
The low of mountain kine and sweet sheep bells.

Discerning ears may hearken close and hear
The huntsman's horn with echoes high and clear,
Soft winds across the heather whispering low,
Or raging amid crags in blinding snow;
The sighs of scented Summer sweet and warm,
The raging of fierce spirits of the storm.

And rising high above all softer sounds
The bark of fox, the deep-mouthed bay of hounds,
The cries of warriors who in claymored clan
Once fought until the streams in crimson ran;
The wail of women o'er a warrior's doom,
The elfin songs of night-elves in the gloom.

The lays of linnets and the joyous trills
Of laughing brooks that caper down the hills,
The hymns intoned by waves in mountain lakes,
The croon of mothers when a babe awakes:
All these the Scottish pipes have kindly kept,
Sounds that for ages past have in them slept.
What wonder that with them hearts laughed or wept?

There are neither flat nor sharp notes possible with the bagpipes. I understand that the lack of ability to express such notes is made up by the use of grace-notes, and the skill of the piper in touching these has a great deal to do with the musical quality of his playing. It would seem that, after all, if a man is a poet or a seer, he can hear a great deal that is musical in the strains of the bagpipes.

BOLSHEVISM'S AIDS.

Why Give Them a Free Hand Here to Upset Real Democracy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

No American citizen with the slightest pretension of love for his country could have listened to Mr. Dudley Field Malone at last Thursday's meeting at the Hotel Pennsylvania of the Women's International Committee for Permanent Peace without feeling a sense of deepest shame that such a speech could even be tolerated. His attacks on the President, once his friend, were only equalled by his insult to that cause for which our precious dead have given their lives.

Mr. Malone made the sweeping assertion that "our heroes sleeping on the fields of Flanders and in the soil of France had died in vain," because America had failed to make the world safe for Democracy! Is Mr. Malone by his inflammatory oratorical flights helping to make the world safe for Democracy? My nephew, a mere boy, enlisted at eighteen, and, like thousands of others, died in the battle of Argonne. I deny that these boys gave their lives in vain. Their glorious sacrifice will ever be an inspiration to us to fulfill our part. I believe their spirit is the great soul of America that is standing behind our President in his magnificent stand for Right against Might.

Some three years ago Mr. Malone, on Washington's Birthday, made a most stirring address indorsing the President's war policy. The eloquence of his appeal stirred all present. Six months later Mr. Malone was strenuously backing the election of Morris K. Hillquit at a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden,—a man who refused to support his country in war and as a matter of principle refused even to buy a Liberty Bond!

Mr. Oswald Villard, who also spoke on this occasion, was likewise an ardent supporter of Mr. Hillquit's policy. Mr. Malone, Mr. Villard, and other so-called advocates of the cause of humanity and of permanent peace, have uttered vehement protests against the blockade of Germany because her people, they said, were suffering from hunger through this inhumane act. We grant Germany suffered. Has she suffered more than the rest of the world upon whom she brought that great cataclysm? Are her sufferings greater than those of Russia, whom she has thrust into inconceivable chaos? Are her sufferings greater than those of Rumania and the Balkan nations?

Why decry Germany! Once reinstated, her natural energy will enable her to recuperate more quickly than those nations who have suffered through her. The blockade was the most efficacious weapon we had against Germany. Remember that confidence in Germany cost the world millions of lives and over two hundred billions of dollars. Therefore we are not deceived by misleading orators.

Mr. Malone compared Martens to Benjamin Franklin, "pleading for his country's revolution in a foreign land!" Are the doctrines of Bolshevism to be allowed to be preached and established here? Do these advocates of permanent peace intend to uphold their methods?

We are not to intervene in Russia, but are we to stand aside and allow the Soviet representatives here to endeavor to upset our Government? As a matter of fact, we have never interfered in Russia. "Leave Russia to work out her own salvation," has been the continuous cry, and we have been unable to hold out a helping hand.

During the Czar's régime the cruelties committed by that autocracy were known to us to be of the most criminal nature. Did we interfere? Then came the inspiring revolution and the overthrow of the Imperialistic Government. Immediately we sent Russia our sympathy and recognition and promised to give her our support in her emancipation. But alas! Through German machinations, extreme radicals (supported by millions of moneys) approached these credulous Russians and usurped their Government. For two years now, in the name of proclaimed Bolshevism, murder and pillage have ravished Russia, and, remember this was done in the name of an ideal. Have we interfered?

Still hoping that order would come out of chaos we stood aside. General Kolchak, a leader of acknowledged ability, who has been working in Siberia for two years, is trying to unite all the factions to restore law and order. When we were asked to recognize the Omsk Government we hesitated because of lack of evidence that the Government in question represented a purely democratic policy. General Kolchak has now made the statement that his one desire is to aid in establishing a form of government desired by the people. A Constitutional Assembly has been proposed, and we are still waiting for the Russian people to declare themselves.

We sent a small force of troops into Vladivostock to safeguard our supplies. We have never intervened, in spite of the almost universal cry to do so. Yet there are certain light-headed people using empty explanations and high sounding phrases accusing us of interfering in Russia. Certainly it is puzzling to know just what they intend to convey. These would-be humanitarians seem slightly mixed in their intentions.

Think of the herculean task confronting that great internationalist, our President, the real humanitarian of the world, standing firmly for "fair play" for all peoples. Should he not have the unqualified support of the nation? Who but he is constructively working for the most tangible ideal the world has ever known—that lifeboat of hope, the League of Nations? Has any one offered any better solution? On one hand Bolshevism attempts a millennium, but by no other means save by revolution and the murdering of all those that disagree with their whirlwind of destruction.

The world has its choice of two internationalisms—that of the League of Nations and that of the Bolsheviki.

What Are We Going to Do About It?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"How long, O Lord, how long!" will a spineless and nerveless Government permit the Bolsheviki of New York to spit in its face and flout it beyond all reasonable limits, as again was done last night at Madison Square Garden, for about the fiftieth time during the last eighteen months? How long are the Federal courts going to permit themselves to be made a laughing stock by people out on bail under criminal sentences? How much longer is the President of the United States, the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy and the maker of Federal courts, going to permit black-hearted traitors to get up in public, defy the Government, demand its overthrow by force, and preach the establishment of soviet government by "revolution"?

Will it be necessary for the people to arise and with their own hands undertake the business of casting out devils? It seems to me that we have endured quite enough from such people as those who filled Madison Square Garden last night to the number of 6,000. Where are they going to get off?

Up to date ninety-five Reds have been tried, convicted, and sentenced to deportation, but, thanks to stupid mismanagement, not one of those under sentence of deportation has yet been deported.

We Are Patient.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The publicity given by the newspapers in reporting the meetings of the various Socialist, Bolshevist, anarchist, &c., groups, to my mind, is a wonderful way to combat these movements. As Americans we are patient, but who doubts that we did a real job in the great war? How much longer are we going to tolerate the foolish arguments and the worthless outrages of the Socialists, Bolsheviki, anarchists, &c. They certainly should see the handwriting on the wall.

THE EXHIBIT IN THE PARK.

Safety Institute Defends Its Use of the Old Arsenal Building.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I draw to your attention statements appearing in an editorial article of Wednesday's issue, which, uncorrected, might do this organization great injustice. I refer to that part of the article which speaks of the institute selling the devices it exhibits and of making profits for inventors. The inference that our organization sells appliances of any sort or is interested, directly or indirectly, in any element of profit is entirely erroneous. One of the principal elements of the rigid investigation recently conducted, at the direction of the Mayor, by the City Chamberlain and the Commissioner of Parks was to insure that this organization had no commercial objective whatever, direct or indirect, and as an absolute safeguard in this respect the Park Commissioner has veto power over any exhibit upon the premises. The institute of today, and its predecessor, the American Museum of Safety, has never sold, directly or indirectly, with or without profit, any article exhibited on its premises, and, so far as its knowledge goes, no member of its board has had any financial interest, direct or indirect, in any article exhibited in the museum.

As to the suggested invasion of the park, may I point out that the Arsenal occupies no land that was ever used for park purposes. This historic structure was erected by the State before the land of the park was purchased by the city. There has been no serious suggestion that the building should be removed. The city authorities have proposed to simply permit the museum's occupancy of the vacant parts, under a form of lease which would not prevent the removal of the structure should the course seem desirable. Notwithstanding that the city has been authorized for a number of years to assist in the maintenance of the museum by annual appropriations, not exceeding $50,000, we have asked for no public fund, and now are proposing to spend probably in excess of $150,000, of which $50,000 has been generously contributed through our Treasurer, James Speyer, in placing the building in condition fit not only for our own occupancy, but for that part of the Police Department which has had its headquarters there, and which, if not housed here, would probably call for the erection of another building elsewhere in the park.

Had the erection of a new structure in the park, or taking from any part of the park land, as at present existing, been suggested, I believe every member of our board would oppose such a movement. The association which is opposing our occupancy of the vacant parts of this building suggested that the city should place at our disposal other park property, now forming part of the plottage upon which the American Museum of Natural History stands.

The proposed occupancy of the building is not without precedent. It was here that the American Museum of Natural History began its splendid career. It was in the structure now occupied by this great organization, and, in fact, under its auspices, that the first safety exhibit ever made in New York City, and, I believe, in this country—was made. We have been much gratified that the authorities of the city have seen fit to permit this occupancy, our hope being that our institution may in time approach the wonderful service that the other institution has rendered the public—the American Museum of Natural History, our predecessor on the premises.

The proposed occupancy of this structure has received the hearty support of many labor and other organizations of the city. Many representatives of labor appeared at the public hearing accorded by the Park Commissioner, and conducted by the Chamberlain at the direction of the Mayor, and the unanimous expression of opinion at that time on the part of these representatives was that the proposed occupancy, for the purpose in view, would add to rather than take from the service the park now renders to the public. Safety in industry and on the streets and sanitation in the home would be additional educational attractions which could be studied by those who toil, in the interests of their own protection and that of their fellow-toilers, concurrently with their enjoyment of the recreational features of the park.

As an indication of our organization's recognition of the responsibilities resting upon it in carefully preserving and restoring the building, an Advisory Committee has been organized to cooperate with our Building Committee, on which the following have accepted membership:

Mrs. A. Barton Hepburn, Joseph A. Weekes, Frank M. Ward, Samuel Gompers, George F. Kunz, L. S. Pilcher, and Philip Berolzheimer.

The members of our Building Committee are James Speyer, Chairman; Charles L. Close, Robert A. Franks, Lewis B. Gawtry, and Benjamin B. Thayer. ARTHUR WILLIAMS, President Safety Institute of America.

Tommaseo on Dalmatia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a reply to a letter of mine, printed in your issue of June 7, in mentioning the name of the celebrated Dalmatian Tommaseo, Mr. Bennington does not seem to believe that Tommaseo, who gave a superb contribution to Italian literature and philology, always professed his Slav consciousness. Now it is only necessary to read his poems, "Alla Dalmazia," (especially the one addressed to the "Serbian Peoples,") in order to be convinced of his warm heart for the Slav cause. Besides, he has also made a beautiful contribution to the Serbo-Croat literature.

As for his ideas as to the future destinies of Dalmatia, the following citation may suffice:

> "And without further ado, with the frankness peculiar to my people, I will say that, as for me, I do not believe that Dalmatia could again be attached to Italy, for our time is altogether different from that of the Venetian Republic. If it has always been difficult to rule over peoples speaking another language, now it would be impossible for the Italians to do it."

The "Outis" Letter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read the letter of Henry Jarvis Koh, who seems sure that he has discovered the identity of the writer of the "Outis" letter in The New York Mirror of 1845, relating to "The Poe-Longfellow War," in the person of the late Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

The author of "The Story of a Bad Boy" was born in November, 1836, and at the date of The Mirror letter was just one month over 8 years of age. Unfortunately this makes final disposition of Mr. Koh's theory.

I have had a number of personal letters sent me, suggesting other names, among them that of James Russell Lowell, but the records seem rather clear that this latter is also a wrong guess. It might appear that a clever Boston lady is closest to the "scent." She has not completed her investigations, and I am not allowed to give her information at this time.

SAYS AMERICA ONLY CAN SAVE EUROPE

Darwin P. Kingsley Declares Incompetent Leadership Delays Just Triumph.

ATTACKS SENATE REACTION

Tells Vermont University Guests an Economic League of Nations Is Already Begun.

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 22.—The declaration that "this country alone can bring Europe salvation" was made by Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life Insurance Company, in a memorial address at the University of Vermont tonight in honor of the men of the university who fell in the war. Mr. Kingsley, who is a graduate of Vermont, paid tribute to the boys who "answered unhesitatingly the supreme challenge of fate and died smiling."

"Consciously or unconsciously," he continued, "they all died for a great cause. That cause is greater than democracy, greater than country.

"Incompetent leadership, provincialism and selfishness promise to delay the triumph of the cause for which they died. The collapse of Germany has put into the hands of the allied powers an opportunity to achieve in a generation what otherwise may be realized only after centuries of fighting.

"At present the indications are that the world will continue to travel over the broken, cruel, bloody road it has so long followed. There is to be no quick emergence into a new order under which law shall rule between nations, under which war shall be made improbable, if not impossible. Nevertheless, that new order is what the people of the world now demand.

"We did not want to go to Europe, but we had to go. We do not want to mix in its troubles now, but we must. The hope that we may not have to send another army across the sea is a false hope, unless the existing order is changed. Responsibility to the rest of the world, as well as our own self-respect, took us there in 1917. That responsibility is greater now than it has ever been before. It will increase. We cannot avoid it, if we are to maintain our traditions and our place in the world.

"This country and this country alone can bring Europe salvation. That we must do. We must do it, not as a work of altruism, but to save ourselves.

"We must help Europe to help herself; we must help her people to go to work. Her people are not working now, and the alarming fact is that their civil morale is so shattered that they apparently do not want to work.

"Whether or not the Republican reactionaries in the United States Senate delay peace because they object to the so-called League of Nations covenant, contained in the treaty, we must at once enter an economic and industrial League of Nations or Europe perishes. That league will be made by commercial necessity, a power which does not act by or with the advice and consent of the United States Senate.

"But a political, as well as a commercial union of peoples must come if the relations of nations are to be stabilized and civilized. As we hesitated and dilly-dallied and tried not to see our duty prior to April 6, 1917, so some of our leaders now hesitate and shilly-shally over the League of Nations proposed—and a poor thing it is at best—and so they will hesitate and shilly-shally over our part in the economic and reconstruction problems which face Europe.

"Europe is hungry. It will probably become hungrier. Before they starve men become savages. The danger now is that the very foundations of European society may crumble. He is a fool who thinks all that can happen and leave us safe—safe in what he is pleased to call our splendid isolation."

MOTT CALLS FOR SERVICE.

Tells Cornell Men and Women We Must Help Rebuild the World.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 22.—An appeal to graduates of Cornell and other universities to throw themselves into the work of post-war reconstruction was voiced by Dr. John R. Mott, General Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association War Work Council, in a baccalaureate sermon delivered to the Cornell graduating class here today. Dr. Mott is a member of the Cornell Class of '88.

"America," said Dr. Mott, "is expected to take a chief part in the financial and commercial adjustments following the war—to bind up the broken-hearted, to save the starving.

"We are going to busy ourselves with this, and it means that there must be an unprecedented offering of our lives and our service, because of the depletion of other universities.

"We honor our 200 dead, but if we had the proportions of Oxford and Cambridge it would have been 3,000 or more.

"America is challenged to lend itself to the vast reconstruction tasks that involve the entire world, and there is need for men and women, real leaders, to throw themselves into the struggle."

A statue of Ezra Cornell, founder of Cornell University, was unveiled on the college campus this morning. President Schurman, Dr. T. F. Crane, and Miss Mary Cornell, daughter of the founder, spoke briefly.

SEES NEW HOPE IN WORLD.

Middletown President Says Past Is no Measure of Problems Now.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 22.—In his baccalaureate sermon today to the commencement guests and graduates at Wesleyan University, President William Arnold Shanklin said:

"The old order has passed away. A new world is being formed. They err who make the past of man the measure of what he is to be, imagining that because a thing has been it always must be.

"The world is aflame with a new purpose and luminous with a great new hope, and the exacting problems of this new day demand courage and resourcefulness."

A memorial service in honor of the Wesleyan men who died in the war was held tonight, the Rev. George P. Eckman officiating.

GARFIELD FOR CO-OPERATION

Tells Williams Men Its Growth Is Hurt by Radical Extremists.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., June 22.—President Garfield of Williams College in his baccalaureate sermon today emphasized the need of a growth of the spirit of co-operation.

He approved the idea of an international brotherhood of man, but condemned the radical extremist who "lacks the attitude of friendliness that brings men together and makes possible the blotting out of differences."

PLAN ICE STATIONS FOR BROOKLYN POOR

Chairman of Mayor's Committee Complains of Opposition to Its Program for Summer.

City Chamberlain Philip Berolzheimer, Chairman of the Mayor's Ice Fund for Relief of the Poor, has written to John F. Delaney, 170 Broadway, asking him to accept the Chairmanship of the Brooklyn Committee of twenty-five, and asserting that politics had become so involved in the matter of free distribution of ice to the poor of Kings County that the needy of that borough were likely to suffer during hot weather.

Mr. Berolzheimer said that no financial or other assistance was required as he had made a satisfactory arrangement with the Ice Publicity Association. This association distributes ice for nearly all ice manufacturers through the Babies Welfare League for sick babies.

"To my regret," says Mr. Berolzheimer, "I discovered that Mr. Oler of the Knickerbocker Ice Company, the most important factor in the manufacture and sale of ice, who previously promised his co-operation, had repudiated his offer to help, and that he, together with Miss Arnold, Secretary of the Babies Welfare League, who makes her headquarters at the Board of Health, had been working against the Mayor's Committee. In fact, I find that Dr. Josephine Baker, Director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene, is quietly opposing the Mayor's Committee, and I have reported this fact to his Honor, the Mayor."

Mr. Berolzheimer said that by the middle of August the city would have a shortage of about 12,000 tons of ice daily, and that he had decided on a plan, in which the Commissioner of Health had promised co-operation, by which everybody in New York would be able to purchase ice at a fair price, even if drastic measures had to be taken. The plan he outlined for Mr. Delaney to follow in Brooklyn is given as follows:

"You will please establish six ice stations in the poor districts on city property or in cellars, for which we pay at the rate of $8 a month here. You will have to engage one or two men for each station and my secretary, Mr. Martin, will furnish you with the necessary picks, buckets, &c. The ice will be distributed in the mornings, and will take only one or two hours for each station. One of the city departments will no doubt be pleased to lend you a truck to bring the ice to the stations every morning and it will be distributed on presentation of coupons, which are now being printed by the Supervisor of The City Record. Coupons will also be accepted by drivers of ice wagons, the names of which I will let you know later. The Salvation Army, Educational Alliance, and other charitable societies will investigate cases and deliver the books."

Dr. Josephine Baker, Director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene, was said at her home yesterday afternoon to be out of the city for the day.

Wesley M. Oler, President of the Knickerbocker Ice Company, said at his home at Larchmont, N. Y., that the action of the Mayor's Ice Committee seemed to him to be unfair and that he could not understand just what the purpose was in the apparent attempt to duplicate the work of the Babies' Welfare League.

"The Babies' Welfare League has for the last ten years been distributing our free ice coupons for sixty organized charities," said Mr. Oler. "No limit has ever been placed on the number of coupons given by the Knickerbocker Ice Company, and all that was required of the Welfare League was that they make an investigation of each case. Thousands of coupons have been returned to us every year, showing that the league had all and more ice than was required.

"I cannot understand what the Mayor's Ice Committee is driving at. If, in addition to the giving of an unlimited number of free coupons, which we have been doing quietly for the last ten years, the Mayor's Ice Committee, thinks that we should do more, we will be glad to furnish the ice, but we cannot deliver it, as our wagons are now working to their capacity."

Speaking of the general ice situation, Mr. Oler said that all would depend on the temperature for the remainder of the Summer. So far the Summer has been very favorable, he said, although the ice plants could not manufacture enough ice to meet the current demands and the reserve supply was being drawn upon.

L. B. KENDALL MARRIES BETTY LEE, ACTRESS

New York Broker, Who Gave $4,500,000 and $100,000 a Year to Divorced Wife, Weds.

Announcement was made yesterday from Atlanta, Ga., of the marriage there on Saturday of Lyman B. Kendall, a broker of this city, to Miss Betty Lee, a singer and actress of New York and whose name was previously Mrs. Katherine C. Welch. The new Mrs. Kendall comes from Virginia, where Mr. Kendall owns a large estate.

This is Mr. Kendall's second marriage. His first wife, who was formerly Miss Ellen T. Ballentine, obtained an uncontested divorce from him last Spring. Her lawyer, W. M. Sullivan, announced at that time that Mr. Kendall gave his former wife as settlement after the decree $1,000,000 in cash, an agreement to pay her in addition $100,000 per annum income; also their home at 520 Park Avenue, including its furnishings and contents valued at $1,500,000, and also their Bar Harbor estate, Sonogee, valued at $2,000,000.

The first Mrs. Kendall is a daughter of ex-Governor Ballentine of Idaho. She married Mr. Kendall when he was 30 and she 20 and when neither was rich. The divorce was granted on the grounds of incompatibility.

Proudfit-Mills Wedding Thursday.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—The wedding of Miss Caroline Bigelow Mills, daughter of Mrs. Tuther Laflin Mills of Winnetka, and Alexander Couper Proudfit of New York City will take place next Thursday afternoon at the Congregational Church in Winnetka. The Rev. J. Austin Richards will read the service. After Nov. 1 Mr. and Mrs. Proudfit will live at 24 East 111th Street, New York City.

Engagements.

The Rev. Robert Franklin Norton and Mrs. Norton of Lawrence, L. I., and Lake Placid have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Opal Norton, to Gordon Brush Hempstead, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Hempstead of 375 Park Avenue, New York. Mr. Hempstead's father was one of the owners of the New York Baseball Club. John T. Brush was an associate of his.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus Walker of Tarrytown, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their niece, Miss Minnie M. Crabtree, to Lieutenant David R. White, U. S. N. Flying Corps. Miss Crabtree has just finished her education at boarding school. Lieutenant White has been an instructor in aviation for the last year and a half in Florida. No date has been set for the wedding.

GERMANY AIDS REDS, PREACHER DECLARES

Dr. Young Assails Men and Women Who Apologize for Work of Radicals Here.

TRINITY CHURCH ATTACKED

Dr. Richmond Criticises It for Permitting Healing by Laying On of Hands.

The Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young of the Bedford Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn asserted last night in his sermon that men and women who had been pleading for a soft peace for Germany and who apologized for the work of the Bolsheviki and radicals in this country were betraying the cause for which more than 75,000 Americans had given their lives.

"The scuttling of the surrendered fleet by Germans," he said, "illustrates once more the German nation's spirit. The devil himself seems to have taken possession of that nation. No word of theirs can be for a moment trusted. After blustering to the last minute, they will sign the Peace Treaty, of course, but will violate its letter and spirit whenever and wherever the Allies leave the least opening.

"It matters little whether the scuttlers are anarchists. Anarchy in Europe and here has been and is encouraged and directed by Germans. Everlasting smashup is the German's attitude toward whatever is not German. Being caught with the goods affects neither Bernstorff nor any other German, trained under the infinite heresy of their propaganda, which is carried on still right under our eyes if we choose to see. Already apologists for Germany are springing up, and talking louder and louder, and soft-headed or treacherous-hearted Americans are daily more willing to echo their sentiments.

"Where has justice gone? Why should forgiveness of criminals be regarded by so many as a nobler act than the protection of the innocent by the punishment of the guilty? Those who set up wishy-washy sentimentality against justice are no more kind than were the cowards brave who surrendered without a fight the vast German fleet and then, in defiance of all honor, sent it to the bottom.

"Yielding to the German propaganda and permitting the I. W. W. and other Bolsheviki to hold traitors' meetings and go on trying to blow to pieces our civilization is merely saying that our 75,000 soldiers and sailors shall have died in vain and that we, or others coming after us, must rebuild free government from the bottom up."

Richmond Assails Trinity Church.

The Rev. Dr. George Chalmers Richmond, former rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, who recently joined the Baptist Church, preached yesterday at the Calvary Baptist Church. Dr. Richmond assailed Trinity Church for allowing on its foundation a man who asserted that he had the power of healing by the laying on of hands, which Dr. Richmond alleged to be blasphemous. Going into the past in his attack on Trinity, Dr. Richmond said that the tenement houses on Trinity property had been "vile and degrading," and continued:

"Trinity has always stood for charity and philanthropy and not for a radical change in the world's attitude toward the poor and industrially oppressed, and so such a corporation of financiers and rich lawyers will readily uphold a poor Englishman, who has an itch for notoriety and wants to lay his hands on some one."

Wants a Radical Religion.

Dr. Richmond argued that, to have its full influence and authority, the Christian religion should be radical and revolutionary, and he continued:

"One reason that the church has lost her influence is because the preachers are afraid. Since I came to this city I have been warned not to preach the gospel too strong, but to be conservative.

"If we have Bolshevism in this country it will be because our politics are reactionary and our commercial interests ultra-conservative. The time has come, not to denounce radicalism, but to love the radicals. The place of the church is with the revolutionary movements of the world and it should aim to uplift the minds and hearts of men."

Dr. Richmond called prohibition one of the greatest moral victories in history, and continued:

"The American liquor interests have sought to dictate to the moral sentiment of our citizens without any right or moral authority in so doing. The liquor traffic has sought to overpower the moral and spiritual forces of America. Of course it failed, for moral forces always win in the end."

"Thrift Sunday" was observed in practically all of the churches of New York yesterday. The day was designated by Secretary of the Treasury Glass as a part of a nation-wide campaign to make saving a national habit. In most of the churches the message of Secretary Glass was read from the pulpits, while in a great many the message was made a part of the sermon. In his message the Secretary pointed out that in the opinion of the Government the work of the churches in aiding the Government was as important in peace time as in war.

"Thrift," said Mgr. Lavelle in St. Patrick's Cathedral, "is care and prudence in the management of our means. The value of thrift as a national characteristic cannot be exaggerated. It diminishes poverty, drunkenness, gambling and vice of every kind. It gives us healthier bodies, longer lives, keener minds, better laws, finer schools, even braver soldiers, more patriotic citizens, and resources to protect against aggression from without and from dissensions within the magnificent fabric of the American republic."

In Trinity Church the Rev. Dr. Joseph P. McComas said: "It is well that our Government is encouraging thrift, and it is well for the Church to put this matter of saving before our people."

The Rev. Floyd S. Leach, preaching in St. Thomas's Church, said: "We must look to conservation rather than to distribution for the real solution of the problem of poverty."

PRAY FOR CHURCH CAMPAIGN.

Invocation Approved by Dying Bishop Read to Episcopalians.

At both morning and evening services in every Protestant Episcopal Church in the New York Diocese yesterday, the rectors offered a prayer in behalf of the Every Name Canvass that is being conducted in the diocese. The prayer was written by Suffragan Bishop Charles Sumner Burch at the request of Bishop Greer. It was taken to the Bishop as he lay on his death bed in St. Luke's Hospital. With only a typographical change, the Bishop approved the invocation and urged that it be printed and sent to all the churches in the diocese. Bishop Greer's death delayed the final printing, but engraved on small cards the prayer was sent to all churches of the diocese in time for services yesterday morning. With a copy in the hands of every communicant, the invocation was read from the pulpit of every church in the diocese as a plea for the cause and a tribute to the memory of the departed leader. The prayer is as follows:

> Stir up, we beseech Thee, Almighty God, the wills of Thy people throughout this diocese, that they may, with a spirit of true consecration, enter upon the united effort through the Every Name Campaign to lengthen the cords and strengthen the stakes of Thy Kingdom here at home and throughout the world. Grant to the workers in full measure the help of Thy Holy Spirit; fire their hearts with purpose and zeal; sustain the efforts of bishops and other clergy and all the devoted men and women who shall engage in this worthy task, that they may be filled with a more real appreciation of their true fellowship in Christ and a true apprehension of the responsibility facing them to come closer to Thee and to each other in a common venture for Christ and His Church. We ask all in the name of Him who went about doing good to all men. Amen!

The Rev. Dr. Charles L. Slattery, rector of Grace Church, in explaining the Every Name Canvass said:

"The laymen of the Diocese of New York, carefully organized, are endeavoring, through the co-operation of the various rectors, to reach every member of the Episcopal Church in the diocese. Their aim is to inform these individuals of the work for which each parish is responsible, that there will be both the willingness and the desire to co-operate by gifts and by personal service. Too much of this work hitherto has been left to the clergy. It is a movement full of hope and courage that the laymen should lead in this movement of securing the help of every one who counts himself a member of the Episcopal Church. It promises to be a genuine advance, and every one who cares about the Church should inform himself of the enterprise, and when the time comes for enlistment loyally do his share."

NEWPORT BARS GAMBLING.

Police Chief Halts Preparations for Opening a Bath Road Place.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 22.—Games of chance for the Summer will have no place in Newport, as might have been assumed from the brief but telling effect of the call of Chief of Police Tobin to a place on Bath Road very recently, which from outward appearances was about ready to clean off tables and prepare for the season. There is no playing of chance games over the green or other colored tables this season.

With the Clambake Club in commission a number of dinners and luncheons were given there Saturday and Sunday. Former Lieutenant Preston Gibson of the U. S. M. C., who is now on the reserve list of officers, was among those entertaining Saturday. Reginald C. Vanderbilt and other officers of the club were there, including Treasurer Walter S. Andrews, who is managing the club this season. Mr. and Mrs. Royal Phelps Carroll, Commodore and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, and Mrs. Rogers Pratt were among the entertainers with dinners.

Bishop James De Wolf Perry of Rhode Island paid his annual visitation to Trinity Church today, administering the rite of confirmation upon a class of thirty, whom he later addressed.

Colonel and Mrs. George L. Hamilton of Cincinnati have rented the Edgar cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Allen Poe of Baltimore are at their Jamestown cottage. Rear Admiral and Mrs. George Remey of Washington are at the Bayview Hotel.

MANY MOURN FOR DEVERY.

Stream of Friends Pass Body of Ex-Police Chief in Far Rockaway.

From early morning until after sundown, a steady stream of sorrowing friends viewed the body of William S. Devery, "Big Bill" Devery, as he was known at his home in Mott Avenue, Far Rockaway, yesterday. The former Chief of Police died suddenly Friday of a stroke of apoplexy.

During the afternoon so great was the throng of visitors that many had to wait their turn on the veranda of the home. Many of those who called were residents of Far Rockaway, but there were also many from the city. A flood of messages of condolence from friends and acquaintances in New York and other parts of the country have been received by Mrs. Devery and her two daughters.

At a late hour last night the list of pallbearers had not been completed, and it was said by those in charge of the funeral arrangements that the list will be made up some time today. The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Church of St. Mary, Star of the Sea at Far Rockaway, conducted by Father John Farrell of the church. An honor guard from the New York Police Department will escort the body to the grave in Calvary Cemetery.

Lieut. A. P. Guttzeit Dies of Wounds

Lieutenant Arthur P. Guttzeit, formerly of Company A, 106th Infantry, died yesterday morning in the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, Brooklyn, as the result of wounds received in action in France on Oct. 18, 1918. He was 24 years old and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Paul Guttzeit of 126 Clarkson Street, Brooklyn. Lieutenant Guttzeit enlisted in October, 1916, and saw service on the border, going to France with his company in May, 1918. He went through several important battles before he was wounded. After spending some time in hospitals in France and England, he was brought to New York on Dec. 30 last, and was discharged from the hospital on May 3. Taken suddenly ill last Monday, as a result of the wounds, he was operated on Wednesday and again on Friday in a hope of saving his life. Before entering the service Lieutenant Guttzeit was with the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, 212 Fifth Avenue.

Abraham Marks.

Abraham Marks, 82 years old, who, before his retirement in 1895, was well known in the manufacturing business here, died Saturday at his home, 1,925 Madison Avenue. In 1860, he and his brother began the manufacture of caps under the firm name of Marks Brothers. Twenty years later he became a member of the firm of A. Friedlender & Co., cloak manufacturers.

Obituary Notes.

Mrs. EMMA SWAN, 81 years old, died Friday in the Hotel Belnord. She was the widow of Joseph Swan, a New York merchant, and was a member of a number of Hebrew charitable organizations.

HARRY DEEVES of 306 West Eighty-second Street, of Richard Deeves & Son, builders, died Saturday in Long Branch, N. J. A nervous disorder following pneumonia was the cause of death.

KATHERINE HERBERT, an actress, who had been seen in productions with her husband, Joseph Herbert, Jr., died yesterday at the Misericordia Hospital, at the age of 27. Her home was at the Joyce Hotel, 31 West Seventy-second Street.

Dr. THOMAS H. TOMLINSON, 82 years old, died yesterday at his home in Plainfield, N. J., of pneumonia.

HENRY WRAGE, 78 years old, a retired contractor, dropped dead yesterday of heart disease at his home in Dunellen, N. J.

WILLIAM V. H. BRIGHT, for three years Grand Secretary and Treasurer of the Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks, died Saturday at a sanitarium in Loomis, N. Y., of tuberculosis in his thirty-second year. Mr. Bright lived at 800 Cypress Avenue, the Bronx.

HYMAN ADELBERG, 46 years old, clothing merchant of Plainfield, N. J., died in the Muhlenberg Hospital there last night.

Mrs. ROSA E. SPANG, widow of Charles H. Spang, a steel manufacturer of Pittsburgh and New York, died yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria of heart disease, at the age of 76 years. Mr. Spang died at the Waldorf-Astoria Feb. 15, last, in his eighty-fourth year, leaving an estate valued at $1,525,000, most of which, by the provisions of his will, eventually will go to charity.

MANY SMALL INVESTORS

Shop and Factory Workers Tell of Forming $10,000 Pool to Trade in Stocks.

Assistant District Attorney Dooling stayed at his office in the Criminal Courts Building until 4 o'clock yesterday morning examining customers and the books of H. C. Loup & Co., promoters, at 50 Broad Street, and at the end of his investigation he announced that he had requested the police to find and detain the members of the firm, whom he wished to question. The members of the firm were not present on Saturday when representatives of the District Attorney's Office went to the office of Loup & Co. and had the employes and the books taken to Dooling, followed by some fifty customers of the firm with complaints against it.

"My investigation of the affairs of Loup & Co. warrant me in making a presentation of the evidence to a Grand Jury at once," said Mr. Dooling, "based on charges of bucketing of orders, forgery in the third degree, and larceny. I have ordered the police to produce the partners of the concern, H. C. Loup, Frank Taylor, who, I believe, was the real active head, and Joseph Kelsey. I wrote a letter to Taylor on Friday, directing him to come to my office on Saturday, but he ignored the request. Today I learned that two of the men have apparently left town."

For several days the District Attorney's office had been investigating complaints against Loup & Co. Some of the customers had asserted, Dooling said, that they had been unable to get delivery of stock bought or settlement of their accounts. According to the District Attorney, Loup & Co. are not members of any exchange. A score of small customers, mostly shop and factory workers, told Dooling that they had put $10,000 into a "pool" with the firm to trade in a certain oil stock.

While the local business included a number of these small investors, Dooling said the firm did a business of approximately a $1,000,000 a year, some of the largest customers being out of town.

"The books show that a Pennsylvania coal operator has an account of $125,000, and other members of his family, including a woman, had invested about as much more, making the total for this group of customers $250,000," said the Assistant District Attorney. "We have found but little assets. The concern had twenty telephones, with a group of inside and outside salesmen, but it apparently depended on its market letters to out of town customers for its largest business.

"In this connection we found lists of names of stockholders in at least six corporations, all carefully typewritten. How these names, some of them of well known and prosperous business men, got into the hands of Loup & Co. has not yet been learned. There are approximately 50,000 of these names. Our examination thus far shows that orders by customers to buy stocks outright were generally bucketed, and very few stocks were delivered to purchasers."

ELECTRIC SERVICE

An investment that pays for itself at once

BUILDINGS were once divided in these two classes—the brick and the frame. Today, Manhattan classes them differently—those wired for electric service and those unwired.

Electric service is modern. All new buildings are equipped with it. Therefore, it has come to be synonymous with all that is new and up-to-date. The very atmosphere which it creates is one of cleanliness and progress.

A building being worth what a buyer will pay for it, and a buyer normally basing his judgment on what his eyes tell him — the shrewd owner gives his building a bright new coat of paint before he puts it on the market. He is thereby able to sell at an increase of price which pays for the paint many times over.

What paint does for the outside of a building, electric service will do for the inside. Electric fixtures have an air of class about them. Beautiful lighting effects are made possible and rooms can be decorated in light cheerful colors.

And it is an improvement so easily made. The entire building can be wired without causing one cent of expense for repairs or redecoration. There is no fuss or muss; the wire-man is a "dirtless" workman.

And now—as to the expense. It is almost certain to cost less than you expect. A postal-card or telephone request (Stuyvesant 4980) will bring our representative to you. He will tell you how inexpensively and easily your property can be electrified. And if the investment involves a greater immediate expenditure than is convenient, we may perhaps be able to arrange terms.

MAJOR EULOGIZED WIFE IN HIS WILL

Baird Wrote That She Was the Most Perfect Character He Had Ever Known.

FELT LOSS OF HER COUNSEL

Expressed Hope That His Battalion Would Do Full Credit to the Country's Service.

Major Charles Gamble Baird of 2,366 Jamaica Avenue, Richmond Hill, Queens, who was killed in action in France, devoted a considerable portion of his will to a eulogy of his wife, whom he described as "the most perfect woman I ever saw, knew, or heard of." The will, disposing of an estate valued at about $20,000, has just been filed for probate with Surrogate Daniel Noble, at Jamaica. The entire estate is left to the widow, Gerezmenyhert Baird, and she is appointed executrix.

Major Baird was killed on April 28, 1918. He obtained his commission in a regiment of engineers after obtaining leave of absence from the Pennsylvania Railroad, where he had for years been connected with the engineering department. He executed his will on Dec. 18, 1917, shortly before sailing for France. He also pays a tribute in his will to his son, Charles, who was recently discharged after serving in France as a First Lieutenant.

"At this time, I want to say to the world that my wife, in my estimation, is the most perfect woman I ever saw, heard or knew of," the will reads. "She is endowed with marvelous courage, a very strong will and an intensely high ideal of honor. Her love has never at any time diminished, but has grown always until I feel it has reached a point that can reasonably be considered the acme of perfect love. I am the richest of men, in that I am blessed with the truest, most honorable, and loving wife in the world."

Regarding his enlistment, Major Baird wrote in his will:

"I feel that in going into the army I am performing a service that every red-blooded American should do in behalf of his country, and the loss of my wife's good counsel and pleasant association is, I feel, as great a sacrifice as any man could make. I live in the hope that my battalion and myself will be able to do full credit in the service of our country and to the Pennsylvania Railroad, from which company most of the men enlisted."

Major Baird also took occasion to say in his will that he had never broken any pledge or promise to his wife, nor had he ever deceived or told her a falsehood, "except as were necessary to buy her presents and to pleasantly surprise and cheer her."

MEDICINE KEEPS MOVING.

But It Shows No Signs of Discarding Herbal Remedies.

The Philadelphia Ledger told recently of the herbal remedies current a century ago, mentioning such things as mullein burdock, bayberry and the like, and, at the close, indicated its thankfulness that these things have been displaced by tablets generally made from some formula first written in Germany.

Doubtless the world has made progress, but in reflecting upon the matter one must remember that the colonial families are still well represented, which would indicate that not all of the children born in the eighteenth century filled early graves because of the medicines of those days. Boneset and mullein, comfrey and calamus, sage and smartweed were not deadly at any rate, and if they were administered and swallowed with faith in their curative properties they may have been as effective as the most recent of coal-tar derivatives.

These herbs, roots and berries were leagues in advance of the "medicines" they displayed. Dr. Benjamin Rush was one of the lights of his day and generation, but few men now would survive the doses of jalap and opium that he prescribed for yellow fever, yet both of these drugs are cleanly compared with those administered by his predecessors. Powdered mummy, powdered bones of humans, distilled ants, most of the minerals, and the viscera of animals and reptiles were administered to mankind in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and mankind survived these also.

The herbs marked a distinct advance over those remedies and they survive, even holding their own through the era of proprietary medicines, now declining to some extent. A neighboring town ships sculellaria by the bale to New York and we assume there is still a demand for dandelion root, both facts indicating that the older types of medicines are not forgotten. Considering the fact that no drug, so far as we know, boasts the antiquity of aloes, we fancy that the herbs will be in demand for a long time and will thus demonstrate that the people of the eighteenth century were not wholly ignorant.—Hartford Conrant.

FIRST POLISH ENVOY WELCOMED TO CITY

1,000 ATTEND RECEPTION

Fellow-Countryman Cites Wish for Close Relations Between America and Poland.

Almost 1,000 Poles attended a reception in the ballroom of the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday to the new Polish Consul General to the United States, K. Buszczynski. The affair was under the direction of the Economic and Social Union of Polish Workingmen and Farmers in America, of which G. J. Sosnowski is the President.

Besides members of the organization and their friends, there were present eight officers of the volunteer army of the Polish Republic, who have come to this country to buy horses for the Polish Army.

Mr. Sosnowski welcomed the new envoy on behalf of the Poles in this city and read letters of greeting from Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan amid applause and shouting. Governor Smith wrote in part:

"The Governor trusts that you will extend to the new Consul General of the Republic of Poland his heartiest congratulations and best wishes for success."

"I heartily congratulate Mr. Buszczynski on his appointment as the first official representative of the new Polish nation to this city, and I congratulate his great country on her new found liberty. With her independence won, I am sure a happy and prosperous future awaits her.

"To Mr. Buszczynski I extend on behalf of the City of New York warmest greetings, and I wish to assure him that the City Government will lend every assistance possible to make his sojourn among us pleasant and successful."

After reading the messages Mr. Sosnowski said: "We should see the beginning of harmonious and friendly relations between our native country and the country of our adoption.

"We have been waiting for several months with impatience," he continued, "the arrival of the man whom we are honoring today. We welcome him and the Consular Mission with open hearts, with faith and hope that his guardianship will be kind, his care for our interests just.

"We have no doubt that under his leadership and with the help of the mission accompanying him Polish enterprise will develop prosperously. Commerce will flourish, friendly connections will be made, and the affairs of immigrants will be regulated. The Polish workingman will have in him a guardian, the Polish merchant, financier and manufacturer an adviser, and the Polish citizen his own spokesman. Poles! At last we are free citizens of free Poland! At last we have our own first Polish representative in the person of Mr. Buszczynski."

The Consul, speaking in Polish, said he appreciated the welcome given by the city and State and by his fellow countrymen. He praised America and the Allies for making possible a free Poland.

The military mission was headed by Colonel Francis Kaczkowski. It included Captain W. Pilipowicz, Kasimir Eglpe, Richard Chelmicki, Szwarc Wieslaw, John Szpakowicz, K. Fanski, and L. Kwiatkiowski.

NO CAUSE FOR REVOLUTION.

Some Observations on a Recent Remark of Mr. Debs.

"I enter the prison a flaming revolutionist," said Eugene Debs, erstwhile Socialist presidential candidate. If that is the case, we will have to readjust our feelings. We felt sorry that he had to go to prison. Now we are glad. We do not want "flaming revolutionists" in our beloved land. We want constructive evolutionists. We don't want reforms with flames and revolution, but with love and evolution.

Where there is freedom of the ballot, there is no need of revolution. The majority rules, and the minority have no right to revolution on that account. Conditions are in some ways wrong. They must be changed. It is being done gradually though slowly. Things that ten years ago sounded radical, yea, utopian, are today law. Therefore blood and sabotage is not needed. With flaming revolutionists in jail, our children will be protected, and we can constructively build a better land for them.

The moderate, steadily advancing laboring man will rule America in the future, if he steers clear of flaming revolutionists. Debs stands convicted by his own words.—B. E. Bergesen in Lutheran Messenger.

ESSEX MOTOR CARS

Join The Half Million

Used In 3000 Cities, Its Admirers Are Now Legion

Who Praise The Essex

The Essex is now known in more than three thousand towns and cities.

Deliveries of new cars approximate a hundred a day.

Thousands, through demonstrations made by dealers and rides with friends, are daily learning the qualities that account for Essex popularity.

Their knowledge, like those who have not yet ridden in the Essex was limited to hearsay. But their impressions were most favorable because of what others had told them.

Won't You Too Join Its Army?

You too, will volunteer your endorsement, we are sure, if you will but ride in the Essex.

It has never failed. Our estimate is that more than half a million have ridden in it and are telling their friends about the Essex.

Such praise is not misplaced. We don't believe it greater than the car deserves. But that you will be able to judge after you have ridden in the Essex.

Points Others Speak Of

Note how motor car talk quickly turns to the Essex.

When light, cheap cars are spoken of their qualities are usually compared to the Essex. Then someone says, "But the Essex also has_____" and from then on Essex qualities are compared to large costly cars.

It isn't likely that anyone will say any light similarly priced car approaches the value of the Essex.

In performance, for instance you won't hear it classed with any but the most powerful.

And so with its riding qualities, which are invariably compared to high priced large cars.

So is the detail of finish and beauty judged by such standards.

Comparison with other light weight moderate priced cars can be made only with their respective first and operating costs.

Can You Resist The Invitation?

We hope you won't delay in accepting our invitation to ride in the Essex.

The result, we think, will be your leaving an order to be filled as soon as possible. We know you will help spread the news about the Essex, for it must inspire you with the same admiration others voice for it.

WILL EXTEND AIR MAIL WESTWARD

WILL CUT TIME TO COAST

Saving of 12 to 24 Hours Is Expected in Forwarding Business Correspondence.

PLAN EN ROUTE DELIVERY

Fliers May Exchange Sacks in Air or Drop Them on Ground or Buildings.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Announcement was made tonight by Otto Praeger, Second Assistant Postmaster General, that the air mail service will be extended to Omaha and St. Louis from Chicago next Fall and that experiments are now being conducted with a view to making it possible for mail planes to deliver and receive mail bags while in flight. The extension of the service to Omaha and St. Louis will shorten the business correspondence time between the Atlantic and Pacific Coast by from twelve to twenty-four hours. The decision to extend the service from Chicago to the West is a logical corollary to the results so far obtained on the air mail route between Cleveland and Chicago.

"The Department," said Mr. Praeger, in his statement, "is able to state that experiments are now being carried on looking toward the delivery and taking aboard of mail bags while the airplane is in flight. It was not so many years since it was thought remarkable for a fast steam train to accomplish this feat. It is now regarded as possible for the lightly loaded 'ships'—those carrying 1,000 pounds of mail or less—to come close to earth and snatch bags from specially prepared apparatus.

"In the case of the large multimotored 'ships,' for which the department will shortly let bids, no attempt will be made to come near the ground, but a scheme is proposed for dropping mail and possibly taking on mail from the roofs of buildings. If this proves practicable, it will be possible on the New York-Washington route to make nonstop runs, serving both Philadelphia and Baltimore and eliminating fifteen minutes at each place.

"Another development which it is now possible to announce is the construction of fireproof walls between the mail compartments and the engine and the gas tank. A fireproof, air-tight bag exactly the size of the compartment will be installed and within this a second fireproof bag containing the mail pouch. Tests have demonstrated that the danger of the destruction of mail by fire is practically eliminated by this method.

The Postoffice Department's plans for the extension of the air mail service toward the Pacific Coast and to the Gulf Coast and Panama will be developed as rapidly as this can be done with the appropriations available.

The Cleveland-Chicago Service.

The success of the air mail routes from Washington to Philadelphia and New York, from New York to Cleveland, and Cleveland to Chicago, have more than exceeded the expectations of the department. It has been demonstrated that the planes are able to operate, Winter and Summer, in all kinds of weather and that the service is paying for itself. The revenue from the service between New York and Washington during the first year was $159,700. The saving in railway transportation was $2,264, making total revenue and saving $161,964. The cost of operation was $137,900, and the loss of a standard plane, less salvage of useful parts, was $4,961, making the total cost of operation $142,861. The surplus was $19,103. More than 152,000 miles were traveled by the air mail planes during the year and 193,021 pounds of mail was carried.

The recently established service between Cleveland and Chicago has enabled the department to do away with one mail distribution car each way between those two cities, and this is declared by Mr. Praeger to mean an annual saving of $52,000, while at the same time releasing railway mail cars for use elsewhere.

"Reports show," said Mr. Praeger, in an analysis of results achieved on the Cleveland-Chicago route, "that fifty-eight consecutive trips of 325 miles each have been made between Chicago and Cleveland without delays, without forced landings, and without engine trouble. These flights have been made in weather which, a short time ago, would have been regarded as prohibitive. Each day, each way, the 'ships' carried 400 pounds of letter mail. As letters range from forty to forty-five to the pound, this means that 16,000 were transported on each trip.

"Notwithstanding the inclement weather and the heavy loads the postal planes, which are rebuilt L. W. F.-de Havilands equipped with Liberty motors, maintained an average speed of 98.5 miles an hour. On one occasion, when a squall prevailed throughout the Lake region and was so severe as to paralyze shipping in Chicago Harbor, the mail plane reached Chicago on time and made a perfect landing on the Postal-Army Field in Grant Park.

"On another occasion a successful trip was made notwithstanding heavy rains which flooded the field at Bryan, Ohio, to a depth of a foot. On numerous trips fogs, which interfere greatly with both land and water traffic, failed even to delay the air mail. The reason was that engine and plane performed faultlessly and that the pilot, in addition to knowing his course, was a competent navigator.

Delivery Advanced Sixteen Hours.

"Twelve of the L. W. F.-de Havilands are in the Cleveland service, four being stationed at each terminal and four at Bryan. The service shows some interesting time results. Short as this link is, in comparison with a transcontinental line, Pacific Coast mail is even now advanced sixteen hours to Boston and New England points. The reason is that, by speeding up a few hours at a vital point, the mail reaches its destination in time for afternoon delivery instead of the following morning. Pacific Coast mail routed via the airplane link is delivered in New York in the morning instead of in the afternoon.

"West-bound a similar saving is achieved by taking the mail from the 7 o'clock A. M. express train in Cleveland, transferring to the postal plane, and carrying it on to Chicago at almost double the speed of steam transportation.

"From now on the mail planes will leave Chicago for the East at 2:30 o'clock P. M. It was found that 151 great business concerns sent special messenger mail each noon in an effort to catch the two fast mail trains to the Atlantic seaboard. This meant that much of the correspondence had to be completed the night previous. The 2:30 o'clock airplane service means that often eight hours to an entire day is saved, and even in the case of the special messenger delivery to the train from two and a half to three hours are saved. Incidentally, the ability of the aerial mail to land at and take off from Grant Park, which is in the very heart of Chicago, is further evidence of the need for landing fields within the cities. Then complete advantage is taken of quick transportation offered by the airplane.

"The mails are constantly growing heavier, and it is a problem to find sufficient rail equipment. Satisfactory operation of the air mail between Cleveland and Chicago has thus been the means of relieving rail congestion, and one distributing car each way, each day, has been cut from that division. Distribution of airplane mail is done in the Post Office. This means that $52,000 yearly is saved, while at the same time rail equipment is released for service elsewhere and mail expedited."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 22.—The daily aerial service between Folkestone and Cologne is proving very successful. When the service was instituted on March 1, four airplanes carried between them twenty-five bags of mail, but the mail has so greatly increased since then that it has reached a grand total of 2,276 outward and 386 inward bags.

For three months correspondence leaving Cologne one morning has been delivered in all parts of England and Wales from Folkestone by the first delivery the following morning.

R-34 IN WAR TRIM IN GERMAN FLIGHT

Guns Ready as She Flew Low Over Wilhelmshaven, Kiel and Hamburg.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 22.—An Edinburgh correspondent telegraphed last night that the R-34, which returned to her moorings early yesterday morning, carried out a round trip from East Fortune to the Baltic and back, a distance of 2,000 miles.

The airship left the aerodrome at East Fortune at 6 o'clock on Tuesday night, proceeded eastward over North Berwick, and thence across the North Sea and past the Island of Heligoland. She then skirted the German coast and passed over Wilshelmshaven, Friedrichshaven, the Kiel Canal, and Hamburg. She then cruised over the Southern Baltic.

The R-34 flew at a low altitude over the German northwestern territory, and must have been plainly visible to the Germans. It is definitely stated that the dirigible confined her cruise to the German coast line and coast towns and did not visit Berlin.

During the whole of her flight the R-34 was in wireless communication, and her long range apparatus, which had a thorough test, gave the most satisfying results. In fact, the whole mechanism of the airship, which had a severe trial, worked magnificently. The staying power of the craft was all the more remarkably demonstrated by the fact that during her homeward journey she was battling against a very strong westerly wind for twenty hours.

The opinion was also expressed that the magnificent result shown by the R-34 during this demonstration over the German coast showed that the Atlantic flight would easily be accomplished.

The airship was rapidly placed on a war footing before she was ordered to the German coast, and while no bombs were carried, Lewis and Vickers guns were mounted on the cars and on the roof.

BIG AIRPLANE LINEN DEAL STIRS BRITISH

Parliament Expected to Ask for Explanation of 40,000,000 Yards Sale.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 22.—The Government sale of 40,000,000 yards of airplane linen to Leonard Martin caused much discussion, and no doubt when Parliament meets the Government will be pressed hard for the fullest information. In some quarters it is assumed that there is a big syndicate of financiers behind Martin and that it is hoped to export most of the material. Another suggestion is that Martin is acting on behalf of the Government, which is thus creating a corner in linen.

The Belfast linen manufacturers who profess to be unconcerned about the deal say that the airplane linen is unsuitable for most articles usually made of linen, that Martin is bound to lose heavily in the transaction, and that he made a bad bargain. At the same time they complain that the Government has not dealt fairly with them.

The Daily News, in giving the Government's view of the transaction, points out that, when, in 1917, a greatly enhanced program of airplane construction was decided on, the Government was faced with the difficulty of increasing its output of airplane linen, which then was about 150,000 yards a month, the price paid being 4 shillings a yard. The Government took drastic measures to develop the growth of flax in England and Ireland, with the result that at the date of the armistice the linen output had increased to 7,000,000 yards a month. The cessation of hostilities threw 50,000,000 yards of the fabric on the Government's hands. The disposal board set up by the Government tried to induce the linen trade to buy back the linen, but the Belfast manufacturers refused to offer more than a shilling a yard. They did, afterward, come forward with a counterproposal for a profit-sharing scheme with the Government under which they would have borne 25 per cent. of any loss on sales below 13 pence a yard and would have taken 25 per cent. of any profit on sales over 13 pence a yard. This offer was refused by the disposal board in the interests of the taxpayers, it being pointed out that if it had been accepted and if the linen had afterward been sold by the trade merely at the price now paid by Martin, which is 20 pence a yard, the Belfast traders would have netted over $1,500,000 of the money now paid to the Government.

Moreover, under the terms of the Belfast proposal, there was no guarantee that a single yard would be sold, and at best the transaction would have been a very prolonged one. The trade had intended that the airplane linen should be disposed of side by side with their own piece products.

ALLIANCE AIRPLANE GIVES UP FLIGHT

BOTH DETERMINED TO CROSS

Handley-Page Crew Again Delayed by Bad Weather, Fearful Lest Raynham Starts First.

Special to The New York Times.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., June 22.—The Alliance Airplane Company, Limited, of England, which had completed all preparations for sending its biplane Seabird to Newfoundland to attempt the ocean crossing has canceled all arrangements and withdrawn its entry. Word of this was received from the firm by its advance representative, Lieutenant Williams, at St. John's today.

He was expecting the Seabird within two weeks and had contracted for using the aerodrome from which the Vickers-Vimy "hopped off" on its successful crossing. The Seabird is a single engined plane, fitted with a 450 horse power Napier Lion engine, and, at least theoretically, was the fastest of the entries for the Daily Mail prize. The cancellation of the Alliance entry so soon after the withdrawal of the Boulton & Paul concern, which had announced the intention of sending its biplane here, has been received by the members of the expeditions still here—the Handley-Page men and Raynham and his navigator, Lieutenant Biddlecombe, who are to fly the Martinsyde biplane from St. John's—as an indication that the British public has lost interest in this great aeronautic feat, now that it has once been done.

Neither the Handley-Page men nor Raynham, who was undaunted when his first attempt resulted in a crash at starting, has weakened, however. Only orders from their firms could induce either of the expeditions to quit the field, and even such a suggestion from headquarters would be strenuously resisted. The Handley-Page crew, in fact, despite their personal feeling that a trip to America would be "good fun" and would have the merit of more novelty than another attempt at flying the Atlantic, still are determined not even to alter their destination unless forced to do so.

The Handley-Page crew learned today that The Daily Mail has withdrawn its staff correspondent. The newspaper has kept a staff man here ever since Hawker and Grieve landed early in April with their Sopwith biplane, and his withdrawal while two of the expeditions which came here because of its prize offer are yet to fly has been received with some surprise by the members of these two expeditions. Only one other English newspaper has had a staff correspondent in Newfoundland, though the Dominion is just as accessible from London as from New York. This newspaper kept its man in Newfoundland only a few weeks, and the British aviators frequently have been heard to comment upon the comparative apathy displayed by the British press toward the contest among the land planes which, from start to finish, has been purely a British venture, while on the other hand they have been gratified by the keen interest maintained by American newspapers, which they have interpreted as indicative of a similar eagerness on the part of the American public.

They have commented often upon the fact that at most there have been only two British correspondents here, while the American newspapers and press associations have had as many as seven staff representatives covering the flights, two of them having remained from the beginning of Hawker's venture to the present time.

The excellent weather which last night prevailed all the way across the Atlantic had broken up to such an extent when this morning's weather report reached the Handley-Page expedition that it was decided the day was unpropitious for starting the biplane on her Newfoundland to England journey.

Inclement weather at both ends of the course added to the unfavorableness of the situation, but some slight hope is entertained by the crew that they may be able to depart tomorrow.

Now that Frederick P. Raynham has taken his Martinsyde biplane from the shop where he did most of the rebuilding to his Quidi Vidi aerodrome and expects within a day or two to have finished the job of reconstruction, some uneasiness is felt by the Handley-Page crew lest he, too, beat them across, as did the Vickers-Vimy.

102 AIRPLANES DESTROYED.

Eighteen Hangars Burned at French Aerodrome at St. Cyr.

PARIS, June 22, (Associated Press.)—Fire broke out yesterday afternoon in the aerodrome at St. Cyr, destroying eighteen hangars and 102 airplanes.

An enormous amount of other damage resulted. The loss is estimated at 4,000,000 francs.

SOUGHT RELEASE 50 TIMES.

Matteawan Inmate to Argue Fifty-first Habeas Corpus Writ.

Special to The New York Times.

BEACON, June 22.—Severin DeAngelis, a prisoner in the Matteawan Criminal Insane Asylum, satisfied the authorities there today that, for a layman, he is a wonder at obtaining writs of habeas corpus.

He was before Supreme Court Justice A. H. Seeger Saturday afternoon seeking release on a writ of habeas corpus. DeAngelis had a delusion in 1907, while living in Manhattan, that the fiancée of Herman Messer, about to be married, was infatuated with him. On Messer's wedding day he went to the church and objected to the wedding, drew a revolver, fired, and tried to kill the bridegroom, but was overpowered, disarmed, and arrested. Judge Warren Foster sent him to Matteawan.

DeAngelis is a paranoiac, according to Superintendent Raymond Kieb of the asylum, who objected to his release. Judge Seeger dismissed the writ, which was the fiftieth DeAngelis had obtained in twelve years. When attendants talked to him today about his failure to secure his release DeAngelis astonished them by producing another writ. This one, issued by Justice Guy, is returnable July 5.

Death Result of Picnic Accident.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 22.—Joseph Swinnterpyn of 12 Friendship Place, this city, died today following the turning turtle of a motor truck laden with picnickers here last night. The picnic from which the truck was returning was held at Dixon's Grove by members of Grace Presbyterian Church of Montclair. The seriously injured are Mrs. Christian Scharfenburg, Mrs. W. H. Bingle, and Ernest Speedon, all of this city, who are at the Mountainside Hospital suffering from fractured skulls.

Arrest 400 British Soldier Mutineers Who, in Soviet Fashion, Voted Not to Salute

LONDON, June 22, (Associated Press.)—The mutinous conduct of troops at Sutton Camp, Surrey, which has been growing for the past ten days, culminated today in the formation of a committee by the men, and their refusal to salute or to obey orders.

This morning two battalions of troops were sent to the camp in light fighting trim and with machine gun equipment. The troops arrested 400 men, among them the ringleaders, and dispatched 1,800 other men to camps at Dover and Canterbury.

The main grievance of the men was that they were being ordered to France.

RAND SCHOOL SAFE UNDER CLOSE GUARD

Lusk Committee Expected to Get Search Warrant and Open Big Steel Box Today.

RAID CLEANUP COMPLETE

Security League Begins Nation-wide Fight Against Anarchy and Bolshevism.

Representatives of the Lusk legislative committee that is investigating Bolshevism, anarchy, and kindred movements in this State were busy yesterday going over the great mass of printed and written matter seized on Saturday afternoon, in the office of the Left Wing Section of the Socialist Party in West Twenty-ninth Street, the East Fourth Street headquarters of the I. W. W., and the Rand School of Social Science in Fifteenth Street, near Fifth Avenue.

State agents were on guard, yesterday, in the Rand School Building, seeing to it that the big steel safe in the office of the corporation that owns the building was not interfered with. Because the search warrant issued by Chief Magistrate McAdoo did not mention the safe those in charge have refused to open it. A new warrant for the search of the safe will probably be sought today and if it is issued it was said at the Rand School that it would no doubt be opened and everything in it submitted to the inspection of representatives of the Lusk committee.

It is expected that the Rand School authorities will take legal action today to recover the letters and office papers seized by the State. It is not believed that similar action will be taken by the I. W. W. or the Left Wing Socialist Party organization. Several documents seized in the I. W. W. offices are already the subject of further investigation by the State, one of the documents being in Russian and referring, according to one of the State agents who participated in the raid, to a recent strike at Ansonia, Conn. The stamped envelopes, which bore the forged address of J. P. Morgan & Co. are also being looked into, not only by the State, but also by agents of the Federal Government. The authorities want to discover if possible the names of all other firms or individuals that have been forged on envelopes for the purpose of deceiving the postal authorities or those to whom the letters were addressed. This phase of the investigation is of special interest because the name of a prominent New York firm was forged on the wrappers in which the mail bombs of early May were mailed.

At the I. W. W. headquarters several lesser junior officials of the local organization were found yesterday afternoon. They said the place has been "well cleaned out," and that about the only thing left by the raiding party was the office furniture. The appearance of the offices justified that statement. The office of the Left Wing Socialists was closed, but it is known that practically every printed or written thing was seized and carted away for the inspection of the Lusk committee.

Algernon Lee, Educational Director of the Rand School of Social Science, visited the raided offices yesterday afternoon. Mr. Lee described the raid on the school as "amusing and also annoying," and said that the investigators would find nothing illegal in the papers and books taken away.

"Among the books they took," said Mr. Lee, "was one entitled 'Social and Economic Forces in the United States,' by Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard University. This institution has nothing to do with any alleged plots to overthrow the Government, and I am quite sure that Mr. Stevenson, who headed the raiding party, knows that to be a fact."

The Lusk committee, it became known last night, has lost another of its translators, the latest to resign being Dr. Felicia Vexler of Columbia University, one of the official Russian language experts attached to the legislative committee. A few days after the offices of Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the unrecognized Bolshevist "envoy," were raided Dr. Allessandro H. Carasso of 190 South Oxford Street, Brooklyn, resigned. Dr. Carasso has a wife and child in Russia and his resignation came after it was announced that the State investigators had found in the archives of the Bolshevist "embassy" a list of the names of aggressive opponents of Bolshevism in this country together with a list of relatives or connections they have in Russia.

Dr. Vexler, in tendering his resignation, said he did so because he "could not do his work in connection with the raid on the Soviet Bureau with a clear conscience" and that while he did not sympathize with the Bolshevist Government of Russia, in his opinion, "Mr. Stevenson and those for whom he works are pursuing the methods of the former Czar of Russia, the methods which created Bolshevism." Dr. Vexler cited as one of his objections to the raid on Martens's offices the allegation that one of the members of the raiding party is connected with the British Secret Service.

The National Security League announced yesterday that it had practically completed the organization of the country into State units for an intensive campaign against anarchy and Bolshevism. The Joint Organization Committee is under the Chairmanship of Dr. David Jayne Hill, former Ambassador to Germany.

A Director in each State in the Union will have direct supervision of the campaign in his State, assisted by Directors in the several counties, the branches in the States of the societies associated in the Organization Committee, and the local members of the Honorary Committee. The complete list of State Directors will be made public by the Security League in a few days. The aim of the league and associated organizations in this movement is set forth in the following extract from a preliminary letter from Dr. Robert M. McElroy, Educational Director of the Security League and Secretary of the Organization Committee, to the State Directors:

"The developments of the last few months have served to emphasize the need for popular knowledge concerning American ideals of government. The Constitution is losing its hold upon the people because the people do not understand its meaning. To make that clear will require a very serious effort, but in its successful accomplishment lies the refutation of Bolshevism in America. The great patriotic associations have united in a movement to bring about a nation-wide campaign for a better popular understanding of the Constitution."

Among the members of the league's committee are Governor Smith of this State, Governor Sleeper of Michigan, Governor Allen of Kansas, Governor Goodrich of Indiana, Governor Harrington of Maryland, Henry W. Taft, Brig. Gen. Richard W. Young, ex-Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte, John M. Parker, James M. Beck, and Dr. William Roscoe Thayer.

The so-called Conference of the Young Democracy concluded a three days' convention at Rockaway Beach last night. Resolutions were adopted demanding that the blockade against Germany and Bolshevist Russia be lifted, and that pupils and teachers shall have joint control of the schools, the pupils also to have a voice in all disciplinary matters pertaining to school administration. A resolution protesting against the raid on the Rand School was also adopted.

GET ROBBER YATES, HUNTED FOR 6 YEARS

Bandit Who Escaped From Sing Sing Now Under Arrest in Kansas City.

NOTED AS A JAIL-BREAKER

Faces Long Prison Term for Stealing $37,000 from Broker Bancroft.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, June 22.—Chester Yates, bank robber, bandit, and chronic jail-breaker, who vanished from Sing Sing prison more than six years ago after serving four months of his twenty-one year sentence, is once more in custody. Yates is the desperado who bowled over Aaron Bancroft, an aged broker, and walked off with $37,000 of his money and securities at the entrance to the Produce Exchange vaults in Manhattan seven years ago. Of all the escapes in Sing Sing's history, none was so mysterious as that of Yates.

Warden Edward V. Brophy received a telegram today at Sing Sing from R. E. Phelan, Chief of Detectives at Kansas City, Mo., informing him that Yates is under arrest there. Phelan asked that a prison officer be sent for the fugitive at once. Warden Brophy, accordingly, arranged to dispatch the most careful guard in the prison service.

Yates was arrested in Kansas City for another crime under the name of Charles Shaw. From a Sing Sing photograph and Bertillon card sent out by the former Warden, John S. Kennedy, the police recognized the prisoner as Yates, for whom the Sing Sing authorities and police have been scouring the country since he escaped on Dec. 18, 1912.

Yates is an expert in the art of getting out of handcuffs, cells, and prisons. He was an associate of Reynolds Forsbrey, the desperado who escaped from the Tombs, Sing Sing, Clinton, and, lastly, from Auburn prison. In the Tombs, Yates and Forsbrey had adjoining cells. On the day Forsbrey sawed the bars there and won freedom, he also sawed the bars to liberate Yates. The guards, however, discovered the plot before Yates could follow his accomplice.

Heavy Fog Aided in Escape.

A heavy fog enveloped the prison on the morning when Yates fled from Sing Sing. It was an ideal opportunity for an escape and the late Principal Keeper Connaughton had posted extra guards outside the riverfront fence for just such an emergency. While Keeper Barnes was taking Yates's company to the messhall for breakfast, Yates disappeared. Nobody saw him go.

"Big Ben," the prison siren, roared out to the countryside the news that a convict had broken away.

In five minutes armed guards and posses of citizens, warned by the blasts of the big whistle, were searching everywhere for Yates but found no clue. Warden Kennedy's theory was that Yates had managed to get outside by going over the walls.

Yates had been in prison only four months for the Bancroft robbery. His escape recalled what Yates said, when a Deputy Sheriff was taking him to the prison. "Believe me," said Yates, "Sing Sing won't hold me for long. I'll be out before Christmas." So he was.

Nothing was heard about the escaped convict until Oct. 31, 1915, when Warden Thomas Mott Osborne received a telegram from Superintendent of Police Reynolds of New Orleans saying that Yates had been captured there. He was arrested for planning a bank robbery and was identified as the escaped convict.

Again Escapes from Custody.

Yates wept copiously, confessed his identity, and pretended he was resigned to go back to Sing Sing. But he didn't go. Twelve days late he escaped from the parish house jail. Feigning illness, he was transferred from a cell to the prison hospital. There, it is believed, a woman smuggled a saw to him. With the saw he removed a window bar and squeezed through an opening only six by thirteen inches in dimensions. By a sheer drop he landed on the coping of the prison wall two stories below, ran along the top, leaped to the sidewalk, and bounded into a waiting taxicab. It sped off, and nothing more was seen of Yates by the authorities until the police in Kansas City got him. The Sing Sing attendants now fear that he may escape from the Kansas City lockup or while he is in transit east to his old quarters.

The Bancroft robbery, on March 2, 1912, created a sensation. Mr. Bancroft was walking through the dimly lighted passageway to the Produce Exchange vaults to deposit his large envelope, with the money and securities contained therein, late that afternoon. Yates and a companion, Charles Ross, bumped into the old man with such force that he fell on the floor, his cane flying in one direction, the envelope in another.

With apologies, Yates bent over and helped Mr. Bancroft to his feet. Then the criminal picked up the old man's cane and then the envelope and handed them to him. Still apologizing, Yates and his companion bowed their way out.

By a quick move Yates had tossed the broker's envelope under his own overcoat and given him another, which resembled it but was stuffed with newspaper clippings. Mr. Bancroft never noticed the substitution.

Two days later he went to the vault and was astounded to discover that the apologetic strangers had cleverly robbed him. Yates was arrested after some time and tried and convicted.

Four Followers of Lenin Locked Up in Passaic.

PASSAIC, N. J., June 22.—Four New York radicals who participated in a meeting in a hall at 96 President Street were arrested tonight when the meeting was raided by Chief of Police Benjamin Turner and members of his staff. The New Yorkers, held on suspicion pending an investigation by the New York police, were brought to headquarters with twenty-one local men, who were also at the meeting. They gave their names as Frank Rack, 305 West Forty-eighth Street; Nathan Bresech, 540 Tenth Avenue; Joseph Svanich, 408 West Twenty-second Street, and Benedict Medish of 501 West Fifty-first Street.

The men said they came here to organize a Socialist Labor Party in this city. One of the four was on the platform addressing the meeting in Russian, according to Chief Turner, when he entered with his men.

"Do you believe in what Lenin and Trotzky say they believe in?" they were asked by the Chief, and when all four answered that they did he ordered a charge of "suspicious persons" against them and communicated with the New York police.

DR. PESSOA VISITS WASHINGTON'S TOMB

HIS TRIBUTE TO WASHINGTON

"First in Hearts of All Who Love Liberty and Democracy"—Sees Dom Pedro Tree.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, President-elect of Brazil, paid tribute today to George Washington as "first in the hearts of all those who love liberty and democracy." In a touching ceremony before the tomb of Washington, at Mount Vernon, the Chief Executive-elect of Brazil acknowledged the debt of his country and the world to the first President of the United States. Accompanied by his daughter, he entered the mausoleum, and, handing to her a wreath of laurel and flowers, bade her place it upon the marble sarcophagus.

Dr. Pessoa and a party of 175 Brazilian and United States officials were the guests of Secretary Daniels on the Presidential yacht Mayflower on the trip down the Potomac to Mount Vernon. On arrival there the party proceeded to the tomb of Washington, where Secretary Daniels presented Governor Westmoreland Davis of Virginia, who welcomed the Brazilian President-elect to the State. Dr. Pessoa acknowledged the welcome in a few words, and then, turning to the remainder of the party, said:

"I cannot but be most moved on nearing this monument. As a General, Washington founded and, as a statesman, consolidated the most beautiful democratic structure of the world. The spirit of his achievement illuminated the blessed haloes, the aspirations of all the peoples of America. Washington is not only the first in the hearts of his countrymen, he is also the first in the hearts of all those who love liberty and democracy."

The ceremony of laying the wreath upon the sarcophagus followed. As the other members of the party turned to visit the Washington mansion, Dr. Pessoa was left alone for a moment, facing the ivy-clad tomb. With his face shaded by his hand, he looked steadily at the tomb for an instant, then lowered his eyes and, showing deep emotion, turned away to join Secretary Daniels and Governor Davis.

Dr. Pessoa, when shown the elm tree planted by Dom Pedro, the last emperor of Brazil, in 1876, asked what kind of a tree it was. When he was told that the tree would live for many more years, he remarked:

"That is good. The shadow of a tree planted by a Brazilian will fall upon this sacred spot for centuries, I hope."

The President-elect then called to his wife and daughter and pointed out the tree, and soon they, with the other Brazilians of the party, were talking animatedly about it.

After a visit to the home of Washington the party visited the grounds. Mrs. Pessoa was presented with a bouquet of flowers from the gardens.

Secretary Daniels, upon reaching the Mayflower for the return trip, was handed an Associated Press dispatch from Berlin announcing the decision of the German National Assembly to sign the Peace Treaty. The dispatch, which had been transmitted through the Navy Department by wireless to the Mayflower, was shown first by the Secretary to Dr. Pessoa, who declared that the news was "very gratifying." The dispatch then was read by Mr. Daniels to other members of the party.

The Brazilian guests were impressed by the ceremony of sounding taps and dressing the ship as the Mayflower approached Mount Vernon and again as it left. Dr. Pessoa stood at attention, with his wife and daughter by the side of Secretary and Mrs. Daniels during the ceremony.

Among the guests were the staff of the Brazilian Embassy and Dr. Pessoa's entire party, Vice President Marshall, Acting Secretary of State Polk, Assistant Secretary of State William Phillips, Third Assistant Secretary of State Long, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, Admiral Benson, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Rowe, Director General Barrett of the Pan-American Union, and other high officials.

The Brazilian President-elect tomorrow will be the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Brazilian Embassy at the Pan-American Union, and will be entertained at dinner by Secretary Glass.

FIVE DIE IN AUTO WRECKS.

Seven Seriously Injured on Watertown-West Carthage Road.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., June 22.—Five persons were killed and seven seriously injured in two automobile accidents, one of which occurred late last night and one early this morning, on the Watertown-West Carthage road, about ten miles from this city.

Mrs. John Wood, 70, of River Gate; Arthur Reese, 21, of this city; Harold Irish, 10, and Leona Irish, 8, were killed outright when an automobile driven by Reese from the farm of Stuart L. Irish, near Copenhagen, to this city, went into a ditch and overturned.

James A. Moore, a Watertown newspaper man and sporting promoter, who went out this morning in an automobile to investigate the first accident, suffered fatal injuries when the car in which he was riding overturned near the scene of the first wreck. He died in a hospital here. Police Captain W. E. Edgehill and James Cole, a restaurant proprietor, both of Watertown, who accompanied Moore, were seriously injured.

Occupants of the first car who were injured were Stuart L. Irish, John Wood, Emma Irish, Irene Irish, and Brittina Seery.

THANKS FROM CLEMENCEAU

French Premier Cables Message to Police Honor Legion.

The Honor Legion of the New York Police Department, which recently cabled to Premier Clemenceau expressing to the Prefecture of Police of Paris the legion's "profound admiration for the magnificent conduct of the French Sergents de Ville and gendarmerie during the course of the war," made public yesterday the following cabled reply from the French Premier:

Paris, 19 June, 1919.

To Captain John H. Ayers, President of the Honor Legion of the New York Police:

Profoundly touched by the sentiments of fraternal sympathy and admiration which the Honor Legion of the New York Police have expressed in their name, as well as in that of the entire Police Department of New York, to their French comrades, I am very happy to convey the thanks of the Sergents de Ville of Paris, and of the gendarmerie of France, to the valiant phalanxes of the New York police, adding thereto my own felicitations and good wishes.

First Ocean Liner to Leave Chicago for a British Port

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—The first ocean liner from Chicago to Liverpool is scheduled to leave here Wednesday with meat. The steamer is the Lake Grandby, 4,100 tons, 261 feet long, and 43½ feet beam, the first of a fleet of fifteen vessels under construction here to be operated by the Shipping Board in service between Chicago and Great Britain by way of the Great Lakes.

To stimulate shippers to make use of the new steamers a schedule of alluring rates has been placed in operation. The Shipping Board's rate from Chicago to Liverpool is 1.25.

FOR NATIONALIZING BRITISH COAL MINES

Main Report of Commission, Signed by Justice Sankey, Asks Early Legislation.

WORKERS MAKE CONDITIONS

Object to Surrendering Strike—Owners Favor Regulation of Royalties—Fourth Report Put In.

LONDON, June 22.—Four reports of the Coal Commission, which has been considering the question of nationalization of British mines, have been published. The main report is signed by Justice Sir John Sankey. It alone recommends immediate legislation for acquisition of mines, royalties for the State, and for owners to receive just compensation. It also recommends the immediate application of local administration of mines through local, district, and national mining councils and legislation for acquiring mines after the plan has been worked for three years, with just compensation for owners. It is recommended that coal control be continued for three years.

The report of the miners' representatives generally agrees with that of Justice Sankey, but objects to provisions that would require the men to sign a contract not to combine to cease work until a question in dispute has been before appropriate councils. This report denies that the diminished output of coal is the fault of the men, and demands an immediate inquiry. The mine owners similarly request a hearing on the subject. The three representatives of the miners, Messrs. Hodges, Millis, and Smith, object to compensation being given, apart from allowances where small royalty owners are deprived of their livelihoods.

The owners' report argues that any form of nationalization would be detrimental to development of the industry and the economic life of the country. It says no action so vitally affecting the whole nation should be taken without referring the question to the community. The report recommends the establishment of a department of mines which would be assisted by a system of councils, similar to those recommended by Justice Sankey. With a view to removing the difficulties arising from royalties, this report proposes that the State acquire ownership of the coal, subject to the continuance of existing leases for at least sixty years.

The fourth report, written by Sir Arthur Drickham, recommends State acquisition of the entire mineral rights of Great Britain and the establishment of a Ministry of Mines, with representation for labor on the Directorate.

MAY NOT BE END OF WORLD.

But Prebendary Peploe Heard Solemn Crisis Would Finish 1919.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 21.—Prebendary Webb Peploe, a well-known English divine, was quoted in many papers this morning as having announced that the end of the world would come this year. The Prebendary now issues the following statement:

"I never said anything of the kind. What I did say was that I heard a gentleman say in a drawing room about a month ago that for ten years he had given himself absolutely and only to study of the great pyramid in Egypt and, irrespective of the ground of religion, he felt perfectly confident, from the intricate details of that building, that a solemn and very remarkable crisis in the world's history was to be looked for about the close of 1919. This was all I said, and I only did seek to prepare the people for the coming of the Lord."

JUNE 30 TO BE "DAISY DAY."

Anti-Drys Want Bloom Worn in Protest Against Prohibition.

The National Association Opposed to National Prohibition, 19 West Forty-fourth Street, last night issued in the name of Albert J. Wick, a contractor, of Stanhope, N. J., a request that all members of the association and "the friends of constitutional liberty throughout the United States" join in making June 30 a "Daisy Day" of protest against both constitutional and wartime prohibition.

"Since in late June the daisy, which Chaucer called the 'eye of the day,' is in bloom all over the country, Mr. Wick," says the statement, "proposes that all anti-prohibitionists, all defenders of personal liberty, all who are opposed to the natural and inherent rights of free men being restrained by constitutional amendment—women as well as men—wear on June 30, 1919, a daisy or a bunch of daisies as a protest against the revival of witch-burning tendencies in this Republic."

RED CROSS GETS RAPPARD.

Harvard and Geneva Professor Appointed League Secretary General.

GENEVA, June 21.—Professor William Rappard, Professor of Political Economy of Harvard and Geneva Universities, has been appointed Secretary General of the League of Red Cross Societies. Announcement of this fact was made at a luncheon given by Otis H. [illegible] to Professor Rappard today.

Professor Rappard said there was hard work ahead for the Red Cross League in Europe and Asia after the signing of the Peace Treaty in the wiping out of disease and the staving off of famine.

Brazil's Wreath on Roosevelt Grave.

OYSTER BAY, June 22.—More than 5,000 persons visited the tomb of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt today. Hundreds brought flowers, which were placed on the grave. Three men in the uniform of navy officers, apparently from the Republic of Brazil, placed a large wreath of orchids at the head of the grave. There was no card with the flowers and the sailors declined to say who had commissioned them to bring the wreath.

AMERICAN CREDITS TO FRANCE DELAYED

Plan to Have All Work in Harmony to Facilitate Obtaining Commodities.

IMPORTANT PARIS MEETING

RECONSTRUCTION PROBLEM

Decision on Immediate or Deferred Activity Not Yet Reached.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 21.—Important meetings are being held by French bankers, manufacturers, and importers with a Government official with a view to arranging a concert of all interests so as to provide adequate credits in America for obtaining American commodities required in France. The intention is to have all these interests work in harmony to prevent competition and confusion in obtaining credits, and provide for bringing in exports that are absolutely required. Edward Stettinius, Norman Davis, and Eugene Meyer—the last named being here as representative of the United States War Finance Board, but sitting unofficially in the French conferences—are participating in the meetings by invitation of the French Government.

Attention has been attracted in Paris by the meetings in New York, Chicago, and elsewhere to arrange for establishing the machinery for European credit purchases in the United States, and much comment is heard over the manner in which the situation is being handled. It is declared here that it requires immediate attention, and steps are being taken to bring a realization of that fact to banking and other interests at home.

The French and Italian governmental authorities recognize the necessity, it is explained, for some organization to coordinate requirements and prevent the wasteful duplication of imports. American export and financial interests cannot take up the European problem intelligently unless they receive full information as to the approximate aggregate that the British Isles, France, Italy, and Belgium—to use these countries for illustration—will need in the next year. But it is admitted that great difficulty is being encountered in making the estimates necessary.

One of the chief problems affects the requirements in the devastated regions, with particular reference to reconstruction. It has not been determined whether it would be wiser to have reconstruction proceed rapidly or slowly, and therein lies one of the nuts that those concerned have to crack. It will not be known what amount of American imports is required for the devastated areas until that determination is reached, and there is a prospect of delay in the fact that the matter of proceeding slowly or rapidly has not yet been seriously canvassed.

Another problem concerns the railroad construction in France. If France should decide to wait until her own steel mills have got into operation the work of reconstructing railroad bridges would be greatly delayed. If, on the contrary, France should decide to import bridge steel from America, even though the cost would be materially greater than if the work of reconstruction were postponed until the French mills, using French material, would be available, the method thus followed would be in accordance with the American practice of getting things running as soon as possible, no matter what the initial cost, in the practical certainty that the ultimate cost would be lower. This is one question that must be determined by France before her post-war requirements can be made known to America.

Those Frenchmen interested in the questions involved are divided. One group maintains that it would be better to have their trade revive slowly than to have it respond rapidly under Government control of imports. This group holds that, while Government control was necessary during the war, it is high time now that it was abandoned. The other group, in which those holding Government offices are included, contends that Government organization and management of industries worked excellently during the war and should be retained. According to what is said here, the advocacy by this group of a Government monopoly of petroleum would not be to the advantage of the American oil interests.

One aspect of the troublesome questions involved is that it will be necessary to grant European buyers a reasonable time to pay for American commodities in order to prevent a heavy decline in American exports. However, those in touch with the situation say it affords promise of better conditions through the gradual restoration of the normal processes of business. The failure of the French Government to provide for more adequate means of raising revenue through taxation has brought much criticism, and there is an indication that these strictures are having effect. The Matin today says the French taxation budget must provide for twenty to twenty-five billions of francs. With this addition the French Treasury, it asserted, would be in good condition. One comment heard in this connection is that such a prospect should be gratifying to conservative American opinion.

Balloon Cloth for Sale.

The Bureau of Aircraft Production of the War Department, through its New York office, 300 Madison Avenue, has sent out a trade letter announcing the release of a large quantity of balloon cloth, which is to be sold to the most satisfactory bidders between now and July 1. The items will be sold "F. O. B. U. S. Air Service Fabric Depot, Sayiesville, R. I.," and information regarding constructions, put-ups, &c., may be had by communicating with the Madison Avenue office.

YANKEES USE RED SOX AS LADDER BY MEANS OF WHICH THEY REGAIN FIRST PLACE

YANKEES TAKE LEAD BY BEATING BOSTON

WONDERFUL CATCH BY VICK

Grabs Long Hit by Ruth, Which Had Every Indication of Being Home Run—Score, 6 to 2.

Oh, look! See where those Yanks are this morning. The little rascals have climbed right p into the front seat of the American League band wagon. Chicago and Cleveland are getting a good whiff of their dust and gasoline. New York's got the right of way and any team that tries to hold up the main traffic is liable to get bumped.

Up at the Polo Grounds yesterday, with 25,000 fans lending their voices and moral support, Huggins's ambitious lads beat the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 2, thereby leaping right over the heads of Chicago and Cleveland into the lead, because Chicago was beaten by Detroit and Cleveland fell by the wayside when they were defeated by the St. Louis Browns. This is the second visit of the Yanks to first place, and if they like the perch de luxe better than they did before, maybe they will consent to stay there a while.

In thumping Babe Ruth and the Red Sox yesterday, the Yanks peeled off some of the smoothest baseball of the season. Ernie Shore was on the mound, and although he had a few troublesome moments, he pitched himself out of difficulty in a way which brought forth a storm of cheers from the populace. In the game there was a touch of every kind of baseball to stir up the enthusiasm of the onlookers, and there was one catch by Sam Vick of a mighty wallop by Babe Ruth which brought the crowd to its toes in a clamorous outburst of spontaneous glee.

Vick Makes Great Catch.

This was in the eighth inning when the score was 4 to 2 in favor of the Yanks. Frank Gilhooley, the former Yank right fielder, was elected to bat for Oscar Vitt, who has been unable to connect with Shore. Amos Strunk forced Gilhooley and along came Ruth. Vick and Bodie turned about and walked in the general direction of the fence. Vick walked so far that it looked as if he had quit the game and was hoofing it to the clubhouse. Vick, however, rested before he got to the fence. He was so far away from the home plate that it looked as if it would take a long range gun to shoot the ball out that far. That little walk which Vick took out toward the fence was the most fortunate hike he ever made.

Ruth came to the bat with Strunk at first. If Babe made a home run, it meant that the score would be tied. The crowd loudly implored Shore to strike out the Boston menace. Shore burned over a couple of shoots which were wide and out of Ruth's reach. Then came one to Ruth's liking. The Beantown mauler swung as only he can swing and the ball went on a mad, dizzy flight into right field.

The multitude gasped. You'd be willing to gamble your new straw hat that the ball would settle into the right field bleachers. All eyes were now on Vick. Sammy turned and started to close up the gap between himself and the fence. It looked as if he might have an outside chance of getting it, if the blamed ball stayed inside of the lot. But no one could expect Vick to hop into the bleachers and get it, and that's just where it was headed for.

The fans in the front row of the bleachers jumped up and extended their hands ready to grab the ball. Vick went right back almost to the fence in the furthest corner of the Coogan meadow. Then he suddenly turned, threw up his hands, and nabbed the ball. The Yanks were saved and Samuel Vick had captured one of the longest smashes ever made in that section of the ball yard.

But Strunk Was Wrong.

In the storm of cheers which followed Vick's catch, everybody forgot about Amos Strunk. Where was he? Just as soon as Ruth hit the ball, Strunk never doubted for a moment that it was one of Babe's finest little home runs, so he started for home at high speed. Vick didn't forget about Strunk and he shot the ball in. It was relayed by Pratt and Peck to Pipp at first and Strunk was doubled at first and the dangerous inning was over.

Sam Jones started to pitch for the Red Sox, but he was chased out of the game when the Yankee bats got busy in the fourth inning. Up to this point it looked like one of these unbreakable pitching battles between Shore and Jones. In the fourth Peck singled and went along on Baker's sacrifice. Duffy Lewis did a whole day's work at this moment, when he cracked a home run drive between right and centre fields, and by lively galloping raced all the way home, with Peck dusting along in front of him.

That was only a sample of what the Yankees were doing with the bat yesterday. Peckinpaugh had a perfect day at the bat, with four snappy singles, and not only that, but Peck's big day at the bat gave him a mighty boost, and this morning the Yankee Captain has the distinguished honor of leading the American League in batting. His work yesterday boosted him to .374 and sent him galloping past the great Ty Cobb for the league's batting laurels.

After Lewis's home run in the fourth, Pipp kissed good-bye to his batting slump and poled a single to right centre. He also got two other hits to prove that he had really recovered his batting eye. Pratt singled to right and pushed Pipp to second. Manager Ed Barrow then sent Frank Gilhooley out as a messenger boy to tell Sam Jones to take his hat and coat and quit. Bill James then came into the game with his six feet six inches of pitching strength. Ping Bodie whacked a grounder between first and second, the ball hitting Pratt on the foot, so he was out. Hannah died at first for the third out.

Yankees Do Some Hitting.

The Yanks got after James in the sixth. With one out, Lewis doubled to left and went to third on a wild pitch. Pipp's single to centre scored Lewis. Pratt singled to right, sending Pipp to third. Pipp crossed the plate while Bodie was being exterminated at first, so the Yanks were sailing along serenely at the fat end of a 4 to 0 score.

The Red Sox had made only one hit off Shore up to the seventh, that lone safety being a single to James in the fifth. McInnis opened the seventh with a two-bagger to right, and he went to third on a single by Al Walters. Scott hopped a tantalizing bouncer toward second, Pratt making a remarkable stop to throw him out at first, while McInnis scored. After Barry skied to Strunk, James hoisted a fly in short right field. Pratt, Vick, and Bodie all approached it, and Pratt appointed himself a committee of one to make the catch. He muffed the ball, and Walters scored.

The Yanks added another brace of runs in the eighth. Baker singled to right and Lewis sacrificed. After Pipp rolled out to first, Pratt soaked a home run to the deep corner between left and centre field.

It was a great day for the Yankee bats. Peck got four hits; Lewis got three, including a homer and a double; Pratt got three, including his circuit clout; and Pipp got three. Babe Ruth, besides being robbed of his home run by Vick in the eighth, had a hard time of it in left field, where he was playing. A lot of drives came Ruth's way, but all of them were just out of his reach, and went down as hits.

CURVES AND BINGLES

With the Yanks leading the pennant race and Peckinpaugh the kingpin batsman of the outfit, the rest of the country is beginning to realize that New York is in the American League.

The Yanks have played to over 50,000 people in two days. The flock of jinxes long pursuing the Ruppert-Huston baseball troupe has been chased at last.

With the return of Wallie Pipp to his normal batting gait, one more of Miller Huggins's worries disappears.

In the fifth inning Peckinpaugh grabbed a couple of warm smashes off the bats of Scott and Barry and tossed both runners out at first with a dexterity which marked the high-water mark of shortstopping in these parts.

The Athletics are here today. After what the Yanks have been up against, Connie Mack's lads should be a relief. They have been easy picking for New York this season.

Umpire Billy Evans made his first appearance here this season. As Evans is just as good an umpire as Peck is a hitter and a shortstop, he is a welcome visitor. Evans is paired with Bill Dineen, who had a lot of close decisions to make on the paths yesterday and didn't muff one.

Shore got himself into a tough fix in the fourth. He walked Hooper and Vitt and Strunk sacrificed. Babe Ruth was passed purposely, filling the cushions. McInnis rolled to Baker, who made a high throw to Hannah to force Cooper. Hannah stretched about four yards to make the catch but saved the day by keeping his big toe on the plate long enough to effect Hooper's demise.

Talk about cool Antarctic nerve. In the third, Hannah, the first man up, tried to beat out a bunt. Might expect that of Bodie, but the fans thought that Truck knew what his nickname was.

Little Al Walters, the former Yank catcher, made a pretty play in the seventh when he nabbed a wide toss from James, turned all the way around, and threw out Peckinpaugh trying to steal.

Among the sparkling fielding gems, don't overlook that of Del Pratt, who got a sizzling smash from Scott's bat in the seventh and tossed him out at first, throwing the ball while he was doubled up like a cruller.

What's become of all this talk about the Red Sox repeating in the world's series next October?

Al Walters knocked Shore over on his ear with a hot drive in the fourth when the bases were loaded and two out. The ball caromed off to Pratt, who saved the Yanks a whole lot of embarrassment by making another brilliant stop and throwing Al out at first.

Peck hit a single to left and Babe Ruth tumbled all over himself trying to stop it. The ball rolled to the fence and Peck decided that he would travel all the way to the plate on the error. Paddy O'Connor tried to flag him, but Peck paid no attention to the semaphore and was out at the plate by twenty feet.

REDS BEAT GIANTS IN TENTH INNING

Neale's Hit Drives Groh Home with Run Which Gives Cincinnati 4 to 3 Victory.

CINCINNATI, June 22.—Before a crowd of more than 21,000 fans, the Giants fell before the Reds this afternoon in a ten-inning game by a score of 4 to 3. The teams were deadlocked at 3 to 3, when the Reds came to bat in the tenth. Heinie Groh started the trouble when he slammed Benton for a single. Eddie Roush got a pass, and when Earl Neale pounded a sharp hit to right, Groh crossed the plate with the winning run.

The Giants received a hard blow besides the defeat in the game, for in the first inning, when Ross Young and Benny Kauff were racing after Jake Daubert's home-run drive, the players collided and Young was so badly cut about the face that he had to retire from the game, Lee King taking his place. When the two players came together, Young's sun glasses broke, and it was almost a miracle that his eyes were not injured. He may be out of the game for some time.

After Daubert's homer off Benton had put Cincinnati in front in the first, the Giants came back in the second and took the lead by scoring a brace of tallies. The lead see-sawed to the Reds in the following inning, when they registered two runs and went to the front. New York tied the score in the fifth, and after that Benton and Ruether had a tight pitching battle, with neither team being able to break into the run column.

Benton issued half a dozen bases on balls, which weakened his pitching effort and proved costly. The Giants played errorless ball, and gave Benton excellent support. He was more than holding his own up to the tenth when Moran's men rallied and scored the winning run on a pass and two hits.

CUBS HAMMER ED PFEFFER.

Dodgers Helpless Against Vaughn, and Lose by 8 to 1 Score.

CHICAGO, June 22.—The Cubs hit Ed Pfeffer hard today and out of a collection of thirteen hits they gathered eight runs. Brooklyn was saved from a shutout by a single tally in the eighth.

Jim Vaughn was at his best and gave only six scattered hits. The big Chicago southpaw had the Dodgers at his mercy at all times, while the Cub batsmen were hammering Pfeffer to all corners of the lot.

NEWARK IS BEATEN IN PAIR OF GAMES

Binghamton Nine Whips Bears Twice and Ousts Them from Third Place in Race.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, June 22.—A large crowd turned out today to see the Binghamton and Newark clubs fight for third place in the league race. Newark had a one-point hold on the third peg when the double-header started, but had taken a tumble, by means of a pair of defeats, at the close.

Binghamton corralled five runs in the first inning of the first game on three errors and three hits, with Rommel pitching, and won ultimately by 7 to 4. Newark staged a rally in the ninth, in which Miller doubled, cleaning up with the bags full, but the revolt ended there.

In the second game Stryker tripled and scored Newark's only run on Miller's sacrifice fly. Binghamton made only three hits off Stryker, but one was a double following a pass and Stryker's fumble of a bunt. The score was 2 to 1.

SKEETERS GET EVEN BREAK.

Jersey City Beats Toronto in First Game, but Loses Second.

Bill Donovan's Skeeters divided honors with Toronto in yesterday's double-header in Jersey City.

The home team gathered in the curtain raiser by a torrid windup in the last three innings, earning the victory by a margin of 7 to 6.

Toronto came back with a victory in the concluding part of the bill by a score of 7 to 4. With the score tied at the beginning of the seventh, Sharp's muff of Whiteman's fly to centre field paved the way for the Toronto rally, which netted four counts from three hits and a sacrifice fly and put the game out of reach of the Skeeters. The Jersey City men outbatted their rivals in each lineup.

GIVE STADIUM TO THE ARMY.

General Pershing Receives It and Presents It to France.

PARIS, June 22. (Associated Press.)—General Secretary Carter, of the Young Men's Christian Association today presented Pershing Stadium to the American Army. General Pershing, Commander in Chief of the American forces, received the stadium on behalf of the American Expeditionary Force, and then presented it to the French people.

General Pershing in an address said in part:

"Conscious of the service which athletes rendered and of the influence athletic training had in making victory possible, it seems a fitting conclusion that our labors in a common cause should be celebrated by a great tournament in which athletes of the allied nations will join in friendly contest."

General Pershing recalled that today was the second anniversary of the arrival of the first contingent of American combatant forces in France. He said he hoped the tournament would be considered a recognition of the generous and gracious spirit that had been accorded to Americans from the beginning of their service abroad, and that the stadium would become a permanent testimonial of American esteem and an enduring monument to the sportsmanlike spirit that had inspired and sustained France throughout the war.

PLAN GREAT ARMY GAMES.

Arrangements Made for Service Men's Olympics at Camp Dix.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, N. J., June 22.—Plans for an American service men's Olympic meet, bringing together for the first time in the United States all the great athletes of the army, navy, Marines, and other branches of the service, were completed at Camp Dix today at a conference between heads of the A. A. U. and the Knights of Columbus. The big event will be held on Labor Day, with preliminary track, field, and swimming events on Sunday, Aug. 31.

The events will be open to men who are in service at the time or who have been honorably discharged. It is already assured that many of the greatest American athletes who competed in athletic tournaments in France and England will compete here.

The swimming events will be held in the recently opened swimming pool of the Knights of Columbus.

The marathon will be the star event of the tournament. This will be run over a twenty-mile course between the State Capitol at Trenton and headquarters at Camp Dix.

The service men's Olympic was planned by Sam Dallas of Philadelphia, President of the A. A. U., and General Secretary Frank Wandle of the Camp Dix K. of C. J. F. Gaffney of Philadelphia also aided in arranging the program. While it was originally planned to confine the competition to the army only, the committee today definitely decided to open the events to every branch of the service.

Events other than the marathon will be the 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, and 880-yard run championships; 600-yard and one-mile invitation races; handicap events at 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards, 880 yards, one mile, and three miles; 220-yard low hurdles, 120-yard high hurdles, running high jump, running broad jump, 16-pound shot put, pole vault, discus throwing, 880-yard run in heavy marching order, one-mile relay, two-mile relay, 60-yard sack race, obstacle race, and 880-yard novice race.

SAWYER HEADS YALE NINE.

Second Baseman is Chosen Captain of Next Year's Team.

NEW HAVEN, June 22.—Howell T. Sawyer of Worcester, Mass., has been elected captain of next year's Yale baseball team, it was announced today. He has been playing second base on the team. He prepared at Phillips Exeter.

Drop Featherweight Title Bout.

Proposed plans for a featherweight championship boxing bout to be held at Baltimore July 4 have been abandoned. Sam Harris and Tony Bietzer, promoters of the American Athletic Association in the Maryland city, have decided that there was little hope of success for such a bout in view of the great interest manifest in the Jess Willard-Jack Dempsey clash at Toledo, Ohio, on Independence Day. It was planned to arrange a match between Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, and Young Chaney of Baltimore.

KRAMER WINS RACE IN STRAIGHT HEATS

Champion Cyclist Regains Speed and Defeats Verri and Eaton at Velodrome.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, June 22.—Frank Kramer was cheered by 14,000 bicycle fans as he sprinted home a winner over Francisco Verri and Ray Eaton in two straight heats of a one-mile match race at the Velodrome here today. Kramer has not been riding very strongly of late and his remarkable return to form was received with great glee by his admirers. In the first heat Kramer won by riding around Verri and Eaton, while in the second heat he rode in front and set such a fast pace that neither of his rivals could get around him.

Eaton came back sturdily and won the five-mile open, the last race of the day, from a strong field which included John Bedell, Gus Lang, Alf Goullet, Reggie McNamara, and Harry Kaiser. Goullet had an excellent chance to win until switched by Grenda. Grenda for his foul riding was fined $25.

Goullet won the mile handicap from scratch, coming from eighth position on the last lap and riding around the field.

John L. Staehle, the amateur champion of 1916 and 1917, who fought with the 78th Division in France, made his first appearance since being mustered out of service, and finished third in the two-thirds mile amateur handicap, which was won by Anthony Young of the Bay View Wheelmen. Young also won the mile class A invitation.

William Cleveland Bolles, known to bicycle riders all over the world and who for the last ten years has been employed as custodian at the Newark Velodrome, dropped dead this afternoon from heart failure. Bolles was once an amateur bicycle rider, but gave that up to train professional riders.

Kenworthy and Spear Win at Golf.

H. Kenworthy and Maynard H. Spear are left in the competition for the Governor's cup at the Flushing Country Club as a result of the semi-final rounds played yesterday. The former disposed of F. J. Kilduff rather handily, winning by 7 and 6. Mr. Spear defeated W. J. Coleman by 3 and 2. T. P. Smith won the weekly handicap with a card of 90, 20—70.

Dundee Matched with Valger.

Johnny Dundee, the local Italian lightweight, and Benny Valger, a French boxer, have been matched for a twelve-round bout to be held at the Armory A. A. of Boston, July 15. Joe Jacobs, manager of Valger, accepted the Boston promoter's terms for the bout last night. Negotiations have been progressing between the boxers and the Boston promoter, Ivy Lewis, for the past two weeks. Larry Conley of South Boston will referee the bout.

appeals to the athletic man. It is loose fitting like the muslin underwear and superior in its cooling effect because it absorbs the perspiration and takes it away from the body. This is in direct contrast to muslin and similar underwear which cling to the body when saturated with perspiration. Thus it combines healthfulness with comfort.

Made of fine, soft cotton interlooped, forming a thin, porous garment of lightness and strength.

The "split" belt increases the seat opening without impairing the strength or comfort of the garment. No pulling or binding. No sagging in the back. Impossible for the seat to be other than flat when closed.

Low neck, sleeveless, knee length. Made as carefully as a tailored suit.

WILLARD AND DEMPSEY GET DOWN TO FINAL GRUELLING TRAINING FOR TITLE BOUT JULY 4

BIG BOXERS LEAP INTO HEAVY WORK

TO CHOOSE REFEREE TODAY

Ollie Pecord of Toledo Believed to Have Call for Post—Challenger Looms Up in Betting.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 22.—This was the first big day of workouts in the camps where Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey are training for the title bout on July Fourth.

Willard had to totter along without Jack Heinen, whom he knocked out of the ring on Friday. Heinen left here early this morning for Chicago. It is understood that aside from his aversion to taking any more severe lacings there was a question of compensation, Heinen having affirmed that the rôle of smashee, with the champion playing the stellar part of smasher, was worth a considerable increase in his stipend. Steamboat Bill Scott is filling in in his place.

As a result of Heinen's departure Willard was without an extra sparring partner today. This is no wise discomfited the champion, who took on Walter Monahan for three rounds instead of the usual two. Jack Hempel worked an equal number of rounds, while Joe Chip put in a pair of rounds. Scott also accepted a drubbing for two rounds.

The largest crowd which has thus far gathered at the camp was on hand. Despite the increased price of admission, more than 4,000 persons crowded into the arena, while as many more stood under the trees of Casino Park unable to get within the campus sidewalls. All that the outsiders got was a view of the champion and his sparring partners on their way from the clubhouse to the arena. This overflow crowd then departed for the Dempsey camp, two miles away, but found already there a similar crowd within the training inclosure. Thousands of spectators from points in Northwestern Ohio had come early in automobiles and invaded the camp precincts of the champion and his challenger.

Dempsey Has Malone in Ring.

Dempsey went through the most severe training stunts of his work thus far. He had the added assistance of Jack Malone, the middleweight from St. Paul, who put him through two rounds of stiff boxing. Billy Miske, the light heavyweight, who is to meet Battling Levinsky here on the night of July 3, also went two rounds with Dempsey, but took matters rather easy. Miske was feeling his way with the challenger, who also realized that precaution was the better part of valor with his right optic still under the adhesive plaster and likely to be opened by a stray punch.

Big Bill Tate, who emerged unscathed from his five round encounter with Sam Langford at St. Paul Friday night, re-entered the ring and showed a world of stuff for Dempsey's benefit. The Jamaica Kid also gave the challenger a hard workout, much to the entertainment of the big crowd.

A heavy northeasterly nearly flooded the Dempsey camp early this morning. The high wind blew the waves more than 100 feet inside the beach at the Overland club house. As late as this afternoon there were still great pools of water in the parkway outside the club house, while huge rollers continued to pile up on the beach. The weather was ideal, however, the mercury registering 75 degrees, with bright sunshine. At the Willard camp this heavy sea did no damage, as the Casino camp is on much higher ground.

Opinion here as to the outcome of the fight still continues a matter of much debate. Bets of $180 to $200 on Dempsey have been made. There also are wagers of even money that Dempsey will enter the ring the favorite in the betting, which would be, it is said, the first time such a thing ever happened in pugilism. An influx of visitors from the Southwest oil fields as well as those from the Far Western States has begun. With their arrival the tendency to wager on the outcome of the battle grows. Gossip around both camps leads one to believe that the preponderance of opinion favors the challenger, who is regarded as a more natural boxer than the champion. This is the feeling manifested in the small talk in the crowd who have watched both boxers day after day.

Biddle Is Expected Today.

The question of a referee will probably be decided tomorrow. Tex Ricard, the promoter of the bout, received a wire this morning from Major Anthony J. Biddle of Philadelphia, Chairman of the Army, Navy, and Civilian Board of Boxing Control, saying that he would arrive here on Monday in company with Alfred Marilly, counsel for the board, to take up the matter of the selection of a third man in the ring. It is generally believed here that Ollie Pecord, referee of the Toledo Boxing Committee, who has served for more than a year without compensation in the various bouts staged under the commission's auspices, will be the choice of the officials.

Major Biddle and Mr. Marilly will confer with Tex Rickard, Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, and Jess Willard. The latter is handling his own affairs, Ray Archer merely looking after financial matters for the champion.

A list of fifty names was submitted to Secretary Empie of the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control when he was here on Saturday. This list was gone over in New York today, it is said.

Pecord, whose reputation as a referee has been local, is noted for his honesty and fairness. He is a man 46 years of age, 5 feet 11 inches high, and weighs 182 pounds, and is well qualified to exert whatever vigor might be needed in case the boxers persisted in clinching. Rickard is known to favor Pecord, and Kearns also has voiced his approval of him. It now resolves itself into a question whether there shall be two judges and a referee or the latter shall work alone.

Rickard declares that several men who wish to referee the title bout have offered liberal sums for the privilege. This fact was conveyed to Secretary Empie, and it is known that none of these men will be considered in the selection of a referee.

MAY MEET BRITISH TEAMS.

Yale's Action Points to International Meet Perhaps Next Year.

A resumption of the Oxford-Cambridge vs. Yale-Harvard international contests is a possibility for the near future, if the action of the Undergraduate Committee of the Yale Athletic Association, which has given its sanction to a renewal of international track, field, and rowing events in 1920, is favorably regarded by the athletic officials of the other three universities.

The suggestion to which the Yale body gave its stamp of approval contained the provision that a track and field meet be held in London next Summer with a return engagement in this country in 1921.

It is believed the international collegiate events will be resumed, although nothing official on the subject has come either from Harvard, Oxford, or Cambridge.

The last meeting of the four colleges took place eight years ago at the Queens Club, London, on July 11, 1911, when the Britons were successful in five events against four for their American rivals.

BROOKLYN HANDICAP TODAY

Eighteen in Field for Classic, Roamer Being Top Weight.

Brooklyn Handicap Field.

Horse and Jockey.	Weight.
Roamer, Butwell	121
War Cloud, Knapp	118
Purchase, Loftus	117
Trompe la Mort, Fairbrother	116
Boniface, Wessler	109
Be Frank, Kummer	107
Eternal, Shuttinger	105
Straight Forward, Ensor	105
Cirrus, Nolan	105
Crimper, Rice	104
Over There, McAtee	102
Bondage, McTaggart	100
Natural Bridge, Myers	100
Zenith, Pierce	98
Thunderclap, Myers	98
Star Class, Fator	97
L'Errant, Carroll	97
Questionnaire, Callahan	95

With many of the top weights temporarily out of commission, the field for the Brooklyn Handicap, which will be the feature of the opening of racing at Aqueduct today, will be more notable for quantity than for quality. Eighteen well known performers have accepted the weights allotted by Handicapper Vosburgh and, though several of these are likely to be withdrawn, there is little doubt that the field will be larger than any that has gone to the post for an important handicap this season.

Cudgel, Omar Khayyam, Westy Hogan and others of the older division are on the sick list so that the post of honor remains with Andrew Miller's Roamer. This old champion has been allotted 121 pounds for the journey of a mile and a furlong, but in view of his poor performance in the Long Beach Handicap on Saturday he may be considered a doubtful starter. If Roamer does not go, War Cloud will be the top weight with 118 pounds, while Purchase has the great honor for a three-year-old of being next on the list, with only a pound less to carry. The race is particularly strong in good three-year-olds, seven of the eighteen named being of that age.

The Brooklyn has always been noted for close finishes, and the contest today is likely to prove no exception to the rule. The weights have been nicely adjusted, and most of the candidates have run trials that insure their finishing in close to the track record time of 1:49 2-5, held by H. P. Whitney's Borrow. Eternal has the best work over the full distance to his credit. He reeled off a mile and a furlong in 1:53, and with 105 pounds to carry this high-class but unfortunate three-year-old is sure to be dangerous.

No trial over the Handicap route is recorded for Purchase, but the easy victories of the Hildreth candidate in the Southampton and Stuyvesant Handicaps are sufficient evidence of his ability. Cirrus, a stable companion of Purchase, which has been kept under cover, has traveled the distance in 1:54 4-5, so that Hildreth will hold a strong hand if he starts both these cracks. Be Frank is another three-year-old that has done wonderfully well. In addition to winning the Latonia Derby recently he has a trial work of 1:53. L'Errant has worked in 1:55, while most of the other candidates have had their final gallops at a mile, War Cloud turning this distance in 1:41.

Great improvements have been made to the Aqueduct plant, and a large crowd is expected to see the running of the Brooklyn, which has been a turf fixture since 1887.

The entries in the other races on today's card follow:

FIRST RACE.—Three-year-olds and upward; the Kingston Handicap; six and a half furlongs. Old Koenig, 130 pounds; Abadane, 111; Bridesman, 98; Hollister, 120; Pickwick, 110; Startling, 107; Whimsy, 100; Rodgers, 95.

SECOND RACE.—Steeplechase; selling; for four-year-olds and upward; about two miles. Whist, 2d, 136 pounds; New Haven, 151; Bill Dudley, 143; Syosset, 153; Reddest, 143; Early Light, 143; *Meios, 138; Northwood, 143; Martian, 149; *Archdale, 143; Cherry Stone, 130.

*Apprentice allowance claimed.

Weather, clear; track, good.

HOOFBEATS.

Many turfmen expressed the opinion after Man o' War won the Youthful Stakes on Saturday that he would go through the season unbeaten and turn out a better horse than his sire, Fair Play. Mahubah, the dam of Man o' War, only started in two races and then was retired to the stud, as Major Belmont believes strongly in breeding mares which have raced but little. Mahubah is the dam of Masda, a good winner, and Man o' War is her second foal. He cost Mr. Biddle $5,000 at the auction of the Belmont yearlings last Fall.

J. E. Seagram, the Canadian turfman, scored his first victory on local tracks when his five-year-old mare Belle Mahone, captured the fifth race on Saturday. There are several other good ones in the Canadian's stable which Trainer Bringloe has ready for telling efforts.

Secretary A. L. McEarlocker of the Westchester Racing Association announces that at the Fall meeting at Belmont Park there will be no purse less than $800 and that $1,200 will be added in handicap events.

As a result of a rally for the benefit of St. Mary's Hospital on Saturday more than $5,000 was contributed by the turfmen.

CLOSE RACES ON SPEEDWAY

G. A. Bary's Entry Wins in Class For Two-year-olds.

There was a large turnout at the fifth Spring matinée of the Road Drivers' Association on the Speedway yesterday, and all of the events furnished lively competition for the spectators. In the two-year-old class G. A. Bary's bay colt Rhineton won in straight heats, defeating G. Gall's Guion in the second heat and Wilburn B. in the second heat.

The 1:10 class resulted in a victory for J. A. L. Barrington's bay gelding Leo A. The first heat of this event was won by A. Bruno's Squirrel Brock, while Leo A. captured the second and third heats. A Barone's Newburn won the 1:08 class, defeating Little Kate in straight heats.

Gun Fire, an added starter in the 1:06 class for trotters, won in straight heats from Eugene Carpenter's Bessie Baron.

The summaries:

FRIEDLANDER IS A DOUBLE WINNER

Takes Two Events in Intersectional A. L. Meet—Paulist A. C. and Glencoe A. C. Tie.

The athletes of the Paulist A. C. and the Glencoe A. C. were tied for the team honors in the annual meeting of the Intersectional Athletic League which was held at Macombs Dam Park yesterday afternoon. Each club scored 15 points in the spirited competition which brought together an entry list of more than 600 competitors. Next in line came the Mohawks with 14 points, and the Pastimes had 12.

The 1,000-yard run was won by S. Freirich of the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A., who had a handicap of 50 yards. In this race Homer Baker, the long distance star of the New York A. C., started from scratch, but he dropped out of the running half a lap from the finish line when he saw that it was a futile effort to try to overtake the large handicap which were allotted to his competitors. Freirich won the race with a pretty sprint just before the stretch. He shot out of the pack and won by a few feet from L. Gaskall of the Bronx Church House, who had a handicap of 45 yards.

Philip Friedlander of the Glencoe A. C., a former runner of the High School of Commerce, was a double victor, winning first place in the 100-yard dash and the 300-yard run. In the century dash, with a handicap of seven yards, he beat out F. Conway of the Morningside A. C. Friedlander had a handicap of sixteen yards in the 300-yard event, and won after a close chase through the stretch with Al Smith of the Mohawks, who finished second.

The medley relay was one of the best events of the program, and was won by the team representing the Paulist A. C. The runners were G. Benken, H. Cunningham, T. Clouray, and J. Losero. The team of St. Christopher's A. C. finished in second place.

One of the novel events of the meet was the 100-yard dash for girls, which was won by Miss Mae Kahl of the Glencoe A. C. Miss Lillian Knveke of the Mohawk Girls' Club was second. The two-mile run was captured by P. Flynn, after a hard race with Mike Tea of the Glencoe A. C. The one-mile walk was won by A. Fekette of the Hungarian-American A. C., with P. Anthony of the Pastimes in second place.

The summaries:

1,000-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by S. Freirich, Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A., (50 yards;) L. Gaskall, Kings County A. A., (45 yards,) second; J. Weiss, Bronx Church House, (45 yards,) third; C. Deagan, St. Anselm's A. C., (50 yards,) fourth. Time—2:15.

A., 5 points each; Bronx Church House, Knights of St. Antony and St. Christopher A. C., 4 points each; Morningside A. C., 3; Alpha P. C. C., 2; St. Anselm's A. C., 1.

LOFTUS IS LEADING JOCKEY.

Two Young Riders Have Ridden Over 100 Winners Each.

The race for leadership in the list of winning jockeys is a remarkably close one this year between C. Robinson and T. Murray, both young riders and who, therefore, get many more mounts than the heavier lads, many of whom may be more proficient. Both these lads have ridden more than 100 winners, with the leadership resting at present with Robinson by a small margin.

So far as the percentage of winning mounts go, which is the real test of ability, Johnny Loftus is far and away ahead of the others. The latest list compiled by Racing Form shows that he has won with 23 of his 53 mounts, giving him a percentage of .43 against the next highest, that of Sande, which is .27. The thirty leading jockeys follow:

Murray, T.	491	101	65	58	267	.21

MRS. WIGHTMAN IS RATED WITH BEST

Prowess Shown in Regaining Tennis Title Ranks Her with Miss Browne and Mrs. Bundy.

In winning the women's national tennis championship at Philadelphia last week, Mrs. George Wightman once more demonstrated certain obvious facts which the feminine players in general have been curiously slow to recognize. The triumphant progress of the Bostonian through the tournament, with the loss of only one set and of astonishingly few games in the others, was due not merely to superior steadiness, greater court experience, and the possession of a chop stroke peculiarly baffling to women, although all of these factors were constantly in evidence. Mrs. Wightman's greatest asset was and is her ability to finish a rally conclusively, that is, to "kill" the ball when necessary. The crying weakness of women's tennis has always been the dependence upon errors for gaining the points. Given two steady drivers, with an instinct for anticipation and fair speed, the result is a series of interminable rallies, with neither player able to deliver the winning punch, nor willing to risk disaster by taking unusual chances of placement. But if either contender is equipped with volleying skill, or an assortment of ground strokes permitting sharp angles and unusual accuracy, she at once has a tremendous advantage, with the added confidence gained through the knowledge of its possession.

Mrs. Wightman proved last week that she can "kill" in many ways besides that of the overhead smash. In fact, she was rarely called upon to use her volleying to the limit. But she never indulged in mere contests of steadiness and endurance, always drawing her opponent out of position, giving her more and more difficult shots to handle, and administering the coup de grace with precision and unmistakable finality when the opening presented itself.

Against Miss Eleanor Goss, who gave her the only real opposition she found in the entire tournament, Mrs. Wightman saved her volleying until quite late in the match, since the slow court favored her chops and short placements. When match-point was reached she produced for the first time a weapon she always had in reserve namely, following her service to the net and smashing unerringly as the ball sailed gently toward her racquet overhead. When Miss Marion Zinderstein made her one final rally, also for the match-point, accomplishing three successive returns of the most spectacular character, the former Hazel Hotchkiss merely sharpened the angle of her last volley and left her opponent helpless in midcourt. The finality of stroke was there when it was needed.

Admitting that the new champion had only one hard match on her way to the final, she nevertheless displayed tennis that would probably have beaten Miss Molla Bjurstedt at her best, and deserves to rank with the supergame developed by her fellow-Californians, Miss Mary Browne and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy. The difference between her tennis and that of all the rest of the players in the tournament (with the possible exception of Miss Goss) was that she did not have to depend for her success upon errors or physical exhaustion on the other side of the net, but could always earn whatever points might be needed.

Miss Zinderstein possesses an equipment of strokes which might bring the same results if she only had the courage to use them to the limit. Her victory over Miss Bjurstedt was a commendable feat, in spite of the ex-champion's physical condition, but she could have accomplished it in far more spectacular and impressive fashion by working for quick results from the start instead of wearing the Norse girl down with mere steadiness. The little Bostonian misses a surprising number of easy volleys, and is consequently timid about going to the net. Yet her forcing shots off the ground constantly present her with opportunities for volleying which it is most unfortunate for her to waste. When she plays mixed doubles, Miss Zinderstein shows the heights which her game can reach when she is forced to take chances and use all her speed and accuracy. Although overwhelmingly beaten by Mrs. Wightman, she is on the way to unquestionable greatness and an almost certain national title of the future.

Miss Goss also came into her own last week. Her play against Mrs. Wightman was absolutely correct so far as court tactics were concerned, and only a few mechanical slip-ups, with some real hard luck mixed in, robbed her of victory and the championship which would almost indubitably have followed. Her service and ground strokes were working in splendid shape, with more power in her backhand than ever before. But she is still weak at the net, even when a "kill" is practically set up for her, as twice at critical moments in the Wightman match. When a lob comes to her, especially on the back-hand, she does not step back sufficiently to make a real smash, but reaches over her head and pops the ball weakly into the net, or just over. This was illustrated again and again in the final doubles match, when good net-play by the champions would have made the argument decidedly one-sided.

Miss Bjurstedt's fall was due entirely to lack of condition, for in her opening set against Miss Zinderstein she showed more tennis and greater steadiness than did the Bostonian. But her ability to finish a rally has always depended upon sheer speed, and when that failed her she had no weapon left to call upon. At that, she made a few surprisingly good volleys, although her full-arm sweep is a needlessly difficult stroke to execute. But unless Miss Bjurstedt learns to mix up her game she is not likely to find it easy to regain her title, even with a complete restoration of her physical powers.

The fourth semi-finalist of the tournament, Mrs. Gilbert Harvey of Philadelphia, although slightly favored by the draw, made one of the best records of her career, largely through steadiness and fighting spirit. Miss Marie Wagner helped to dethrone the former champion by giving her a hard three-set battle, but was not keen enough in the pinches to take possession of a victory which was practically hers for the asking.

Miss Eleonora Sears went through the tournament on sheer nerve, starting with a sprained thumb and finishing with a torn ligament in her ankle. She was overwhelmed by Miss Zinderstein, with the latter at the top of her form, but made a remarkable bid for the doubles title paired with Mrs. Wightman. Her defensive play in the final match was the best of its kind seen in the whole tournament.

Miss Clare Cassel also suffered from an injury to her arm, but played well up to the time of her defeat by Miss Zinderstein. Several of the youngsters, notably Miss Katherine Gardner, Miss Elizabeth Warren, and Miss Adelaide Hooker did exceedingly well in both the senior and junior events. The last named had the prestige of defeating the former girls' champion, Miss Katherine Porter, but was then forced out of the tournament by a damaged ankle.

The number and seriousness of such casualties last week, started some fresh agitation in favor of a later date for the women's championship. Certainly no one could be expected to show the form and the physical condition demanded by first-class tennis on turf before the end of June.

A final sensational feature of the week was the winning of the national mixed doubles title by Miss Zinderstein and Vincent Richards, the latter already possessing the senior indoor, the outdoor and indoor doubles, and the national boys' championships. He has rarely played better tennis than in the final match, in which he outgeneraled and outvolleyed the great Tilden and his partner, Miss Florence Ballin, winning on merit after one of the most brilliant uphill battles ever staged in a mixed event. Those two young players will be hard to beat in the future.

TAYLOR VICTOR ON COURT.

Defeats O. B. Mackie in Tourney for Long Island Tennis Title.

Harold Taylor was a winner in the second round of the Long Island tennis championship at the Kings County Tennis Club yesterday, defeating O. B. Mackie at 4—6, 6—4, 6—3. Percy Kynaston went through the first two rounds, defeating Fred G. Anderson in the first at 7—5, 3—6, 6—0, and L. G. Grinnell in the second round 6—3, 10—8.

The tournament reached the third round, in which Alexander Iler won from G. Copland at 6—4, 6—4. In the other match in this round J. Anderson defeated R. V. Labe, 7—5, 6—1.

The summary:

Long Island Championship—First Round—Percy Kynaston defeated Fred G. Anderson, 7—5, 3—6, 6—0; A. Duncan defeated H. E. Crouse, 7—9, 6—1, 6—3; R. Richey defeated C. L. Pickford, 6—2, 6—4; A. Jamison defeated Gerald Donaldson, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3; G. Groesbeck defeated S. J. Quinn, 7—5, 4—6, 6—1; E. Macksoud defeated A. Little by default.

Second Round—J. Cunningham defeated A. L. Barneau, 1—6, 7—5, 6—1; Percy Kynaston defeated L. G. Grinnell, 6—3, 10—8; Harold Taylor defeated O. B. Mackie, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3; Paul Martin defeated S. Pawley, 6—2, 6—0.

Third Round—Alexander Iler defeated G. Copland, 6—4, 6—4; J. Anderson defeated R. V. Labe, 7—5, 6—1.

NET TITLE TO DONALDSON.

He Wins Junior Tennis Championship of Terrace Club.

Cecil Donaldson won the junior championship of the Terrace Club in Brooklyn yesterday by defeating Harry Brunie in the final match at 6—4, 6—1, 6—2. Donaldson, after dropping the first set, set a fast pace in the next two encounters and easily downed his opponent.

In the doubles R. E. Roberts and J. Reimer defeated Gerald Donaldson and Fred C. Anderson at 6—4, 7—9, 6—2.

GREAT CLAY COURT ENTRY.

Tilden and Richards Listed for Tennis Title Play.

CHICAGO, June 21.—The large number of entries which have been received up to tonight for the National Clay Court Tennis Championships, to be held here the week of July 12 to July 19, indicates that the tournament will be the greatest since the clay court fixture was launched nine years ago, according to R. L. Van Arsdale, President of the South Side Tennis Club.

Among the first entries received were those of William T. Tilden of Philadelphia, and Vincent S. Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., national lawn tennis champions in doubles. They will come to Chicago after the annual East and West sectional team championships at Cincinnati, the week before the clay court event opens.

Mixed doubles have been added to the program of the title events at the request of Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Florence Ballin of New York.

BOOM IN COLLEGE TENNIS.

Sport Has Most Successful Season in Years.

Although college athletics in general have been revived with much the same interest that prevailed two or three years ago, there is probably no branch of sports on the intercollegiate program that enjoyed a better year than tennis. In the season that has just come to a close with commencements, tennis appears to have more than regained the place it held before the war. In many sections of the country the schedules surpassed anything that had previously been arranged, and the quality of the competitions was up to the standard of other years in all respects.

Yale, perhaps, had the most remarkable record in the East as the team from New Haven, under the leadership of Charles S. Garland, former junior champion, did not lost a single match. The freshmen at Yale also won all their events, so the prospects are for a strong team next season.

The New England intercollegiate championship was resumed on the courts of Longwood Cricket Club, being won by Hermann Brookman of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The event attracted a good entry and was well played. Members of the New England Intercollegiate Tennis Association, in addition to their regular matches, held many interscholastic tournaments which attracted players from the preparatory schools.

The interscholastic tournaments were quite a feature of the season, for Yale, Harvard, Princeton, and Pennsylvania resumed the tournaments which had been discontinued during the war. A number of these events were arranged in other sections of the country. An illustration of their importance can be obtained from the prominence given the Ohio interscholastic championship held at Ohio State University.

In the Middle West Walter Wesbrook of Michigan and Fritz Bastian of Indiana were two of the most prominent young players. Wesbrook made quite a record in the East last Summer and Bastian is remembered for his excellent record in the junior championship. It is thought that both of them will compete in some of the important Eastern events this Summer.

Restoration of schedules was general in practically every college where tennis had been played in the past. The intercollegiate championship is also reestablished and will be played at the Merion Cricket Club, in Philadelphia, on Sept. 8.

It is felt that the prominence given tennis this Spring is due, in part at least, to the action of the National Collegiate Tennis Association, which voted at its meeting last Winter to recommend to its members that they provide sufficient tennis equipment to meet the needs of the undergraduates and to extend the same recognition to the tennis teams as may be granted to representatives of other sports. Along this line the graduate manager of athletics at Harvard is on record as being in favor of making tennis a major sport. Yale has plans for fifty courts to be available next season. At Princeton tennis was popular sport, as shown by the choice of freshmen who were required to take some form of athletics. Seven were open for credit—baseball, boxing, crew, life-saving, swimming, tennis and track. There were 105 enrolled for tennis, and the other figures follow: Baseball, 97; rowing, 84; track, 58; life saving, 21; boxing, 15. Carnegie Institute of Technology is laying out twenty new courts.

MARGARET S. LEADS ACROSS THE LINE

The annual open regatta of the Old Mill Yacht Club was held yesterday on Jamaica Bay. Although there was a glorious wholesail breeze from northeast that held true and steady throughout the day, only two classes of sailboats filled, and out of twenty starters all but four were power-driven craft.

The course for all the classes was the regular association course of the Yacht Racing Association of Jamaica Bay. As it was not a championship regatta the committee, made up of Chairman John Young and Commodore Boylan, decided to stop all classes at the end of the first round. Although the brush was rather short for the motor boats, the sailing craft had plenty of work getting home, as they all had to face a stiff head breeze.

W. Sullivan's Margaret S. was the winner on both actual and corrected time among the half cabin and open power boats. The cruiser division was led home by Ruthie II., the property of F. Dobell. In this class Siren was disqualified for not rounding one of the buoys. Sunnyside III. won among the speed boats.

Shadow, one of the best known yachts on the bay, showed a clean pair of heels among the cabin cats, and in the open cat class the winner was Mock Turtle, owned by W. Suydam of the Old Mill Yacht Club.

ALTAIR AND BANSHEE WIN.

Victory in Their Classes Among Port Washington Stars.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., June 22.—Seventeen yachts of the Star class, divided into two sub-classes, nine sailing in Class A and eight in Class B, started in the third of the interclub series of races for the championship of the Port Washington, Manhasset Bay and Bayside Yacht Clubs, over the course of the former this afternoon. A fresh northerly breeze enabled the little yachts to make good time.

Only 3 minutes and 14 seconds separated the first seven of the yachts of Class B to finish. Maurice Egerton won in that classification, crossing the finish line with the Banshee by the narrow margin of 1 second ahead of C. L. Simonson in the North Star. Less than a minute behind the latter R. D'Oench sailed home in the Vega.

The summary follows:

BIG GALLERY SEES MATCH AT WYKAGYL

Nearly five hundred people followed the golf match at the Wykagyl Country Club yesterday afternoon when Alec Smith and Gil Nicholls defeated Tom McNamara and Jerome Travers, 3 up and 2 to play. The last named was not playing particularly well and had to pick up on several holes. His partner, however, was going at a 71 clip, while Nicholls also had a 71 and Smith reeled off a 73.

The match was for the benefit of the New Rochelle Day Nursery and several hundred dollars was collected for the cause.

McNamara and Travers were 3 down at the ninth, and they never fully recovered, although McNamara won the thirteenth. Several long putts were holed during the exhibition. For instance, at the sixteenth, Smith got down a splendid 2, while again at the sixth Nicholls came to the rescue with a 2 there. The winners had a best ball of 66, 32 out and 34 home.

ONE-ARMED PROS IN MATCH.

Botcazon Defeats Martucci, 1 Up, in Golf Match at Inwood.

In a match that was carried to the home green, Yves Botcazon, the French golf professional, defeated Louis Martucci, the White Beeches Golf and Country Club pro, over the Inwood links yesterday afternoon by 1 up. Both of the men are one-armed, but despite this handicap, manage to make the courses over which they play in close to record figures.

In yesterday's match, Botcazon played straight down the course, whereas his opponent was vary often in the woods. Botcazon had the other 4 down at the eighth hole, but Martucci won the ninth, and then came back by getting the next three and squaring the match.

Three putts at the thirteenth started Martucci on the downward path again, and he missed a short putt on the home hole, losing the match.

ENGLAND WINS AT SOCCER.

Defeats Scottish Eleven, 2 to 1, in Final Round.

England, for the first time, came into her own on the soccer gridiron at Lenox Oval, yesterday, when Scotland, with one of the best teams that ever represented the land of the thistle, succumbed by the score of 2 goals to 1 in the final round of the annual international series of the New York Footballers' Protective Association.

It was among the best games of the season, the deciding tally coming in the last five minutes of play. Two players from the Newburgh Football Club, Wilson and Satterthwaite, monopolized the individual honors, both of the goals standing to their credit.

At half time, England led by 1-0, the result of Wilson's shot after a throw-in seven minutes from the start. Scotland trailed her rival the rest of that half and for thirty minutes of the second period, when, from a corner kick by McKelvey, Fleming headed the ball into England's net.

With three minutes to go, Bell of Scotland, who had played well up to then, made a bad pass, which gave Satterthwaite his chance to land a long shot in the upper right hand corner of Scotland's net.

The lineup:

England, (2.)	Position.	Scotland, (1.)
Albin	G.	Wilson
Fletcher	R. B.	Kelly
Hayes	L. B.	Ferguson
Broadbent	R. H.	Bell
Beardsworth	C. H.	Campbell
Kirkpatrick	L. H.	Kerr
Garside	O. R.	McKelvey
Satterthwaite	I. R.	McDonald
Shaw	C.	Miller
Cullerton	I. L.	Sweeney
Wilson	O. L.	Fleming

Goals—England: Wilson, Satterthwaite; Scotland: Fleming. Time of halves—Forty-five minutes. Referee—T. Cunningham. Linesmen—C. E. Creighton and J. Donnelly.

The Clan MacDuff soccers, who will meet the White Rose eleven in the La Sultana Cup final at Woodside next Sunday, annexed the Royal Nestor Cup by defeating the Vikings by 6 goals to 3 at Lenox Oval before the international match yesterday. Thompson, Stahl, and Kennedy shot two goals apiece in behalf of the clansmen, and Adamson, Peterson, and Hogstrom one each for the Vikings. At half time the victors were leading by 3 to 1.

ROSS MAINSTAY OF TEAM.

Portland Swimmer Likely to Score Heavily in Interallied Meet.

Bright prospects face the American Army swimmers who sailed for France recently to take part in the interallied water carnival at Joinville-le-Pont, near Paris, June 24 to July 6. Everything indicates that they will capture the lion's share of the honors.

In Norman Ross of Portland, Ore., now representing the Illinois A. C. of Chicago, the home team has one of the greatest all-around aquatic stars ever developed and a contestant of invaluable character because of his wonderful strength and stamina. There is not an individual event on the program in which the giant Northwesterner should fail to hold his own against all foreign rivals, and he has demonstrated ability to win as many as ten prizes at a single meet, so that a big score on his part may be counted upon. He has threshed 100 yards, free style, in 55 2-5 seconds, set world's records from 220 yards to one mile, won the national 150-yard back stroke championship in close to international time, and covered 200 yards with the breast stroke within four seconds of the world's standard. The interallied card includes free style races at 100, 400, 800, and 1,500 metres, back stroke at 100 metres, breast stroke at 200 metres, and relay contest at 400 metres for teams of four.

George Cunha of Honolulu and San Francisco, John Hincks of Yale, Sydney Biddell of Boston, Greff Allen of this city, and Ben James are sprinters who compare favorably with the champions likely to oppose them in Paris, and Charles Montgomery of Pittsburgh, as well as Biddell and James, rank well as middle distance swimmers, leaving no doubt of a handsome collective tally in the free style events and relay.

H. L. Biersach of Wisconsin University, has been mentioned as the leading American candidate for breast stroke laurels, and he is a good one. But news comes from Chicago that L. B. White of the Hamilton Club is still abroad with the Expeditionary Force and will be available, which gives the team even better chances, for he has been credited with world's performances at 200 yards in practice trials.

Conservative Investments for July Funds

We have issued a special letter explaining why experts are of the opinion that a large volume of securities should be absorbed within the July investment period. We also mention a number of conservative investments which, in our judgment, are to be purchased with entire confidence as to intrinsic security value, combined with every reasonable assurance of ultimate profit. Please ask for Special Letter No. 1237.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

High Money Rates Only Temporary and Stocks Again Move Upward.

As was to have been expected the flurry in call money early last week turned out to be only a flurry, with no very serious consequences, except, perhaps, to some unfortunate stock market operators who may have suffered in Monday's fall in prices. In the light of what has happened since it appears that the Federal Reserve Board's warning against overspeculation, and its suggestion that member banks reduce their borrowings, was heeded to the extent that the banks refused to further extend their credit position with the Reserve Bank, and this, together with the unusual demand for accommodation over the tax due date, caused some temporary shortage of funds available for Stock Exchange demand loans, brought about a deficit in the Clearing House institutions and very naturally sent money rates up.

After the great strain of tax payments had passed money rates receded to normal figures and in the closing days of the week there seemed to be an abundance of offerings. The Clearing House statement of Saturday, and the New York Federal Reserve Bank's statement of the same day, show that substantial improvement has taken place in the week, and augur a reasonably stable situation, provided, of course, that stock market demands keep within proper limits, at least until the end of the month is passed and the big July 1 requirements are satisfied.

The stock market, after its rather severe slump on Monday, performed much after the manner in which it has been going for the past two or three months. The popular and highly speculative industrial shares came right back into favor, and by the end of the week most of them had regained all and more than all of their early losses. Trading continued on a big scale, the sequence of "million-share days" having been maintained through to Friday, on which day the high record sequence of forty-four such days, established in the Spring of 1901, was equalled. Instead of hurting the market the break on Monday seems to have helped it, for probably a lot of the so-called "weak hands" were eliminated, and certainly the technical position was strengthened.

The political situation as regards international affairs developed entirely to the liking of the financial community. It became apparent that Germany is going to accept the Peace Treaty; whether the present Government does so or not is rather a minor consideration. It is patent that the German people are determined to have peace, at whatever cost may be necessary, and as this is being written the actual signing of the treaty appears a matter of little more than hours. On Friday the stock market undoubtedly was stimulated by the belief that the war was to end officially in a very short time, and the slight reaction on Saturday at the close bears out, rather than contradicts, this statement, for then traders were inclined to take profits which had accrued on the long side on the theory that a realization of the signing by today's opening would cause some reaction.

Other developments of the week have been equally favorable. The trade reports, almost without exception, have been of a most optimistic character. Those regarding the steel and iron industry spoke of the notable improvement of the last few days, the only discordant note having to do with the relative slowness of the railroads in placing their orders. Otherwise the steel and iron trade is enjoying substantial activity and is booking orders for a wide variety of products, each in fair volume. The letdown in May has been mostly recovered, and operations are now going ahead on a basis which compares favorably with that of any period since the armistice.

In the same way, the general trade reports reflect a recovery from the depression which followed the cessation of hostilities and the ending of war orders. Hesitation has, to a very great extent, been dissipated and consumers appear to be reconciled to the high scale of prices and are going ahead with commitments for the future with more courage than had been noted before in a long time. Demands, according to the commercial advices, cover a large field; as one of the reviews put it, "a virtual roll call of the country's products."

The overseas trade is not so active, as was the case last month when exports fell off some $108,500,000 from the previous month's high record. This condition probably reflects the period of transition through which Europe is passing. The allied Governments made no secret of their desire to curb importations of all goods not absolutely required when they announced some time ago that they had ceased supporting their exchanges. This desire still obtains and the position of allied exchanges here hardly warrants any great volume of purchases by private Europeans. However, as far as American foreign trade is concerned, there is nothing to cause alarm in this. The United States is the world's chief reservoir of goods, as it is of credit, and as soon as a plan can be worked out for the joining of credit and goods, the flow to Europe will be resumed in tremendous quantity, probably exceeding any heretofore seen. Europe is badly in need of supplies of all sorts. The United States can supply them, or most of them. It remains, then, only for the bankers and the industrial leaders to arrange the plan whereby the goods can start moving, and that arrangement is not far off. Mr. Davison and the bankers associated with him have been conferring this last week. Bankers in other cities are organizing—some of them have already organized—and the industrial leaders are going ahead with their plans. Advices from abroad state that similar organizations there are progressing. Within a short time the comprehensive plan should be matured.

Just how much of all this the stock market has discounted remains to be seen. Precedent, never a thoroughly safe guide to the market, is by no means uniform on the subject. Following other wars sometimes the market has advanced; at others it has declined. Following this particular war the United States is likely to be called upon to perform such huge tasks, and, incidentally, what may be such profitable ones, that many keen observers feel that the market cannot have discounted all the favorable developments, and these people are now predicting further advances in security prices. At all events, it seems certain that the market will not culminate as did the only one which compares with the present, that of the Spring of 1901, when the "May 9 Panic" brought to a close the greatest season of stock market speculation the New York Stock Exchange ever experienced. The market and the general financial situation is now too well hedged about and safeguarded to allow of that, and, furthermore, there is abundantly more warrant for a big speculation now than there was then. The country now is so much greater and so much richer and stronger in every way that, relatively speaking, the present speculation is really small compared to that of eighteen years ago.

Westinghouse Air Brake

Our analysis outlines the consistent dividend record of the past twenty-five years, emphasizes the increasing diversification of products, the importance and scope of European business, and shows the strong financial position of the company as it emerges from a period of successful war business to pursue again normal lines of output.

We are prepared to execute orders in the stock of The Westinghouse Air Brake Company on either the Pittsburgh or New York Stock Exchange.

The New Ranger Field

There is being developed a spectacular new oil field that promises to make up in production for the natural decrease in the older fields of the country. This is the Ranger field of North Central Texas. According to one authority, this field, which promises to be of immense proportions, will prove a stabilizing influence on the industry for at least a decade, and perhaps for a score of years. Its development, which is just beginning, effected an increase in the output for that region of almost 50% in 1918 over 1917.

THE 17-YEAR LOCUST SHUNS MANHATTAN

OUT THIS YEAR IN 20 STATES

Scientists, After 200 Years' Study, Now Know Exact Location of Every Brood.

The first of the seventeen-year locusts in the vicinity of New York have been reported out of the ground and on Long Island, and before many days the din of their "singing" may be expected in the land. But Manhattan and the Bronx may be spared this ear splitting music, for the ricardo show that the particular brand of periodical cicada, the real name of the seventeen-year locust, which is abroad this Summer, has been hibernating only in the counties of Columbia, Kings, Monroe, Nassau, Ontario, Niagara, Queens, Richmond, and Suffolk, in New York State. In New Jersey they are confined to the counties of Burlington, Camden, Cumberland, Gloucester, Hunterdon, Mercer, Middlesex, Monmouth, Morris, Ocean, Passaic, Salem, Somerset, and Warren.

The cicada has been described as "the most interesting insect in the world," so interesting in fact that entomologists are discussing seriously how many millions of years will elapse before the species becomes extinct through the agency of man's advancement. One of these bug scientists in a recent talk on the cicada asked his audience:

"Have you an ideal of the absolute in hopelessness? Well, let it be said that the house in which you live is comparatively new—built within seventeen years. The ground on which it stands was originally woodland. In the Summer of 1902 all the trees thereabouts were full of seventeen-year locusts. Eggs were deposited in the branches, the larvae came out, dropped lightly to the ground, and dug in. The long period of subterranean existence is almost ended. In the Summer of this year the insects will start toward the light and air—and will come in contact with the concrete floor of your cellar! There may be another situation as hopeless, but certainly none more so."

But there will be multiplied millions of them this year and in other years to come. Modern writing on the cicada is done in the light of all the observations that have been made through more than 200 years, and it lacks the freshness of the writings of men who saw the cicada before a literature of the insect had been built up. Those early writings, therefore, possess an unusual interest.

In 1669 Nathaniel Moreton, who lived at Cambridge, Mass., wrote "New England's Memorial." In it he told of "a kinde of a pestilent fever" that had prevailed in 1633 and "carried off many of the whites and Indians in and near Plimouth."

"It is to be observed," he says, "that the Spring before there was a numerous company of Flies, which were like for bigness unto Wasps or Bumble-Bees, they came out of little holes in the ground, and did eat up the green things, and made such a constant yelling noise as made all the woods ring of them and ready to deaf the hearers."

The old gentleman is to be excused for believing that the cicadas "did eat up the green things." The appearance of the dead and withered branches doubtless was such as to justify such a conclusion. One "T. M.," supposed to be Thomas Matthews, son of Governor Samuel Matthews of Virginia, who observed the cicadas in 1678, fell into the same error.

"The third strange appearance," he writes of the disasters of that year, "was swarms of flies about an inch long and big as the tip of a man's little finger, rising out of spigot holes in the earth, which eat the new-sprouted leaves from the tops of the trees without other harm, and in a month left us."

Pehr Kalm a number of years later was a more accurate observer. He wrote a report on America for the Swedish Government, in which he said:

"There are a kind of locusts which about every seventeenth year come hither in incredible numbers. They come out of the ground in the middle of May and make, for six weeks together, such a noise in the trees and woods that two persons who meet in such places cannot understand each other unless they speak louder than the locusts can chirp. During that time they make, with the sting in their tail, holes in the soft bark of the little branches on trees, by which means these branches are ruined. They do no other harm to the trees or other plants."

For nearly 300 years, then, the written record of the cicada has been piling up.

The periodical cicada is not a locust at all. The real locust—the devastating kind—is a grasshopper, of which there are many species. The Schistocerca peregrina is the one that plagued the Egyptians and probably the one on which John the Baptist fed. The one that has sometimes ravaged the great plains and other sections of the United States is the Melanoplus spretus, a related species.

The real locust or grasshopper and the periodical cicada have very little in common—nothing, in fact, except that both occur in large numbers and both occasionally have been used as human food, the former mostly by certain peoples of the near East, and the latter by the Indians.

The real locust is an indiscriminate eater, grain fields, cornfields, meadows, pastures, weed patches—everything falls before him. The periodical cicada is dainty almost beyond belief. It was long believed that in the adult stage it took no nourishment at all. But the "seventeen-year locust" does eat while in the adult stage, its diet being confined to the juices of plants, sucked out in very small quantities and without causing injury.

So far as periodicity of outbreaks is concerned, the real locust or grasshopper is a law unto itself. The hordes may appear any year or not at all. The hordes of the cicada appear with a regularity that would almost put to shame a government clock. In spite of their extremely slow development under ground, the millions reach maturity and emerge almost at the same moment and exactly seventeen years from the date of the previous appearance.

The real locust is a sort of nomadic militant. Its hordes, like those of Attila the Hun, sweep hither and yon, always on the move, destroying as they go. The cicada is a home body. The tree from which any individual cicada dropped as a newly hatched larva seventeen years ago is the exact tree under which he will emerge this Spring, up which he will crawl to cast his pupal skin, and in which he will meet his mate and sing his love song, in which he will pass his days of decrepitude, and from which, in a few weeks, his dead body will fall, almost upon the spot where he—as a larva—fell seventeen years before and burrowed into the ground.

The belief that the 1919 brood will be exceptionally large is based on the fact that the seventeen-year brood coming out this year is Brood 10, perhaps the largest of the seventeen-year broods, and that Brood 18 of the thirteen-year family comes out at the same time. The year 1868 was the greatest locust year in history. In that year Brood 19, the largest of the thirteen-year broods, appeared in conjunction with Brood 10, the two combining to make an unprecedented infestation.

The Department of Agriculture has long kept close check on all the broods of both races and is able to say with accuracy just when and over what territory any brood will appear. The work of classifying and locating the various broods with their periods of recurrence began a long while ago and was attended for some time with considerable confusion. It was generally believed that the period of recurrence was seventeen years, but every once in a while there would be an outbreak that failed to coincide with any possible seventeen-year period and investigators were getting different results, with periods apparently ranging all the way from ten years to seventeen years. All this work was done on the assumption that all periodical cicadas were alike and the records were getting decidedly snarled before the discovery that the thirteen-year family is separate and distinct from the seventeen-year family.

With the existence of the thirteen-year family definitely recognized the work of mapping the various broods was simplified and in no great time was made complete. The perfecting work was done very largely by C. L. Marlatt, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board. Mr. Marlatt renumbered the broods and mapped the territory in which they occur.

Brood 10 has the widest distribution of any brood. Beginning at the eastern extremity of Long Island, it sweeps west and south to the Mississippi River at Cairo, Ill., and extends as far north as Central Wisconsin and as far south as Middle Georgia. The whole or portions of twenty States are included within this range. The records of this Brood have been kept from 1715 to 1902, the date of its last appearance. In 1902, for the first time since very careful study of the cicada began, it was not accompanied by a thirteen-year brood, and its actual range was more nearly determined than before, although the old limits of distribution were pretty generally confirmed.

Brood 18, the thirteen-year brood that comes out this year, is comparatively a small brood and is made up of scattered colonies rather than of the dense and compact swarms that mark the larger broods. Five States are affected by it—Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee—but it touches only limited areas of these States.

Overlapping the two 1919 broods will occur only in the States of Tennessee, North Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama. The locust population will not be so dense along the border line between the two races, neither will it be so widespread as in 1868, but it will be, nevertheless, one of the large locust years. It sometimes happens that a late Spring freeze over varying areas destroys the greater part of the locusts before the time arrives for depositing eggs, and other natural causes frequently tend to diminish the possible devastation.

The entomologists of the Department of Agriculture are undertaking a series of cicada studies in connection with this emergence to determine some points not fully investigated heretofore. Additional experiments will be made with sprays. A great deal of additional illustrative material will be gathered, particularly photographs of the activities of the insects during the night. A series of night studies will be made, also, to determine just when and under what conditions the insects emerge from the ground.

FIGHT INCOME TAX LAW.

New Jersey Commuters Oppose New York Statute.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 22.—Controller Newton A. K. Bugbee, acting in the interests of North Jersey commuters, will urge the State House Commission at its meeting tomorrow to employ counsel to test the constitutionality of the New York State income tax law, which compels the commuter to pay twice the amount of income tax that the resident New Yorker is asked to pay.

Governor Smith of New York has said the New York Legislature, when it meets, will remedy "one possible injustice and one error" in the new law at the next session to relieve New Jersey men. The New York Legislature will not meet until two months before the date set for the first tax to be paid under the law.

The State League of Republican Clubs Saturday protested against the law. In the new law is a clause which would deduct from the commuter's income under $10,000 a tax of 2 per cent., twice as much as a New York resident is asked to pay.

URGE TRADE BUREAU FUNDS

Exporters Ask Congress to Give Larger Financial Support.

Directors of the American Manufacturers' Export Association have adopted resolutions calling upon the Speaker of the National House of Representatives, Chairman and members of the Committee on Appropriations and the members of Congress to consider favorably the request of the Secretary of Commerce for increases in statutory salaries of employes of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, including commercial attaches, agents and representatives in foreign fields.

The board also urges Congress to allot funds to defray the costs of the central administrative office of the bureau at Washington.

These resolutions, which will be sent to members of Congress, are the result of facts brought out in a letter from Secretary of Commerce Redfield to Speaker Gillett. In the letter, he pointed out difficulties confronting the bureau in extending market investigations in all parts of the world, due to the lack of funds.

DELAY LAUNCHING AGAIN.

New Ways Must Be Placed Under Ship at Camden Yards.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 22.—The launching of the Seagirt, which was to have occurred yesterday at the New York Shipyard, again was postponed this morning, this time indefinitely. Engineers found that the piling under the way had settled, making any attempt at launching dangerous, as there was a prospect that the ship would stick on the ways after starting. President Marvin Neeland said it would be necessary to build new piling under the ship and provide new ways.

This is the first time in sixteen years that a ship has stuck on the ways at the plant here. The Manchuria stuck in April, 1903.

Owing to the size of the Seagirt, 21,000 tons, the vessel can only be launched on the crest of the tide, which lasts for one hour each day.

Mr. Neeland said that it would be ten days or two weeks before the launching could be attempted.

FIRE ENGINEERS TO MEET.

Chief Kenlon and Several Deputies Leave for Convention.

John Kenlon, Chief of the New York Fire Department, left yesterday, with several other chief officers of this and neighboring cities, to attend the annual convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers at Kansas City, Mo. Chief Kenlon is Vice President of the association, and, in keeping with precedent and time-honored custom, he will on Friday next succeed to the Presidency of that organization.

COMMERCIAL EXAMINATION.

State Chamber of Commerce Announces a Competitive Test.

Alfred E. Marling, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, announced today that the chamber will hold its first competitive examinations for "commercial credits" early in September. The examinations are in line with the endowment of $200,000 received by the chamber some months ago from A. Barton Hepburn, head of the Chase National Bank, to further commercial education. Under the direction of the Executive Committee of the chamber, Professor R. C. McCrea of Columbia University has planned a course of studies in which applicants will be examined. The test is open to both men and women and it is expected that the successful contestants will find ready employment in large foreign trade firms. A junior and a senior credential will be awarded to those who pass all of the optional and prescribed subjects with a rating of 75 per cent. in each subject.

In making the endowment, Mr. Hepburn suggested that at some later date a "College of Commerce" be founded. For the present he placed the use of the fund at the discretion of the Executive Committee of the chamber.

PAN AMERICAN OFFICIALS.

Rowe to be Secretary General of Conference and McGuire Assistant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Secretary Glass today announced the appointment of L. S. Rowe, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, as Secretary General of the Second Pan American Financial Conference. Official invitations to appoint delegations to this conference have been sent by President Wilson through the State Department to the Governments of Central and South America. The conference will assemble in Washington on Jan. 12, 1920. It is expected that each delegation will be headed by the Minister of Finance.

Secretary Glass has appointed Dr. C. E. McGuire Assistant Secretary General of the conference. Dr. McGuire is now Assistant Secretary General of the International High Commission. The preparations for the conference are now being made by the High Commission.

This Company's subsidiaries are operating and producing platinum and gold in the Intendencia of El Choco, Republic of Colombia, S. A.

The platinum and gold resources of this district have been known to the mining world since 1737, and a considerable quantity of platinum has been produced for many years by crude native methods.

Exceptional values of platinum and gold have already been blocked out.

Plans are being prepared to install additional equipment for mining by the most modern and scientific methods.

Opportunity For Private Capital

A manufacturing organization requires additional capital to expand and to place on the market products which have cost more than $1,000,000.00 to develop. They possess plant, machinery and equipment unencumbered and covering several acres of floor space. Modern and ideally located. Net tangible assets now exclusive of good-will or other intangible assets approximately $1,000,000.00.

They lack a record of earnings on these products to justify the required amount as a general banking proposition but possess the essentials of success which, in addition to facilities and products, include an organization possessing a record of successful accomplishment and proven ability. Possess highest banking and trade standing. Can use only capital furnished by interests whose purpose is to profit from sound constructive enterprise.

NAPLES—Italy's biggest city

NAPLES, with its surburbs, has more than a million population. Its factories, in 1911, employed about 90,000 workers. Its ocean commerce is second only to that of the port of Genoa. At Naples is located the main factory of what is perhaps the most modern and complete industrial establishment in all Italy, devoted to the metallurgical, mechanical, and chemical industries.

Our banking connection with Naples, and with about 100 other important cities in Italy, is direct; and a growing number of large and small business houses are finding it to their advantage to place their banking business with Italy in the hands of a bank which specializes on Italy.

NOTE: We shall be pleased to send you each month a copy of Italy—our bulletin devoted to Italian commerce, finance and industry.

DONATED $22,500,000 TO WAR WORK USES

FIGHTS AGAINST DISEASE

Summary of Its Various Campaigns—Sanitation Work in Twenty-one Foreign States.

The Rockefeller Foundation has spent $22,500,000 in war work from 1914 to the present year, according to the report of Dr. George E. Vincent, President of the Foundation. In the first installment of the report, issued yesterday, the work of the Foundation in 1918 is summarized as follows:

During the year 1918 the Rockefeller Foundation, through its own departments and by co-operation with seventeen independent agencies:

Extended a campaign against tuberculosis in France;

Conducted demonstrations of malaria control in Arkansas and Mississippi;

Helped to check a yellow fever epidemic in Guatemala;

Made investigations and surveys and inaugurated measures against the same disease in Ecuador;

Continued or began hookworm control;

Encouraged sanitation in twenty-one foreign States and countries and twelve States of the Union;

Entered into comprehensive co-operation for improved public health organization in Brazil and Australia;

Supported a school of hygiene and public health, which was opened in October in connection with Johns Hopkins University;

Continued to contribute to various war-work agencies until the total given since 1914 reached nearly $22,500,000;

Pushed forward the fifteen buildings of a new medical centre in Peking;

Increased the funds of twenty-four missionary hospitals, medical, and pre-medical schools in China;

Co-operated with South American institutions in establishing certain departments of research and teaching;

Maintained sixty-eight fellows and scholars from the United States, China, and Brazil who were studying at American medical schools;

Supported studies in mental hygiene;

Continued appropriations for the after-care of infantile paralysis cases;

Made additional gifts to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research;

Lent expert members of the Foundation staff for various services;

Brought to an end studies in industrial relations;

Made surveys for the American Red Cross and for the American Social Hygiene Association.

Trade acceptances 1 to 60 days and 61 to 90 days at 4½ per cent.

Acceptances purchased in open market, minimum rate 4 per cent.

Rates for commodity paper have been merged with those for commercial paper of corresponding maturities.

In case the sixty-day trade acceptance rate is higher than the fifteen-day discount rate, trade acceptances maturing within fifteen days will be taken at lower rate. Whenever application is made by member banks for renewal of fifteen-day paper, the Federal Reserve Banks may charge a rate not exceeding that for ninety-day paper of the same class.

ADVERTISING IS AN INVESTMENT

Advertising With a Conscience

Where a personal service like advertising is concerned, fitness of itself is not sufficient. Coupled with the WILL TO SERVE it is everything.

Experience, knowledge, judgment and skill are essential to advertising success, but their potency is conditioned on faithfulness and dependability.

The success of Federal's accounts is due not only to ability to make advertising pay but to Federal's conscientious interest in the welfare of its clients.

Put it up to men who know your market.

ARMY RECRUITING BREAKS RECORDS

Nearly 3,000 Enlist in Week, Surpassing Any Mark Ever Made in Time of Peace.

PLAN OPEN-AIR MEETINGS

Good Showing Due to Publicity, Say Officers in Charge of Campaign.

In its campaign to enlist the second quota of 50,000 men to add to the ranks of the larger Regular Army, the Army Recruiting Service in this city will carry on its campaign this week at several open-air meetings at central places in the metropolitan district. It is expected that, in this way, the peace-time records set last week will be excelled. The first meeting will be held at noon today at 149th Street and Third Avenue, the Bronx, with Borough President Bruckner of the Bronx and several army officers as speakers.

Although figures on the campaign throughout the country are completed only for the first four days of the campaign, it is estimated by the Recruiting Service that between 2,800 and 3,000 men enlisted in the various services during the week. The number of applications is estimated at more than 6,000. Both these totals surpass every other mark set by the Recruiting Service in any campaign during peace. A statement issued by the Service yesterday said:

"This remarkable showing is due to the great publicity given to the army's work as an educational centre, through the medium of the advertising columns of the press and the co-operation of the newspapers through publication of news articles on the subject.

"The aid given by moving picture theatres to the drive has been of great value. In the New York district alone, 128 of the best moving picture houses have been showing films of the American soldiers in Luxemburg, and a reel of the first 1,000 of replacement troops which were sent overseas—the same battalion which was seen in the recent panorama of victory in New York during the last Victory Loan campaign.

"Window displays in many of New York's great department stores have contributed largely to the success achieved in the first week. Young men and their elders have seen the appeal of the army and have been led to investigate the advantages of service."

Every man who applies for enlistment has something to say about his expectations in army life and all are glad to tell why they are enlisting. The officers, who are eager to hear all these expressions from the applicants, say the motives and aims of the prospective recruits in this campaign are higher than in any other peacetime drive and it is the opinion of all that the army is getting a higher grade of men because of its offer to teach every man some useful trade or occupation.

Major C. B. Howard of the Recruiting Service cited the case of Evan Mandrum, a soldier who served fourteen months in the Salvage Division of the Quartermaster Corps in France, and who applied for re-enlistment in the infantry after several months of civil life.

"I want to get back," said Mandrum, "because I'm fed up over hearing all these civilians express their regrets and say they're sorry they can't do this or that. I am honorably discharged from the army and I started out to get a job. I couldn't find it. Every one was sorry. They all said they'd like to give me a job, but there was no opening.

"But a fellow can't live on somebody else's regrets. If a man sticks to his knitting in the army and does his work, I've learned, he doesn't have any regrets. The army is the greatest place in the world—especially for a young man who doesn't have any fourflush stuff.

"You live too close to a fellow to fool him or let him fool you.

"The army makes you straight. A liar doesn't last any time there, and the crook 'get his' quick. There is no limit to what you can do. I used to see officers who had been enlisted men, and they made good officers. All you've got to do is to study, learn the game, and go straight.

"The pay is all right, too, for you don't have to spend anything for necessities, as you do in civil life. Thirty dollars a month as a private is better than $125 a month as a civilian in New York, unless the civilian is living off his neighbor, wearing borrowed clothes, and goes to theatres on passes. I'll take the army, and when I come out of it I'll have a roll and a trade."

Michael Sahl, who lived in Jersey City and worked for the New York Central Railroad as a machinist's helper at $23 a week, wants to be a railroad construction engineer. He enlisted in the engineers for three years and will join the A. E. F. John Duff of 440 West Forty-first Street wanted to be a globe trotter. he told the recruiting sergeant when he signed up for service in the infantry, A. E. F.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

NOTICE OF SALE OF COLLATERAL.

Notice is hereby given that, default having been made by EASTERN POWER & LIGHT CORPORATION in the payment of the principal of its five per cent. Five-Year Convertible Gold Bonds dated as of March 1, 1913, secured by a collateral trust indenture dated March 1, 1913, between Eastern Power & Light Corporation and The Equitable Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, and in the payment of certain interests due thereon, the undersigned THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, as Trustee, under said collateral trust indenture, pursuant to the authority therein contained, will through and by Adrian H. Muller & Son, auctioneers, sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesrooms, No. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on July 15, 1919, at 12:30 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, in a single lot or parcel, the collateral pledged by said Eastern Power & Light Corporation under said collateral trust indenture and all rights, rights of action and claims of the undersigned as such trustee against Eastern Power & Light Corporation and against any person or persons.

2,405 shares of the common stock of The Colonial Power & Light Company of the par value of $100 each.
1,800 shares of the preferred stock of Claremont Power Company of the par value of $100 each.
6,000 shares of the common stock of Claremont Power Company of the par value of $100 each.
2,861 shares of the common stock of Clarendon Power Company of the par value of $100 each.
12,489 shares of the common stock of West Virginia Traction & Electric Company of the par value of $100 each.
$292,000 principal amount of the Temporary First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds of the Colonial Power & Light Company.
$195,000 principal amount Claremont Power Company Thirty-Year First Mortgage Five Per Cent. Bonds.
20,000 shares of preferred "B" stock of Reading Transit & Light Company of the par value of $50.00 each.
72,000 shares of the common stock of Reading Transit & Light Company of the par value of $50.00 each.
$85,000 principal amount of past due notes of Claremont Power Company.

At the sale of said securities and said rights, the bid of the highest bidder will be accepted, but before the same are struck off such bidder will be required to pay on account of the purchase price 10% thereof either in cash or by certified bank check payable to the order of The Equitable Trust Company of New York as Trustee, and in case such bidder shall fail to make such payment said securities and rights will immediately again be offered for sale without further notice and the bidder failing to make such payment will be held liable for any deficiency. The balance of the purchase price of said securities will be payable and the securities will be delivered and must be taken and paid for in full at the office of The Equitable Trust Company of New York, 37 Wall Street, New York City, at or before 12:30 o'clock in the afternoon of July 16, 1919. Failure by any successful bidder to take and pay for the same at or before the last mentioned hour will forfeit and be deemed a surrender of all claim to the securities so purchased and all payments theretofore made on account of the purchase price thereof.

The undersigned by the terms of said collateral trust indenture above mentioned has the right at the said sale to bid for and purchase said securities. Conditions affecting said sale in other particulars may be announced at the time of the sale.

Dated, June 14, 1919.

BRITISH-AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY, LIMITED

Notice to Holders of Share Warrants to Bearer for Ordinary Shares.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that by Resolution of the Company passed on the nineteenth day of May 1919, it was resolved as follows:

RESOLUTION.

That of the rest of the unissued Ordinary Shares 2,131,773 shares shall be offered to the members on the register of Ordinary Shareholder on the Fifth day of June 1919 and the holders of Share Warrants to Bearer for Ordinary Shares on the same date in the proportion of one share for every three existing Ordinary Shares (ignoring shares which are not complete multiples of three and not allowing Registered Shares and Share Warrants to Bearer to be added together for the purpose of application or allotment) held by them at the price of £1 per share payable to one of the Bankers of the Company in London on the acceptance of the offer namely on the Fifteenth day of August 1919 and that such offer be made as to Registered Shareholders by notice specifying the numbers of shares to which the member is entitled and stating that if it is not accepted and payment made on or before the above-mentioned date it will deemed to be declined and as to holders of Share Warrants to Bearer for Ordinary Shares by such advertisement as the Directors shall deem advisable. Such advertisement shall state that holders of Share Warrants to Bearer for Ordinary Shares must in the first instance and on or before the Fifteenth day of August 1919 deposit with one of the Bankers in London an appropriate coupon (to be indicated by the Directors) as evidence of ownership Provided always that the dates in all or any of the before-mentioned cases may be extended to a later date in the absolute discretion of the Directors. Upon such deposits being made the Company shall be deemed to make to the depositor an offer of the number of shares to which he is entitled and the advertisement shall require the depositor in every case to forthwith sign a form of application for such shares which will be supplied for the purpose and to pay the sum of £1 in respect of each share applied for. If in any case a shareholder shall not signify his acceptance by payment of the said sum within the time specified or such extended time as may be fixed by the Directors as aforesaid the offer will be deemed to be declined and the Directors may dispose of all shares not applied and paid for within the prescribed time in response to such offers in such manner as they may consider expedient in the interests of the Company. The said Shares shall rank for dividend as from the Fifteenth day of August 1919 or such later date as payment with the consent of the Directors may be made therefor.

To enable holders of Share Warrants to Bearer for Ordinary Shares to subscribe for the new shares to which they are entitled, they must deposit on or before the fifteenth day of August 1919 Coupon No. 73 attached to each Warrant held by them at one of the undermentioned Banks, namely:

LLOYDS BANK LIMITED, Westminster House, 7, Millbank, S. W. 1, or 72, Lombard Street, London, E. C. 3.
The LONDON JOINT CITY & MIDLAND BANK LIMITED, Wesleyan Hall, Westminster, S. W. 1.
GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, 32, Lombard Street, London, E. C. 3.
The COLONIAL BANK, 29, Gracechurch Street, London, E. C. 3.

Upon such deposit being made the Company shall be deemed to make to the depositor an offer of one Ordinary Share in respect of every three Ordinary Shares held by the depositor but not for numbers less than three and the depositor must forthwith sign an acceptance form and pay the sum of £1 for each share accepted.

Forms of application can be obtained from the Company's Office at Westminster House, 7, Millbank, S. W. 1, or the Company's Office at 511, Fifth Avenue, New York.

Coupons and applications must not be transmitted to the Company's Bankers through the post, but must be lodged personally or through a Banker. If any Coupon accompanied by an acceptance be not so deposited on or before the fifteenth day of August next or such later date as the Board may in any case allow, the offer shall be deemed to be declined and the right in respect of such Share Warrants to participate in the offer shall cease and determine, and the holder thereof shall have no claim in respect of this offer against the Company or any Directors thereof.

The new Shares when allotted will in due course be registered and may be exchanged later on if desired for Share Warrants to Bearer upon payment of the usual fee and stamp duty.

The new Shares will rank pari passu as from the date of payment therefor with the existing Ordinary Shares.

Registered Shares and Share Warrants to Bearer cannot be added together for application or allotment purposes.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

NOTICE OF SALE.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.—Southern District of New York.—In the Matter of JOHN B. ROSE, Bankrupt.—In Bankruptcy.—No. 23660.

Pursuant to a Decree of Sale dated May 7, 1919, duly made and entered herein by Honorable John J. Townsend, Referee in Bankruptcy herein, and a Decree dated June 20, 1919, duly made and entered herein by the said Referee, setting aside the sale had on May 29, 1919, under the terms and provisions of the Decree of Sale dated May 7, 1919, at the Trial Court Room in the County Court House in the City of Newburgh, New York, vacating the said sale had on May 29, 1919, and directing a resale of all the properties described in the said Decree of Sale dated May 7, 1919, the properties of the above-named Bankrupt mentioned in said Decree of Sale, dated May 7, 1919, and in said Decree directing a resale dated June 20, 1919, will be offered at public sale by the undersigned Trustee at the office of Hon. John J. Townsend, Referee herein, at 31 Nassau Street, in the City of New York, N. Y., on July 2, 1919, at 12 o'clock noon, in accordance with and in the manner provided for by said Decrees, dated May 7, 1919, and June 20, 1919. The said sale to be had July 2, 1919, will be conducted by the said Referee, Hon. John J. Townsend, or under his direction. Bids will then and there be received by the undersigned Trustee pursuant to the terms of said Decrees, dated May 7, 1919, and June 20, 1919, copies of which may be obtained at the office of the said Referee. The property to be sold is all the right, title and interest of the Bankrupt and his trustee in Bankruptcy in and to the real estate hereinafter described.

A purchaser will be entitled only to a conveyance or transfer of the right, title and interest of the Bankrupt, and the Trustee herein in the property sold without warranty of title or the accuracy of the description of the said properties. The said properties may be inspected by prospective bidders at any time before the sale on application to the Trustee.

The said Referee at the aforementioned time and place, after all bids are received, or at such adjourned time as he may fix thereat, will entertain application or motion for, and will make such orders of sale and confirmation of sale or in reference to the administration of the estate of the above-named Bankrupt or the disposition of his assets or the adjustment, release, adjudication or confirmation of any matters affecting the administration of the said estate, as shall be proper; and an order confirming said sale or otherwise affecting the administration of the estate herein may, in the discretion of the said Referee, be made at said time and place or at such adjourned time as he may fix, without further notice to any creditor, the Bankrupt or any other person or party in interest.

The real property hereinafter described, with the buildings and improvements thereon, and such fixtures as are appurtenant to and form a part of the said real estate, and all the right, title and interest of the estate of the Bankrupt herein and the Trustee thereof in the real property hereinafter described and in the buildings and improvements thereon and in such fixtures as are appurtenant to and form a part of said real estate, will be offered for sale as above set forth at the aforementioned time and place:

All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the town of Marlborough, bounded as follows, to wit: On the north by lands formerly of George W. Lawson, Phoebe Sands on the west by the highway leading from the village of Milton to the village of Marlborough, on the south by lands formerly occupied by Henry R. Prentice, formerly owned by Samuel Ackerly, and on the east by the Hudson River. Containing about thirty-seven acres of land be the same more or less. It being the same premises owned and occupied by John Lawson at the time of his decease and by the executors of the said John Lawson conveyed by deed dated the 15th day of June, 1867, to Benjamin A. Rose, and conveyed by said Benjamin A. Rose and others to Mary Ann Haviland, wife of James Haviland, by deed dated June 22, 1867, and recorded in Ulster County Clerk's office July 9, 1867, in Book No. 144 of Deeds, at page 77.

All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate at Marlborough, New York, and more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at a point at the northeasterly corner of a lot hereby conveyed on the westerly line of lands of the New York, West Shore and Buffalo R. R., and south line of lands of J. B. Rose, and running thence along said Rose's land north, eighty-six degrees five minutes west, one thousand five hundred and seventy feet to a point on the dividing line, which is six feet north sixty-eight degrees twenty-four minutes west from an iron pin on south side of wall, thence south, sixty-eight degrees twenty-four minutes east, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-three feet to the west bounds of the New York, West Shore and Buffalo R. R., passing at nine hundred and five feet from west corner an iron pin. There is also an iron pin at the end of this line; thence along the west line of said R. R., about five hundred and sixty-five feet to point of beginning. Containing 9.97 acres be the same more or less.

All that certain piece or parcel of land with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate in the town of Marlborough and County of Ulster, formerly owned by Samuel M. Ackerly, and bounded and described as follows, to wit: Beginning on the west shore of the Hudson River in line of lands now or formerly of James Chatterton, and running thence along the line of the lands last mentioned, south, eighty-eight degrees and thirty minutes west, thirty chains and twenty-nine links to the middle of the road leading from the village of Marlborough to the village of Milton, thence along the same, south three chains and twenty-two links, thence south, seventeen degrees east, five chains and twelve links, thence leaving the road and running along a stone fence south, sixty-one degrees and thirty minutes east, twenty-nine chains and thirty links to the west shore of the Hudson River aforesaid, and northwardly along the same to the place of beginning. Containing fifty acres and eighty-seven one-hundredths of an acre more or less. Being the same premises conveyed to Emily M. Salmon by Samuel M. Ackerly by deed dated October 16, 1861.

Subject to the reservations contained in said deed; excepting and reserving nevertheless the following described premises, being that portion of the property above described which was released to John J. Tyler, by release dated the 6th day of October, 1861, and recorded in Liber 231, pages 518, &c., viz.:

All that parcel of land situate in the town of Marlborough, beginning at a point on the division line between the lands now or formerly owned or occupied by Walter Duncan and John J. Tyler, and running thence northerly along and following the course of a surveyed center line of the proposed railway route of the New York, West Shore and Buffalo Railway Company, designated upon and shown by the map and profile thereof, on file in Ulster County Clerk's office, one thousand five hundred and sixty feet more or less to the land now or formerly owned or occupied by Mary A. Haviland; said parcel of land being one hundred feet in width along the southerly boundary, and throughout its entire length or course and is estimated to contain three and fifty-one hundredths (3.51) acres more or less. Being the same premises described in a deed by John J. McCarthy and wife to Michael F. Tobin, dated January 3, 1907, recorded in Ulster County Clerk's office January 3, 1907, in Liber 399 of Deeds, at page 568. Except so much of said premises as were heretofore conveyed to John B. Rose by Michael F. Tobin and wife and also except the portion of said premises which were heretofore conveyed to the County of Ulster for highway purposes.

Subject to the reservations and conditions contained in any of the previous deeds affecting said premises or any part thereof.

All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being in the town of Marlborough, County of Ulster and State of New York, and bounded and described as follows to wit: Beginning at the southwest corner of lands formerly of Lewis Quick, where the same adjoins the state road leading from the Village of Milton to the Village of Marlborough, and at the northwest corner of the lands hereby conveyed in the middle of said state road, and running thence easterly along the south line of lands formerly of Lewis Quick, and south line of lands formerly of William Quick to the west shore of the Hudson River, thence southerly along the west shore of the Hudson River to the northeast corner of lands formerly of John Lawson now owned by John B. Rose, thence westerly along the north line of lands of said Rose to the lands formerly of George W. Lawson, now owned by George Churchill, thence northerly along the east line of lands of said Churchill to the northeast corner of said Churchill's lands, thence westerly along the north line of lands of said Churchill to the centre of said state road, thence northerly along the centre of said state road about three chains one rod and six inches to the place of beginning. Containing about 22 acres of land be the same more or less.

Excepting however, two parcels of land which were conveyed by Phebe Sands and David Sands, her husband, to the New York, West Shore and Buffalo Railway Company by the two following deeds, to wit:

1. Deed dated September 3, 1881, recorded September 15, 1881, in Ulster County Records of Deeds in Book No. 250, page 491.
2. Deed dated June 22, 1883, recorded in said Records of Deeds in Book No. 246, page 143.

The premises hereby conveyed were conveyed to Frank Sands by the two following deeds, viz.:

1. About four acres thereof by deed from Phebe Sands, dated January 2, 1896. (Book 227, page 464) and about eighteen acres thereof by deed dated February 18, 1902, made by Mary Gertrude Sands and others (Book 370, page 97).

All real property of the Bankrupt, other than that described hereinbefore, if any, wheresoever situate and all the right, title and interest of the Bankrupt estate in such other real property.

JAMES G. GRAHAM,
Trustee in Bankruptcy, 31 Nassau Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

NAVY VAINLY TRIES TO BREAK MARKET

PRICE CUTTERS SOLD UP

Architectural Terra Cotta Prices to Remain at Present Peg This Year.

Building material price positions had their most crucial test last week, and have, for the most part, survived.

The test came in the form of a circular issued by one of the purchasing bureaus of the United States Navy Department. It was addressed to the cement distributors of this city, announcing that it wanted bids on 10,000 barrels of Portland cement, and, in substance, demanded a lower price than the present market level.

The attitude of most of the companies was exactly that indicated in this column earlier in the year, that the strong companies would sit back and let the price cutters load up on the unprofitable business if they wanted to accept it, and wait still longer, if necessary, for ordinary building orders that would at least insure sales above a pauperizing profit level.

When the circular reached the field it found the habitual price cutter already loaded up with orders and not particularly interested in this requirement. Some mills today are actually facing the necessity of appealing to other cement mills to sell them cement to meet the business they have booked. The stronger companies assumed the position of merely ignoring the demands for price reductions to the navy bureau, even though intimation was made in the circular that if the prices submitted did not show a difference from the general market quotations the matter would be taken up with the Department of Justice.

The cement market is too active to make price cutting attractive, even for orders of this kind. Inquiry in one company in the first fourteen days of June this year totalled 400,000 barrels, as against 250,000 in the whole month of June last year, 330,000 barrels in all of June, 1917; 300,000 barrels in June, 1916, and 200,000 barrels in June, 1915. Contracts signed by the same company in the first fourteen days of June this year totalled 125,000 barrels, as against 30,000 barrels in all of June last year, 30,000 barrels June, 1917; 40,000 barrels, June 1916 and 30,000 barrels, June, 1915.

These figures are fairly representative of the movement in the Portland cement market in proportion to the size of the non-cutting cement companies, and show why the cement price is so firmly established.

Further reflection of the strength of the market is shown in the attitude of the Eastern group of architectural terra cotta manufacturers who report a sharp increase in demand, due to the recognition by architects and builders of the economic advantages of having the source of supply of this facing material in such close proximity to the large cities of the East, resulting in comparatively low cost of raw materials and low cost of production where repetitive architectural motives are used.

In this department manufacturers early in the year offered price concessions from the 1918 levels which stimulated demand. The Dow Service Daily Building Reports was informed by leading interests in the trade on Saturday that architectural terra cotta buyers will be assured that the present price level will not be increased this year. It may be necessary, however, to somewhat lengthen time of deliveries, and for that reason early commitments by buyers are advised.

Further evidence of the necessity for prospective buyers to promptly get into the market with the specifications is found in the fabricated steel department. The records of the Bridge Builders and Structural Society as collected for the month of May by Secretary George E. Gifford show that for that month the fabricated steel shops have already contracted for 49 per cent. of their capacity. Only a month ago the total was only 24½ per cent., representing a gain from March, which registered only 12 per cent., and February of 12½ and January 12. There has been no price cutting, concession or shading in the last month to stimulate orders. While the mills are hungry for business, they are not taking it as the result of making concession or shading.

In the dealer and distributing side of the building material market further strengthening is noted. The Brooklyn mason material dealers' yards have followed the lead of the other distributors in this vicinity and will close their yards for deliveries on Saturdays at 1 o'clock during the months of July and August. Contractors will save delays on rush work if they will advance their week-end requirements and place their orders for Saturday consumption next week on Thursdays and Fridays.

The sharp turn for the better in building financing is registering in the volume of materials moving out of mason material yards, although it is still too early to meter anything like what the volume is likely to be in another sixty days.

Settlement of the brick barge Captains' strike is looked for today, according to a statement given out by William K. Hammond, Chairman of the Committee of Brick Manufacturers appointed to deal with the strikers. "There is nothing to say about the situation now," he declared, "except that the manufacturers have not receded from their position not to add any further item to the cost of brick to the consumer in this market that will result in adding to the present price of this commodity. We expect to rigidly adhere to this price level so far as it is in our power to do so."

Every job needing common brick can get it today. Eighteen barges were discharged on Saturday and the lightened barges are being rushed back to the plants as fast as possible to get them out of danger. Strikers cut loose four barges last week in the Gowanus Canal. The brick strike situation, which looked exceedingly dark two weeks ago, was very much brighter Saturday afternoon, and by the middle of this week the crisis is expected to be entirely closed. A strike of common laborers on buildings for 65 cents an hour was an event of the week-end, but it has not developed into serious proportions.

Price changes are few. Practically all that do occur are upward. Cast iron soil pipe moved up five points, but lead has dropped slightly, to $5.05. There will be a price advance in heavy pressure valves this week. Former plumbers' earthenware prices have been withdrawn and new quotations will be out this week. Radiator valves have advanced 5 per cent., in one case at least.

U. S. MARSHAL'S NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—Notice is hereby given that THOMAS TRACY, as owner, and TRACY TOWING LINE, INC., as charterer, of the steamtugs "Mary T. Tracy" and "Walter Tracy," filed their petition for limitation of liability for any loss, destruction, damage, or injury from said vessels on January 24, 1919. Value of vessels and freight, as per order of court, $17,200.

All persons claiming damage because of said loss, destruction, damage, or injury must prove their claims before Herbert Green, Commissioner, at his office at No. 1 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on or before July 30, 1919, or be defaulted.

Dated, April 24, 1919.

TRY FOR JUNIOR ACCOUNTANCY
OCTOBER, 1919.
AND FOR SENIOR ACCOUNTANT
OCTOBER, 1920.

October 15 to November 15 is the period during which one-fourth of the year's business changes, readjustments, and building up of staffs are made.

If you have a faculty for figures and the crude stuff for the making of an accountant, there is just about time between now and October 15th this year for you, thru suitable intensive training—during your spare hours at home—to qualify for a Junior Accountancy position that will pay at least $35 a week.

And ample time to qualify before October, 1920, for position of Senior Accountant, Auditor, or Income Tax Expert, at a salary of at least $75 a week—with possibilities of more than twice that amount.

It is only a question of raw ability and industry, a resolute purpose to devote five spare home hours a week to intensive training in accordance with the most successful business-training system ever devised, under the tutelage of a corps of eminent Certified Public Accountants who are renowned as practical teachers.

We have given hundreds of ambitious, earnest men and women the start that has put them over the top, and have their records to point to with just pride. We can do as much for you if you are made of the right stuff. It is worth your while to investigate.

SHERIFF'S SALES.

By virtue of a certain writ of execution to me directed and delivered, and duly issued after a judgment in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant in the above-entitled action duly made and entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York on the 22nd day of March, 1919, I will expose to sale at Public Vendue on the 27th day of June, 1919, at twelve o'clock noon, (standard time,) at the rotunda of the County Court House of the County of New York, in City Hall Park, in the City of New York, Borough of Manhattan:

I. All property, debts, credits and effects and all rights and shares of stock, with all interest, profits and dividends thereon or therefrom, of National Securities Corporation in the possession or under the control of Guaranty Trust Company of New York, or which may come into the possession or under the control of Guaranty Trust Company of New York, including specifically all the right, title and interest of National Securities Corporation in and to the securities and cash held by Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee under a certain Trust Agreement, dated July 1, 1914, securing Ten-Year Six Per Cent. Prior Lien Gold Notes, and the interest, profits and dividends thereon or therefrom, the right to redeem said securities and cash from the lien of said Trust Agreement, and all right, claims and demands which National Securities Corporation has or may hereafter have upon or under said Trust Agreement; the securities and cash now held by Guaranty Trust Company of New York as Trustee under said Trust Agreement being as follows:

(a)	4% Notes of Idaho Power Company, due July 1, 1936, for the aggregate principal amount of	$3,209,000.00
(b)	1,500 shares of Idaho Power Company 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value	150,000.00
(c)	149,984 shares of Idaho Power Company Common Stock; par value	14,998,400.00
(d)	500 shares of the Capital Stock of Electric Investment Company; par value	50,000.00
(e)	Cash	304.42

II. All property, debts, credits and effects, and all rights and shares of stock, with all interest, profits and dividends thereon or therefrom, of National Securities Corporation in the possession or under the control of Electric Bond and Share Company, or which may come into the possession or under the control of Electric Bond and Share Company, including specifically all the right, title and interest of National Securities Corporation in and to 178 shares of preferred stock of Idaho Power Company, or the proceeds thereof, held by Electric Bond and Share Company under a certain agreement between National Securities Corporation and Electric Bond and Share Company dated November 30, 1918, and all payments made or to be made under said agreement, and all rights, claims and demands which National Securities Corporation has or may hereafter have upon or under said agreement.

III. All rights, title, interest and claim of National Securities Corporation to demand and receive from the United States Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second District of New York the sum of $218.78, with any accrued interest thereon, representing an excess payment of Federal Income Tax made by National Securities Corporation for the year 1917.

This sale is made pursuant to and in compliance with an order of the Supreme Court of the State of New York in the above-entitled action entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York and bearing date the 16th day of May, 1919, as resettled by further order of said Court entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York and bearing date the 29th day of May, 1919.

Dated New York, June 20, 1919.
DAVID H. KNOTT,
Sheriff of the County of New York.
JOHN J. MURRAY, Deputy Sheriff.

REORGANIZATION OF BAY STATE STREET RAILWAY COMPANY AND MASSACHUSETTS ELECTRIC COMPANIES
PLAN AND AGREEMENT DATED MARCH 6, 1919, AS AMENDED.

TO CREDITORS OF BAY STATE STREET RAILWAY COMPANY WHO HAVE PRESENTED OR SHALL PRESENT THEIR CLAIMS IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF THE DECREE OF MARCH 11, 1919:

Notice is hereby given that creditors of Bay State Street Railway Company who on the eleventh day of March, 1919, had presented, or who thereafter have presented or shall present, their claims in accordance with the provisions of Article Thirteenth of the decree entered on that date in the District Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts in the Consolidated Cause, entitled The Archibald McNeil & Sons Company v. Bay State Street Railway Company, in Equity, No. 834, and who have claims subordinate in lien and inferior in equity to the Refunding First Mortgage dated July 1, 1904, from Boston & Northern Street Railway Company to Adams Trust Company (American Trust Company, successor), or to the Refunding First Mortgage dated July 1, 1904, from Old Colony Street Railway Company to Old Colony Trust Company, may, subject to such regulations and requirements not inconsistent with the provisions of said decree as the Reorganization Managers from time to time shall establish, participate in said plan and agreement by filing with Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, Mass., Depositary for that purpose, on or before April 18, 1919, or in case of creditors who shall hereafter present their claims as aforesaid, within seven days after such presentation, a written declaration of their desire to participate in said plan and agreement accompanied by such data, information and assignments of their claims as shall be required by the Reorganization Managers all in such form as shall be required by the Reorganization Managers, and upon the filing of such written declaration and other papers shall receive therefor certificates of deposit of said Depositary in form approved by the Reorganization Managers, upon the acceptance of which they shall be entitled to participate in and shall be bound by the provisions of such plan and agreement, subject, however, to the right of the Reorganization Managers in their discretion at any time, either before or after the acceptance of the assignment of any such claim or the issue of certificates of deposit in respect thereof, to require that such claim be judicially established or determined by arbitration as a condition precedent to participation or to further participation in said plan and agreement. No rights under such plan and agreement shall accrue in respect of any such claim unless so deposited. If any such claim is non-assignable, the holder thereof may, nevertheless, participate in said plan and agreement in the manner aforesaid, substituting for an assignment of the claim such other documents in respect thereof as the Reorganization Managers shall require.

For further information reference is made to said plan and agreement, particularly at pages 15 and 21. A copy of said plan and agreement will be sent upon application to the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, Mass., Depositary.

U. S. MARSHAL'S NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on June 9, 1919, W. F. DALZELL, et al., filed a petition praying limitation of liability as owners and as charterer of the tug E. S. ATWOOD, for any loss, damage or injury arising on or about October 8, 1918, while said tug was towing barge No. 7, in consequence of which No. 7 is alleged to have sustained damage. That petitioners have stipulated to pay into this Court the value of said steamtug E. S. ATWOOD and pending freight as appraised, viz.: $7,800, with lawful interest according to law; that all persons claiming damages by reason of said accident are required by the monition issued to me by said Court to prove their claims before Herbert Green, Esq., U. S. Commissioner, at his office, 1 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on or before the 17th day of September, 1919, at 10:30 A. M., and that persons not so proving claims will be then defaulted.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Forecast: There were local thundershowers in the lower Missouri and upper Mississippi Valleys, the Gulf and South Atlantic States, while over the remainder of the country fair weather prevailed.

It is cooler in the lower lakes region, the Middle Atlantic States, and New England, but elsewhere temperatures continue high for the season, especially in the Northwest, where they are from 10 to 20 degrees above the seasonable average.

There will be local thundershowers Mon. and Tues. in the Southern States and Lower Ohio Valley, extending Tues. into the Upper Ohio Valley and the lake region.

In the Middle Atlantic States and New England the weather will be fair Mon. and Tues.

Moderate temperatures will continue Mon. in the Atlantic States, but they will rise on Tues. In the interior warm weather will continue.

Winds for Mon. and Tues.:
North and Middle Atlantic, gentle shifting, fair. South Atlantic, moderate mostly east, partly cloudy.
East Gulf, gentle to moderate east, except south over northwest portion, generally fair.
West Gulf, gentle to moderate winds, mostly southwest.
Partly cloudy, showers over north portion.
Western New York—Fair, warmer Mon., Tues. partly cloudy and warmer, probably showers by night.
Eastern New York—Fair Mon., warmer interior, Tues. partly cloudy and warmer.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	66	63	3 P. M.	70	73
6 A. M.	66	60	6 P. M.	69	74
9 A. M.	69	61	9 P. M.	61	70
12 M.	69	65	11 P. M.	57	68

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 66; for the corresponding date last year it was 63; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 70.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 60; at 8 P. M. it was 72. Maximum temperature 74 degrees at 8 P. M.; minimum 59 degrees at 7 A. M. Humidity 41 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 26 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.10 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.04 inches.

Firemen Face Hardest Job of Years Fighting Blaze in Flatiron Storage Rooms.

HUGE STONE BLOCK FALLS

Narrowly Misses Policeman and Imbeds Itself in Fifth Avenue Sidewalk.

A blaze in storage rooms of the George A. Fuller Company, on the twenty-first floor of the Flatiron Building, at Twenty-third Street and Broadway, which is owned by the Fuller corporation, gave the Fire Department five busy and hard hours of work early yesterday morning. The rooms were stored with furniture and other inflammable material, and owing to the difficulty of running the fire hose to the great height at which the fire occurred, the job of putting it out proved, according to Acting Fire Chief Joseph Martin and Deputy Chief Ross, one of the hardest they have been called upon to face in years.

Policeman George Chaffers discovered the fire. He, with Sergeant William Rampe of the East Twenty-second Street police station, was at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Twenty-second Street when a loud explosion, due to the fire bursting through the window, was followed by dense clouds of smoke and flame.

Chaffers sent in a fire alarm and the firemen, who were quickly on the scene, working with several high-pressure lines from the lower floors, gradually fought their way to the twenty-first floor. The five-hour battle with smoke and flame followed. The storage rooms were full of office equipment, all of which was practically destroyed. The damage was not estimated. The building itself, which is fireproof, was but little harmed.

The intense heat generated by the burning woodwork and furniture caused an ornamental stone block, four feet in length and about a foot thick, to become dislodged from one of the window settings of the twenty-first floor. It crashed to the Fifth Avenue pavement and missed Policeman Chaffers by only a few feet. The concussion broke a plate glass window in the Stein Doblin Company offices at Broadway and Twenty-second Street, and the stone itself dug deep into the pavement.

The West Side Court House, in West Fifty-third Street, was threatened by fire yesterday morning. Frank Conlon, the janitor, discovered the blaze, and turned in the alarm. Street Cleaning Department employes, who attached their hose to the hydrants, had the blaze under control when the firemen arrived. The fire was on the second floor and was confined to the record room. The damage was not extensive.

A fire that delayed the Thirty-fourth Street Crosstown cars for nearly an hour and damaged about $10,000 worth of wall paper, started early yesterday afternoon in the basement of a six-story brick building at 541 West Thirty-fourth Street owned by the Gledhill Wall Paper Company. Soon the whole building was a mass of smoke, causing persons to believe that the fire had spread to the upper floors. Two alarms were turned in by Patrolman Gentner of the Twenty-second Precinct. This was the third blaze at the same place, the others being in 1905, when a five-story frame building was destroyed, and in 1912.

BOYS TIE ALLEGED THIEVES.

Then Carry Them Through Streets to Police Station.

The spectacle of several boys carrying two youths, bound hand and foot with rope, toward the Fourth Avenue Police Station, Brooklyn, last night, attracted a crowd of several hundred. At the station the youths were freed of their bonds and were locked up on a charge of burglarly. They are Christopher Mathison, 15 years old, of 212 Eleventh Street, and Martin O'Connor, 18, of 323 Forty-third Street.

The head of the band of boys who captured them was Francis McGlynn, 17, of 4,812 Second Avenue. On June 19, Mrs. Matilda Johnson of 335 Forty-ninth Street went shopping, leaving her home in charge of her eight-year-old daughter Elsie. Two youths appeared a little later and told the child her teacher wanted her at school. When she went away, they entered the house with a key taken from under the door mat and took $50 worth of Jewelry.

They sold the jewelry to McGlynn for $1, and this was their undoing. The police found McGlynn had the stolen property and arrested him. Magistrate Geismar put him under bail, but told him he could clear himself if he found the real culprits. McGlynn has searched for the two since then. Last night, while with several companions, he saw Mathison and O'Connor, and caught them. At the police station they were identified by Elsie Johnson. Later, another person said they looked like two youths who had robbed a little girl in similar fashion.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, June 21.—Three Romneys were sold at Christie's today for 18,600 guineas. The highest price was paid for "The Warren Family." The child in the picture, Elizabeth Harriet Warren, afterward became Viscountess Bulkeley. The canvas, 95 inches by 72 inches, was bought by Albert Amor for 6,600 guineas.

Two Romney portraits of Mrs. Lowther, painted when that lady was 16, were bought by Knoedler for 6,000 and 6,200 guineas respectively.

Romney's portraits of the Honorable Charles Francis Greville and Charles, third Duke of Richmond, were bought by Agnew for 1,800 and 680 guineas respectively. Other prices were: Hoppner's portrait of Georgiana, Lady Vernon, 2,600 guineas; Raeburn's portrait of Sir Walter Scott, 1,450; Reynolds's portrait of Dr. Samuel Johnson, 800; Gainsborough's portrait of Doctor Haviland, 680; Sir Peter Lely's portrait of Ann, Duchess of York, 880; "St. Jerome in the Wilderness," attributed in the catalogue to Velasquez, brought 60 guineas.

WILL WELCOME SOLDIERS.

Oyster Bay Plans for a Celebration on July 4.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., June 22.—July Fourth here will be a day of welcome for the 445 boys who went to war from this village and the surrounding country. In the morning there will be a parade, headed by the three sons of Colonel Roosevelt, Lieut. Col. Theodore, Captain Archibald, and Captain Kermit. With them will march Lieut. Col. Richard Derby, who married Miss Ethel Roosevelt.

At noon the soldiers will march to the estate of John C. Moore, on Sandy Hill Road, where dinner will be served on the lawn. Acting as waitresses will be the daughters of those who have Summer estates in this neighborhood. Prominent actors and actresses will give an entertainment in the afternoon. Later the soldiers will march to the grave of Colonel Roosevelt, and there taps will be sounded.

MOVE TO RAISE GAS RATE.

New Jersey Company Announces Application to Service Board.

President Thomas N. McCarter of the Public Service Gas Company in a public statement served notice yesterday on the people of 164 New Jersey municipalities which that company serves that an increase in gas rates would be applied for this week before the State Utilities Commission.

At present the company charges 90 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, with an added war surcharge of 7 cents, authorized by the Utilities Board in March, 1918. The company will ask permission to increase its rates to $1.15 per 1,000 feet.

Mr. McCarter said war prices for labor and coal were responsible. For the last five months, he said, the company had operated at a loss. He also declared that a favorable oil contract, made five years ago, was about to expire, and that it will have to be renewed at greatly higher rates than the company now pays.

ROBBED IN BROOKLYN PARK.

Nurses of Training School Scream for Help, but Police Fail to Hear.

The police were not attracted, but practically every one else in the vicinity of Fort Greene Park, Brooklyn, was early yesterday morning when the screams of nurses of Brooklyn Hospital were added to those of a man who was being beaten and robbed in the park, close under the windows of the Training School for Nurses.

The nurses shouted for help, but the highwaymen continued beating the man within plain sight of the hospital windows. At last the victim ceased struggling; the bandits stopped beating him, and while one held him the other rifled his pockets. As the robbers made off they were joined by a girl, who had stood concealed by a heavy shrub. One of the nurses had meantime telephoned for the police, but the robbers escaped.

INVASION OF FRANCE

Archbishop Denounces Those Who Would Rob Orphans of Their Catholic Faith.

PLAN COUNTER CAMPAIGN

New York Diocese to Raise $500,000 for Building of Shrines in Devastated Regions.

Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes, speaking last night at a Catholic meeting in Carnegie Hall held, to use his own words, "as a protest against the action of any religious body in going to France to rob our dear orphan children of their Catholic faith," appealed to the Catholics present to push the campaign in the New York diocese, which is expected to raise $500,000 to build temporary Catholic shrines in the devastated regions of France for the "defense of the faith of France."

The attack was directed especially against the Methodist Church, which has raised a fund of $140,000,000 for home and foreign missions, and the Protestant Episcopal Church, which is raising $20,000,000, a large part of which is to be used "to identify the extension of the Protestant faith in France." In reference to this the Archbishop declared that the meeting gave him courage, as it showed that he had a courageous Catholic laity behind him, a laity who intended "to stand for no nonsense and for no attack on anything sacred to us whose religious rights are protected by the American flag."

Archbishop Hayes was preceded by William D. Guthrie, Chairman of the Executive and Finance Committees of the Society to Help Devastated Churches in France, under whose auspices the meeting was held. Mr. Guthrie declared that the Catholic Church was menaced by a proselytizing campaign in France by Americans, with vast sums of American money, in the name of a United Protestantism, and that these Americans were striving to induce the French people to abandon the faith and the church of their fathers.

The Rev. Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the 165th Regiment, (the old 69th,) after relating his experiences during the war with the chaplains of other faiths, and telling of the unanimity with which they worked, said that since the signing of the armistice a new spirit had crept into religious work, and that "certain classes of people who did little to distinguish themselves during the war, who could not give religion to Protestant American soldiers while the war was on, are now trying to force it down the throats of Catholic France."

Morgan J. O'Brien outlined the purposes of the society, and William P. Larkin, Supreme Director of the Knights of Columbus, who has just returned from France, delivered an appeal for funds that France might not be left to the "insidious propaganda of those who love only her glorious shrines." He pictured the devastated regions as "a terrain resembling interminable sand dunes on a storm-swept coast, with never a flower to recall the radiant fields of a few years before." John McCormack sang "Dear Old Pal of Mine," "The Americans Come," "Roses of Picardy," and "Ave Maria." No collection nor pledges were taken up last night, but Archbishop Hayes urged those present to carry the thought of the day would be a measure of the sincerity, depth, and vitality of their protest against stealing the souls of French orphan children.

Assails Protestant Plans.

Mr. Guthrie outlined the plans of the Methodists and the Episcopalians, and asserted that they showed clearly the intention to proselytize, despite the denials on the part of members of those churches.

"What did they mean to imply," he said, "when they said that there were orphans by the hundreds of thousands that the great majority of the French people had no religious faith at all, which they must know is not true, and that they, the Methodists, must give them the true faith? The Christian Advocate declares that the aim of the Methodist ministry 'is not to rob any man of his faith, nor to win him away from the church of his fathers.' Yet that is exactly what is being attempted and proposed by them, under the cloak and camouflage of American charity, social service, and relief to an impoverished and afflicted Catholic people!"

After assuring his audience that not one in a hundred of the American Protestants who had generously contributed to the enormous funds now being raised would support a proselytizing campaign directed against the women and children of France, he continued:

"I venture to prophesy that the proposed proselytizing campaign of militant American Protestantism will fail, no matter how many hundreds of millions of dollars they may raise. All the wealth of Protestant England, 300 years of injustice and oppression, could not seduce Ireland from the faith, and all the accumulated wealth of Protestants in America shall not prevail against the Church of Christ, nor seduce the French people from their faith. We have no fear of that. The noble and heroic women of France will save our faith for their children. But what we do fear and deplore is the pain and resentment which will be engendered and intensified in those afflicted and staunch Catholic hearts when they see and find great, generous, rich, and powerful Americans, whom they gratefully feel they owe so much, upon whom they feel they must lead, dispensing American charity with one hand and with the other seeking to lead their children away from their faith. That pain and resentment we can in great measure prevent or lessen if we can only in response to their pleading send the message, which will be so welcome and so encouraging to these impressionable and movable people, that the Catholics of America feel and sympathize with them and will help them to the full measure of their ability."

Father Duffy confined his remarks for the most part to statements of his adventures in France, but concluded with an attack upon those "who use money for religious propaganda, who go to France to buy the souls they could not save." "If they want something to do," he said, "I can tell them of something. Out there we found a great many boys who could not read and write, and the majority of them, to our shame, be it said, were American born.

"They came from the mountains of Tennessee, North Carolina and Alabama, where the dominant religion is the same as that of those who now want to proselytize. Let them teach these boys the things the lack of which, if it had existed in those of our own faith, would have been interpreted as a desire on our part to keep them ignorant."

Hawthorn Man Dies From Wound.

PATERSON, N. J., June 22.—Shot by accident while two friends were fooling with a revolver in a café, June 14, Edward B. Ackerman, ex-Councilman and Fire Chief of Hawthorn, died last night in the Barnett Memorial Hospital.

Joseph Dougherty of Tenth Avenue, North Paterson, who had the revolver when it was discharged and who had been under bail, has been rearrested. Dougherty and Albert Bonotaux were having a friendly argument when the weapon went off, the bullet glancing from the floor and striking Ackerman.

PLANNED ADVERTISING in two inch space

WHEN President Lincoln was asked how much time he required to prepare an address he said, "I can write a long one in a few hours but a short one takes several days."

So, when you see in a magazine an attractive, small advertisement that delivers a sales-making message—like the U. S. N. Deck Paint advertisements of the Billings-Chapin Company of Cleveland—realize that it probably required more time, thought and skill to produce that little advertisement than the big one on the next page.

The Billings-Chapin Company engaged us two years ago to prepare a marketing-plan. For twenty-five years they had made a large line of wood finishes which enjoyed a remarkable reputation. With no pet theories, without any predetermined line of action, with nothing but the client's interest in mind, we investigated their products, analyzed their markets—present and potential—and made our recommendations.

It was decided to concentrate the advertising on U. S. N. Deck Paint—a superior, quick-drying finish for floors and similar wood work. Large space was impractical and inadvisable. Two inches, single column, appearing every other week in The Saturday Evening Post, was recommended. Later the Literary Digest was added. It is our belief and expectation that U. S. N. Deck Paint ultimately will be the largest seller in its field in this country.

We gladly co-operate with manufacturers of worthy products even though their initial appropriations be comparatively small. If they are willing to grow, we work and grow with them. Planned Advertising will be explained to any manufacturer in any of our offices or in that of the manufacturer. Write, telephone or call for an appointment.

DE VALERA COMES HERE TO GET HELP FOR SINN FEINERS

GREETED BY ADMIRERS

Refuses to Tell How He Crossed, but Has Visited Other Cities Already.

CALLS CAPACITY "OFFICIAL"

Irish Leader Compares Movement to Our Revolution—Not an American Now.

Having been about two weeks in the country and visited Washington, Baltimore, Rochester, Philadelphia and Boston, registered under his own name at hotels and talked to "several" United States Senators and at least one Cardinal, Eamonn de Valera, whose constituents call him "President of the Irish Republic," emerged yesterday from privacy, took up quarters at the Waldorf and, as he put it, assumed his official capacity of "Irish President."

Although the actual appearances of De Valera dispelled one mystery—whether he was really in America—the second mystery of how he got into the country and escaped notice so long remained as great a secret as the source of the big wind that once visited Ireland. Dr. de Valera smilingly suggested that he might have come by air; Harry J. Boland, Sinn Fein member of Parliament for South Roscommon, his advance agent, refused to talk about it, and everybody else that was questioned looked wise and said nothing.

According to Mr. Boland a statement on Sunday, de Valera was scheduled to step into the "Presidential suite" at the Waldorf at 5:30 o'clock, not a jot before or after. At the appointed time, however, the reception room of the suite held only thirty-seven chairs, all empty. Behind a table was arranged a high-backed gilded chair with—some one had blundered—plush upholstery of a redness that suggested the British colors, and this, from its central location, apparently was designed for the chieftain of the Sinn Fein movement. Several women waited expectantly, and a few men walked up and down the corridors outside the suite. Nowhere were the colors of the Sinn Fein displayed.

Mid all the quietness a crowd of several hundred persons gathered opposite the Thirty-third Street entrance to the hotel, a mounted policeman with two patrolmen arrived and things began to look up a bit in the way of preparation. Lined two deep along the curb, the crowd waited, listening to the orchestra somewhere in the hotel playing war songs. Pretty soon an ancient taxicab with "Help the Irish Republic" pasted on its windshield came along, with a tiny Sinn Fein flag stuck in one of the lamps. The cheers of the crowd sent the corridor pacers and waiters to windows—but no, he hadn't arrived.

Comes in Touring Car.

At 5:45 o'clock a big touring car swung into Thirty-third Street from Fifth Avenue and it didn't need John Devoy, editor of the Gaelic American, sitting on the front seat with a furled Sinn Fein banner in front of him, to tell the crowd that the head of the Sinn Fein was in the rear seat. The machine, it developed later, came directly to the Waldorf from the Carmelite Priory, 338 East Twenty-ninth Street, and besides de Valera it bore the Rev. Peter E. Magennis, of the Carmelite Order and President of the Friends of Irish Freedom; Dr. Patrick McCartan, Member of Parliament, and Irish "envoy" to the United States; "General" Liam Mellowes, Sinn Fein M. P.; Diarmuid Lynch, Sinn Fein M. P., and General Secretary of the Friends of Irish Freedom; Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, Justice Edward A. Gavegan, Justice John W. Goff, and others who have taken an active part in the Irish movement in this city.

In the waiting crowd were about thirty Catholic priests and one man in Irish costume—green from head to foot, except one space where his kilts left off and his heavy, turned-down stockings began. And the cheers and tumult! It sounded as though 3,000 instead of 300 were there. As Dr. de Valera, hat off in acknowledgment of his reception, stepped from the machine, an old lady pushed past the two policemen, caught the former Dublin University professor of mathematics around the neck, and kissed him heartily. Professor de Valera laughed and hurried into the hotel.

As he was escorted to the elevator the tea-sippers he passed gazed cautiously and there was discreet applause. De Valera went first to his suite and then went down to the Gold Room, where he held an informal reception.

Belgium's King and Queen to Visit America This Fall

BRUSSELS, June 23. (French Wireless Service.)—Before President Wilson left Belgium, it was announced today, King Albert and Queen Elizabeth accepted his invitation to visit the United States.

The Belgian rulers will probably go to the United States in September.

It is twenty years since Albert of Belgium last visited the United States, his first journey here. The present King was then a Prince and spent nearly twelve months in the United States as a tourist and newspaper correspondent.

It was reported several months ago that the King and Queen of Belgium intended to visit the United States, but later this was officially denied.

OPENS SAFE IN NEW RAND SCHOOL RAID

Attorney General Seizes Contents for Inspection of Lusk Legislative Committee.

GARDEN'S OWNER WARNED

New York Life Company Told That Renting Auditorium to Radicals May Violate Law.

The big safe in the office of the Society of the Commonwealth Centre, which is the name of the corporation which owns The People's House in East Fifteenth Street, near Fifth Avenue, was forced open yesterday afternoon by agents of the State and practically all of the contents, except the cash, seized for the inspection of the Legislative committee which, under the Chairmanship of Senator Clayton Lusk, is investigating Bolshevism, anarchy, and other radical movements in this State. The Society of the Commonwealth Centre is the holding company for the building which houses the Rand School of Social Science and allied organizations, which were raided last Saturday by State agents and the police.

Authority for forcing the safe was given in a search warrant issued by Chief City Magistrate William McAdoo, and as a result of the seizure of the contents the State is now in possession of a complete list of the persons who contribute to the support of the Rand School, as well as official copies of the minutes of several important meetings held by the American Socialist Society, another organization closely affiliated with the school. It was reported that the list of Rand School financial backers contained the names of some well-known people of radical views, and it is probable that some, if not all, of the names will be made public on Thursday at the third session of the Lusk committee in the City Hall.

It was also stated on official authority last night that evidence was found in the safe that persons identified with the Rand School had interested themselves in the defense of William Haywood and other I. W. W. leaders convicted in Chicago several months ago of conspiracy to obstruct the military operations of the United States. This evidence shows, it was added, that collections to aid the Haywood defense were taken at Socialist meetings in this city, and that there is reason to believe that at least one collection was made in the Rand School.

The owner of Madison Square Garden, the New York Life Insurance Company, has been officially warned that in renting the Garden to radicals who are agitating for the overthrow of the United States Government and the substitution of a Bolshevist regime in Washington they may make themselves subject to legal action to prevent the use of the Garden by such persons as gathered there last Friday night. At that meeting several speakers openly suggested the overthrow of present American institutions. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Left Wing Socialists, and was called to protest against the raiding of the offices of Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the unrecognized Bolshevist "ambassador" to the United States. It was the second Bolshevist meeting held in the Garden within a week, both under the auspices of the Left Wing.

Stenographic copies of the speeches made at the Friday night meeting are now being studied by the Attorney General's office, and if it is decided that the speakers violated the New York law against anarchy the matter will be referred by Attorney General Newton to District Attorney Swann for action. The New York law is considered to be

TO COURT-MARTIAL GERMAN ADMIRAL FOR SINKING SHIPS

Paris Council to Take Up Question of Punishment for Fleet's Loss.

SHOT OWN MEN AT SCAPA

Crews Rebelled as the Ships Sank in Clouds of Steam, Declare Witnesses.

BERLIN SEES NEW PENALTY

Italians and French Lament the Loss of Ships Destined as Their Share.

LONDON, Tuesday, June 24. (Associated Press.)—Admiral von Reuter, in command of the German fleet scuttled and sunk in Scapa Flow, will be court-martialed for having broken the armistice conditions, says The Daily Mail today.

The newspaper adds that the details of the trial of the Admiral will be arranged by the Allied Council in Paris.

The sinking of the fleet at Scapa Flow is regarded by most editorial writers as a fresh example of German faithlessness. There are many indignant denunciations of the act of the Germans.

"A gross outrage," "A deliberate violation of the armistice," and "Treachery," are some of the expressions used by yesterday's papers.

It is contended that the carrying out of Admiral von Reuter's order automatically annuls the armistice and renders the Admiral liable to the death penalty, and all concerned to long terms of penal servitude.

Some papers demand that the Allies exact fullest penalties, including immediate payment of £70,000,000, gold, as the value of the fleet.

Several writers, however, express the opinion that, notwithstanding the "outrages" of the act, the Allies are thereby relieved of an awkward question as to the disposal of the surrendered fleet, which, owing to a divergence of opinion between the European powers and America and Great Britain, might have developed into differences difficult to compose.

Those who advocate this view, nevertheless, regret that the ships were sunk while the fleet was in Great Britain's keeping as she favored the sinking of the ships in the face of Continental opinion.

Germans Shot Own Men at Scapa.

THURSO, Scotland, June 23, (Associated Press.)—German sailors were shot by their own officers when they attempted to obey the commands of the British officers to return to their ships and shut the seacocks. This statement was made by Lieutenant Nuttall, who reached here today from Scapa Flow, where the German ships were sunk on Saturday.

"I pulled alongside a German destroyer when I saw the ship begin to settle," said Lieutenant Nuttall, "and ordered the Germans back to close the seacocks. Four or five turned back, whereupon the German officers shot three of them dead. We then opened fire on the officers and several of them dropped.

"Others among the Germans then returned and closed the seacocks. The Germans were also driven back to four or five other destroyers. They closed the seacocks in time to keep the vessels afloat.

Lieutenant Nuttall reports that the Emden has been pumped out and is now afloat. The Emden's crew were forced back to that vessel and compelled to shut the seacocks.

"Directly the first red flag and German ensign were hoisted on the first battleship," he added, "the German Admiral put off in a motor boat post haste to the British air station ashore. He related that the ships were sinking, and requested assistance for the crews.

"The Admiral was arrested. Naval men believe that the trip was a ruse to lead to the belief that the crews were taking charge of the ships. This, however, was not substantiated by what actually happened."

GLASGOW, June 22.—A graphic story of the scuttling of the German vessels has been told by an eyewitness. He says that on Saturday morning a number of school children belonging to Stromness were taken on a trip to view the German vessels. The morning was lovely and the Flying Kestrel, with about 200 on board, left Stromness at 10 o'clock.

After a short sail, they arrived in the vicinity of the German warships and passed close to the Hindenburg and other large ships. A few of the Germans went to and fro on board, but they made no advances, either friendly or hostile. In fact, it was remarked by one of the boat's crew that the Germans were unusually quiet.

After leaving the larger vessels, the Kestrel drew near the destroyers, which

Overwhelming Turkish Forces Menace Greeks in Asia Minor

PARIS, June 23.—The situation in Asia Minor is serious, according to official advices received by Reuter's, Ltd., Bureau today, which state that the Turkish forces outnumber the Greeks four to one and threaten to drive the Greeks out of Asia Minor. The Greek forces are reported to be retreating before the Turks, who are supplied with good artillery and plenty of ammunition.

The Greek General Nide has decided to make his first defensive stand along the line running north and south through Perghanos, Magnesia, Nymthalon, and Aidin. Greek reinforcements are expected to reach him within three or four days. The largest Turkish forces are advancing from Denizlu. Turkish troops have already occupied Nasli and are preceding against Aidin.

WILSON PREPARES FOR EARLY SAILING

The George Washington Has Orders to Be Ready to Leave Brest Thursday.

MAY REACH AMERICA JULY 4

Speedy Appearance in Senate Expected, Then a Wide Speaking Tour.

BREST, June 23.—The U. S. S. George Washington, which will carry President Wilson back to the United States, received orders today to be ready to sail Thursday morning. The work of loading the transport began this evening.

PARIS, June 23.—The activities noted today at the Paris residence of President Wilson appeared to indicate that preparations were being made for the President's departure for home.

Up to 2 o'clock this afternoon there had been no announcement made from the "White House," but it seemed probable from what was known that the President would leave Paris on Wednesday, barring the unexpected.

One company of the troops comprising the guard of honor at the "White House" will start for Brest tonight, and another company will go tomorrow, apparently in expectation that the President will start on Wednesday.

The George Washington will take a direct route from Brest to the United States under forced draft. Extra coal is being placed on the deck spaces.

One battleship and four destroyers will compose the escort of the George Washington. In midsea four destroyers from the Azores will relieve the original four.

Nearly all the civilian attaches of the American delegation whose work is ended with the signing of the treaty by Germany will return on the George Washington. The ship also will carry 2,500 troops.

Among the women in the Presidential party, in addition to Mrs. Wilson, will be Miss Margaret Wilson and Mrs. John W. Davis, wife of the American Ambassador in London.

One company of the guard of honor at the President's residence will remain in Paris until the peace negotiations with the other enemy countries are concluded.

Expect President Home by July 4.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Information reached the White House today indicating that President Wilson would probably leave Paris Wednesday or Thursday of this week on his return home.

The President is now expected to be in Washington not later than July 4. His steamer is awaiting his arrival at Brest, and if he should sail not later than Thursday an eight-day voyage would put him in Washington by the Fourth.

As soon as possible after his arrival here, and consistent with the status of public business, the President will leave Washington on a tour of the country during which he will take the people into his confidence regarding the provisions of the treaty and the covenant providing for the establishment of a League of Nations. When this tour will begin has not been definitely determined. It was learned at the White House today, and depends upon the decision of the President himself.

Before going before the country, the President will appear before Congress with a formal statement of the results achieved in his two visits to France and will urge the importance of prompt ac-

COBLENZ GETS PEACE NEWS

American Advance Is Countermanded—Populace Resigned to Government's Surrender.

PARIS, June 22, (Associated Press.)—The German Government at Weimar formally communicated this afternoon its purpose to sign the Peace Treaty terms unconditionally.

The German note accepting the allied conditions without reservation made only one typewritten page.

Paul Dutasta, Secretary General of the Peace Conference, had the note translated as soon as he received it and sent copies of the translation to Premier Clemenceau, Premier Lloyd George, and President Wilson.

The date for the signing of the Peace Treaty is uncertain. It will depend on whether the German Government accredits Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen to affix his signature to the compact or sends a new delegation to Versailles.

The Council this evening sent a note to the Germans asking for information on the subject. It will give the German delegation the necessary time to arrive in Versailles.

If the Germans decided to send a delegation to Versailles, the signing of the treaty probably will not occur before Thursday, on account of the necessity for verifying the new credentials. The ceremony may take place tomorrow, or more probably Wednesday, if Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen is authorized to represent Germany.

When it became known officially that the Germans had agreed to sign the Peace Treaty unconditionally guns began to boom from the forts around Paris, communicating the news to the populace, who quickly realized the significance of the situation.

Simultaneously at 6 o'clock the big siren on the roof of the Hotel Astoria, British Headquarters, near the centre of the city, began to shriek, and its piercing notes were heard for half an hour by the excited crowds in the Champs Elysées, where there were great rejoicings on the part of the people.

Request for More Time Refused.

Germany earlier in the day requested an additional forty-eight hours within which to make known its decision relative to the signing of the Peace Treaty without the reservations refused by the Entente. The Council of the Great Powers flatly refused the request.

The request for more time pleaded that the change in the Government and the generally disturbed conditions made it difficult to complete the arrangements.

This request was received at 3 o'clock this morning. At 9 o'clock President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau met with Premier Lloyd George at the latter's house for consideration of the note. The character of this communication was not disclosed, however, until later in the morning, when announcement was made, after discussion of less than an hour, that the German request had been rejected.

The German request for an extension of time was delivered under dramatic circumstances. A French officer reached Paris at 2:30 A. M. from Versailles with a note from

Text of the Final Note of Germany Accepting Terms But Still Protesting

PARIS, June 23, (Associated Press.)—In declaring its intention to accept and sign the peace terms, the Government of the German Republic has sent the following note to M. Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference, through Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen:

The Minister of Foreign Affairs has instructed me to communicate to your Excellency the following:

It appears to the Government of the German Republic, in consternation at the last communication of the allied and associated Governments, that these Governments have decided to wrest from Germany by force acceptance of the peace conditions, even those, which, without presenting any material significance, aim at divesting the German people of their honor.

No act of violence can touch the honor of the German people. The German people, after frightful suffering in those last years, have no means of defending themselves by external action.

Yielding to superior force, and without renouncing in the meantime its own view of the unheard of injustice of the peace conditions, the Government of the German Republic declares that it is ready to accept and sign the peace conditions imposed.

Please accept, Mr. President, assurances of my high consideration, (Signed) VON HANIEL.

Desperate Straits of German Leaders Seen in Prompt Yielding to Ultimatum.

PARIS, June 23.—Germany's complete surrender caused no surprise to Wilson, Clemenceau, and Lloyd George, the men who had borne the heavy burden of responsibility and hard work through the many months of the interallied negotiations. They and those in their confidence had been confident for weeks that it would be impossible for the German Government to take any other course than that announced to the allied peacemakers this afternoon by Haniel von Haimhausen, the chief representative of Germany now at Versailles.

There have been hours of anxiety in the past few days, but it is safe to say that those who had the major part in dictating the terms that Germany was obliged to accept never wavered in the belief that these terms would have to be swallowed.

Every preparation had been made for the advance of the allied troops further into German territory. Had a refusal instead of an acceptance come from the German Government these troops would probably have been ordered to carry out punitive measures early tomorrow morning. According to what was said here, the forward movement would have begun at 3 A. M. Tuesday.

No doubt exists that Wilson, Clemenceau, and Lloyd George had lost patience with Germany's present administrators and were prepared to resort to drastic measures if they sought further delay. The German powers that be at Weimar and Berlin will probably never know how firm the allied chiefs were in this intention.

Last night they found cause for irritation in the communication from the new German Government, stating that, while it was ready to accept the treaty, it would not consider Germany bound by the provisions for the trial of the ex-Kaiser and those placing the sole responsibility for causing the war on Germany, and furthermore, believing the terms impossible of fulfillment, would not regard itself as blamable if they were not carried out.

To this communication the Council of the great powers sent a response that left no doubt of its firm intention to hold the German Government

WEIMAR, June 22.—The session of the National Assembly today at which the decision to sign the Peace Treaty was taken by a vote of 237 to 138, with 25 blank ballots, was funereal in its general aspect. Every one present seemed to realize that it mattered little what orators for or against signing said, because Germany as a leading power was dead anyway.

Only once did the spirit of the Assembly's members and the audience seemed roused. That was when Herr Kahl, of the Deutsche Volkspartei, quoted letters from the districts near the occupied region urging refusal to sign even if the Allies should begin a military advance.

"Let the whole country suffer rather than submit to shame," was the spirit of what he said.

There were two mysteries that remained unsolved, the first being the status of two reservations with which the Government proposed to sign, although these were not expressed in the resolution empowering acceptance of the treaty. The supposed reservations, for a few minutes, threatened to endanger the passage of the resolution at the close of the debate, but as the independent members raised fierce objection they were finally overruled. They referred to the paragraphs of the Entente's document dealing with Germany's culpability for the war and the extradition of the ex-Kaiser and other culprits.

The other mystery was in relation to certain secret documents by Count Brockdorff-Rantzau giving reasons why Germany might not in his opinion sign. Kahl said that this document had been withheld from the Assembly, but nothing further on the subject developed.

Had Expected a Close Vote.

It was just past 4 o'clock when President Fehrenbach declared the debate closed, and the urns were passed around for collecting the red and white tickets, on which respectively the "No" and the "Aye" of Germany's fate was written. At the final moment many members seemed to awaken to the importance of the moment and could be seen going from bench to bench arguing until the last. In several cases it was observed that the color of the cards was changed.

The result was a great surprise to most of those present, who had expected a very close vote.

Women in gayly colored clothes filled more than half of the galleries and boxes. The stage was crowded with men in black and field gray, some of the latter wearing bandages, reminding the Assembly that Spartacus was still alive and active.

There was silence when Premier Bauer's stout figure, with a lame leg, ascended the tribune. Not the slightest sign of approval or disapproval was given when Bauer, in a monotonous

National Party, People's Party, and Some of the Centrists Opposed Yielding.

WEIMAR, June 23, 5:15 P. M., (Associated Press.)—The National Assembly this afternoon voted to sign the peace terms unconditionally, the Government having succeeded in overcoming the opposition of those who insisted on two conditions.

Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen, a member of the German peace delegation, who was asked to conduct peace arrangements at Versailles, has notified the Government that he will not sign the allied terms.

BERLIN, June 23, (Associated Press.)—General Maercker, who is in command of the forces guarding Weimar, made a pessimistic statement at a meeting of various parties today regarding the signing of the treaty, according to a Weimar dispatch.

All the Generals and staff officers of the army have threatened to retire if the Government signs peace unconditionally, it being declared that such a step would be incompatible with the honor of the German Officers' Corps.

The assembly met at noon, and Premier Bauer asked for confirmation of the Assembly's decision, as the allied and associated powers had rejected Germany's reservations. The Assembly thereupon declared, notwithstanding the opposition vote of the German National Party, the Peoples' Party, and a section of the Centrists, that the Government was still empowered to sign the treaty.

EXPECT SHORT TENURE FOR BAUER CABINET

Erzberger Considered to be Its Dominating Figure—Majority Socialists Weakened.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WEIMAR, June 23.—No political tears have been shed over the going of the Schiedemann Government. Its death, indeed, was a happy release even for itself.

During six months it did little but drive its Socialist supporters from the majority party into the camp of the Independent Socialists to such an extent that it now looks as if Socialist unity will be achieved by the absorption of the majority party in the independent faction. The working classes of the country undoubtedly hail the Government's going with satisfaction. They regard the Socialist members as having betrayed the revolutionary trust placed in them in November by the almost complete failure to translate socialistic theory into practice.

Nor were the Democratic members of the Government happy in their position. Long before the end of the war they had been preaching that Germany could have a good peace on the basis of President Wilson's Fourteen Points and of the speeches of various entente statesmen. This persuaded vast numbers of people that they were only fighting to prevent a Kaiserism and Prussianism.

Those who accepted that view now complain bitterly that they have been deceived by the Democrats. The latter, on account of the great discrepancies which they insist exist between the peace conditions and the promises held out to Germany, have been discredited in the eyes of their supporters. So the Government has gone unwept and unhonored.

The work of forming a new Government was one of extreme political chaos. At the palace and at the Royal Theatre countless meetings were held. Matters dragged from hour to hour and many people appeared to lose their heads and all sense of political reality.

Hermann Müller, Chairman of the Majority Socialist executive body, and Dr. David, Minister without portfolio, endeavored in vain to build a new Cabinet. While such efforts were being made the Majority Socialist and Centre Parties managed to reduce the number of their non-signers until something like unanimity was reached.

The Centre debated for hours on a proposal emanating from Government quarters that acceptance of the treaty should be accompanied by reservations regarding the handing over of the ex-Kaiser and others and the questions of war guilt and of the Danzig corridor. For a while the question of war guilt threatened to play havoc with the majority in the National Assembly in favor of acceptance, but before night the Centre had swung round to an unqualified "Yes."

During the day Professor Schücking, a member of the peace delegation, had been working hard in the ranks of the Democrats. He managed to make them almost solid for nonacceptance, and with that "success" vanished for the time being all chance of persuading the Democrats to enter the new Government.

This morning the Democratic Party was found to be still clinging desperately to the point that acceptance should be made conditional on the reservation that Germany shall not have to hand over the ex-Kaiser and other persons demanded by the Entente. It also refused to give a mandate to any of its members to enter the new Government.

The two chief Democrats in question are Count von Bernstorff, who will go to Rome as Ambassador shortly after peace is signed, and Dr. Dernburg. Efforts were made to persuade them to enter the Government without their party's mandate, and believing that those efforts would be successful Bauer began constructing a Cabinet, but both of them finally decided not to accept office and Bauer's first effort failed.

After luncheon Bauer began a second effort to form a Cabinet, and in about an hour he succeeded.

It wil lbe seen that with the exception of three Ministers, all his collegues are men from the Scheidemann Government. The new Government is therefore merely one without the spirit of Scheidemann, a spirit which was expressed in the war cry that the peace conditions were "impossible of fulfillment, unbearable, and unacceptable." In place of that dominating if erratic personality there is now in reality that of Erzberger, perhaps equally dominating and erratic.

It is a Ministry not intended to last or even to attempt to weather the heavy political storms which lie ahead. It is a Government with the sole duty of facing the inevitable and signing peace.

I have just had a talk with Otto Hörsing, High Commissioner of Silesia, who tells me that Silesia accepts the Entente's solution of a plebiscite and will abide by the result.

"We asked for that," he said, "and now that our request has been granted Silesia will not fight. We are thankful for this concession."

As regards West Prussia, however, matters are not so satisfactory. I have seen Herr Schultz, one of the National Assembly's members from that part of the country. He is very pessimistic.

"Unless something is done there will be 10,000 corpses there, I am afraid," he declared.

WANT ASSEMBLY DISSOLVED.

Centrists Urge New Elections in Germany Soon.

BERLIN, June 22, (Associated Press.)—The disruption of the three-party coalition Cabinet is stimulating speculation regarding the quality of support which the new Government may expect from the present union of the Majority Socialists and Centrists on issues other than those concerned with the signing of peace.

Comment today was generally to the effect that the new coalition was a flimsy one and that the Ministry was a weak makeshift. An official bulletin from the Centrist Party states that the Government parties are not overanxious to assume responsibility for the fate of the country longer than is absolutely necessary, and advocate the dissolution of the National Assembly and the issuance of writs for new elections as soon as possible after the conclusion of peace and the ratification of the Constitution.

The Centrist organ, Germania, admits that the majority at the disposal of the Majority Socialists and the Centrists is skimpy, but says that it suffices to cover immediate needs. The paper predicts that its own party will enter new elections under a heavy handicap in addition to being charged with responsibility for much that is taking place at present.

That the Government is keenly disappointed over the defection of the Democrats is indicated in the comment of the Majority Socialist organ, Vorwärts, which accuses the Democrats of indulging in a dangerous game of compromise and intrigue, bringing the nation into grave jeopardy.

Predictions that the new "black-red bloc" will be short-lived is based on the expectation that the solution of problems concerning taxation, finance and socialization contain much combustible material which might disrupt the present coalition.

TEXT OF EXCHANGES PRECEDING ACCEPTANCE

Germans Tried to Make Reservations and Sought Forty-eight Hours' Extension.

PARIS, June 23, (Associated Press.)—Before the final unconditional acceptance of the Peace Treaty today, Haniel von Haimhausen, the new head of the German peace delegation, transmitted to Premier Clemenceau this plea for delay:

"To His Excellency, the President of the Peace Conference, M. Clemenceau:

"Mr. President: The Minister for Foreign Affairs instructs me to beg the allied and associated Governments to prolong for forty-eight hours the time limit for answering your Excellency's note, communicated yesterday evening, and likewise the time limit for answering the note of June 16, 1919.

"It was only on Saturday, after great difficulties, that a new Cabinet was formed, which, unlike its predecessor, could come to an agreement to declare its willingness to sign the treaty as regards nearly all its provisions. The National Assembly has expressed its confidence in this Cabinet by a large majority of votes. The answer only arrived here just before midnight, as the direct wire from Versailles to Weimar was out of order. The Government must come into contact anew with the National Assembly, in order to take the grievous decision which is still required of it in such a manner as it can only be taken in accordance with democratic principles and with the internal situation in Germany.

"Accept, Mr. President, the assurance of my distinguished consideration.

"VON HAIMHAUSEN."

The following reply was sent after its approval by the council of the allied and associated powers:

"Mr. President—The allied and associated Governments beg to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of June 22. After full consideration of your request they regret that it is not possible to extend the time already granted to your Excellency to make known your decision relative to the signature of the treaty without any reservation.

"CLEMENCEAU."

The Acceptance with Reservation.

The latter part of the note in which Germany agreed to sign the treaty with two reservations was as follows: [The text of the early part of this note was printed in a late edition of THE NEW YORK TIMES Monday morning]:

"The Government of the German Republic engages to fulfill the conditions of peace imposed upon Germany. It desires, however, in this solemn moment to express itself with unreserved clearness in order to meet in advance any accusation of untruthfulness that may now or later be made against Germany.

"The conditions imposed exceed the measure of that which Germany can in fact perform. The Government of the German Republic therefore feels bound to announce that it makes all reservations and declines all responsibility as regards the consequence which may be threatened against Germany when, which is bound to happen, the impossibility of carrying out the conditions comes to life, even though Germany's capacity to fulfill them is stretched to the utmost.

Specifies German Reservations.

"Germany further lays the greatest emphasis on the declaration that she cannot accept Article 230 of the treaty of peace, which requires Germany to admit herself to be the sole and only author of the war, and she does not cover this article by her signature. It consequently follows without further argument that Germany must also decline to recognize that the burden should be placed upon her on the score of the responsibility of the war which has unjustly been laid at her door.

"Likewise it is equally impossible for a German to reconcile it with his dignity and honor to accept and execute Articles 227 to 230, by which Germany is required to give up to the allied and associated powers for trial individuals among the German people who are accused by the allied and associated powers of a breach of international law and of committing acts contrary to the customs of war.

"Further, the Government of the German Republic makes a distinct protest against the taking away of all the colonial possessions of Germany and the reasons given therefor, which permanently deny to Germany fitness for colonial activity, although the contrary is clearly established and irrefutable evidence to this effect is contained in the observations of the German peace delegation on the conditions of peace.

Want Revision Two Years Hence.

"The Government of the German Republic assumes that it is in accordance with the desires of the allied and associated Governments that it has spoken openly both as regards what concerns its good will and also as regards its reservations. Therefore in view of the condition of restraint into which the German people are forced by the requirements of the Allies—a condition of constraint such as has never been inflicted on any people in a manner more crushing and more disastrous in its consequences—and relying on the express undertaking of the allied and associated Governments in their memorandum of June 16, 1919, the German Government believes itself to be entitled to address the following modest request to the allied and associated Governments, in the expectation that the allied and associated Governments will consider the following declaration as an integral portion of the treaty:

"Within two years, counting from the day when the treaty is signed, the allied and associated Governments will submit the present treaty to the High Council of the Powers, as constituted by the League of Nations, according to Article 4, for the purpose of subsequent examination. Before this High Council the German plenipotentiaries are to enjoy the same rights and privileges as the representatives of the other contracting Powers of the present treaty. This council shall decide in regard to those conditions of the present treaty which impair the rights to self-determination of the German people and also in regard to the stipulation whereby the free economic development of Germany on a footing of equal rights is impeded.

"The Government of the German Republic accordingly gives the declaration of its consent, as required by the note of June 16, 1919, in the following form:

"'The Government of the German Republic is ready to sign the treaty of peace, without, however, recognizing thereby that the German people was the author of the war and without undertaking any responsibility for delivering persons in accordance with Articles 227 to 230 of the treaty of peace.'

"Weimar, June 21, 1919.

"BAUER, President of the Imperial Ministry."

In transmitting this to M. Clemenceau under date of Versailles, June 22, the temporary head of the German delegation added:

"Accept, Mr. President, the expression of my consideration.

"VON HANIEL."

The Allies' Peremptory Reply.

In replying the Council of Five said:

"The allied and associated powers have considered the note of the German delegation of even date, and, in view of the shortness of time remaining, feel it their duty to reply at once. Of the time within which the German Government must make its final decision as to the signature of the treaty less than twenty-four hours remains. The allied and associated Governments have given fullest consideration to all representations hitherto made by the German Government with regard to the treaty, and have replied with complete frankness. They have made such concessions as they thought it was just to make.

"The present note of the German delegation presents no arguments or considerations not already examined. The allied and associated Governments, therefore, feel constrained to say that the time for discussion is past.

"They can accept or acknowledge no qualification or reservation and must require of the German representatives an unequivocal decision as to their purposes to sign and accept as a whole, or not to sign and accept, the treaty as finally formulated.

"After the signature the allied and associated powers must hold Germany responsible for the execution of every stipulation of the treaty."

LAST DELAY EFFORT FAILS

Haniel von Haimhausen saying that the Weimar Government had notified him that it would sign the peace terms, but thta the text had not been decided upon, and would be sent later.

This was immediately delivered to Secretary Dutasta's chief of staff. The Secretary was awakened, and he in turn aroused President Wilson and Premiers Clemenceau and Lloyd George. A meeting was then arranged for early in the morning.

The fact that the Germans asked only forty-eight hours' delay and yet were refused was regarded in Peace Conference Circles as indicating the intention of the Allies to push matters to an immediate conclusion. Pending the formal notification by the Germans as to their intention, the great allied military machine was ready to move on the stroke of the hour of the expiration of the time limit.

After disposing of the German request for more time the Council apparently dismissed German affairs to the fate of the hours still left the enemy to reply and resumed consideration of the Austrian treaty. Experts from various commissions were called in.

MILAN, June 22.—Apropos of the dramatic downfall of the Orlando-Sonnino régime the Milanese democratic journal, Il Secolo, is finally permitted to publish a chapter of fact which throws a flood of light on the Italian policy at the Peace Conference.

At the preliminary meetings of the Cabinet held in Rome during December last, Sonnino scored a majority of the determining votes that Italy was to go to Paris demanding the fulfillment of the famous compact of London and nothing else. Indeed at a council of war held on Dec. 28, Sonnino imposed Italy's renunciation of Fiume in spite of stout opposition from General Diaz, the Italian Commander in Chief.

During those discussions Orlando at first favored the minority view, according to which the London compact should serve as a weapon for vindicating national rights, while the annexation of the city and port of Fiume on the score of its Italian majority was to be negotiated for in exchange for Sebencia, where a majority of the inhabitants are Croats. Subsequently, however, Orlando came entirely under Sonnino's sway and this, says the Secolo, explains his hesitations, equivocations, and reticence which terminated by rendering him obnoxious to everybody. "The story goes in Paris," says the Secolo, "that Lloyd George once said Orlando represented the biggest failure in his political life. Lloyd George had always succeeded in making compromises with everybody, but in Orlando he had never found a single consistent point upon which to work."

Orlando was welcomed in Paris by the Big Three at the outset of the conference as one on whom they could count for cordial understanding and fruitful co-operation, for they regarded Sonnino as "too much compromised by his political history."

While Orlando acted as sole spokesman at Paris, confining himself to the agreement mapped out in the compact of London, he was at the same time, so the Secolo alleges, engaged in stirring up noisy and incessant nationalist demonstrations throughout Italy, particularly on the Fiume question, "with the object of making the conference believe that our delegation was far more moderate than the country."

As the outcome of these nationalist demonstrations Orlando obtained Sonnino's reluctant consent in the middle of March to propose to the conference, through Signor Barzilai, the annexation of Fiume, but always provided that the compact of London were preserved intact. This demand, however, made little impression, because everybody at the conference was fully aware that the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs was really unfavorable to the project.

Without his approval direct negotiations were next opened up with the Jugoslav representatives, with the result that on April 11 an agreement was reached securing to Italy four-fifths of the Austrian tonnage, while the Jugoslavs contented themselves with a single ship. Promising headway was further made relating to the Fiume settlement when a peremptory order from Orlando ruptured the negotiations of April 23.

When the Italian delegates had made their startling exodus from the conference a pooling of the Austrian shipping was decided on by the higher economic council. Nevertheless the Italians on their return resumed their conversations with the Jugoslavs, and on May 16 at a reception at the Hotel Crillon were formally assured by the head of the American delegates that the American delegation not only would strive to obtain the approval of the conference for a private and immediate arrangement arrived at between Italy and Jugoslavia relative to the tonnage question, but that if this agreement could be extended in an equal manner to the whole question of territorial settlement in the Adriatic, President Wilson would be immensely pleased, and would himself undertake to get it sanctioned by the conference.

Unfortunately, this happy prospect was again frustrated through the action of Orlando, who insisted that the Italian delegates must obtain a definite settlement that self-same day.

With regard to the personal relations between Orlando and Wilson, the Secolo avows that after the former's return from Italy these became glacial.

was evident Wilson had never pardoned his having excited all Italy against him," it says. "The President of the United States did not think he had offended the Italian people in his public declaration of April 24, and attached personal blame to Orlando for having, as Minister of the Interior, with the censorship under his control, allowed so many vulgar insults to be printed in Italy against him.

"In fact, the matter had become embarrassing in America itself, where Wilson's antagonists found themselves driven to uphold him on the Italian question simply on account of the violent and indecent campaign which Orlando had permitted the Italian press to foment against the head of the American State."

ITALIAN CABINET FIERCELY OPPOSED

Demonstrations Against It in Naples, Turin, and Milan by Patriotic Societies.

ROME, June 22.—In Naples, Turin, and Milan demonstrations have occurred in protest against the formation of the Cabinet by Francesco Nitti, former Minister of Finance. It is reported that these demonstrations have been promoted by patriotic organizations composed mostly of former soldiers who believe that Signor Nitti's policy is favorable to a renunciation of part of the claims of Italy to the eastern coast of the Adriatic, which were maintained at Paris by former Premier Orlando and former Minister of Foreign Affairs Sonnino.

According to reports, the demonstrators have cried, "Down with Giolitti," "Down with Nitti." "We do not want traitors to the country and the Government."

A great mass meeting was held here yesterday at which resolutions unfavorable to the new Cabinet were passed and a pledge was taken to organize in Rome a "great opposition movement."

The Giornale d'Italia says: "The Jugoslavs have heard with satisfaction of the Ministerial crisis, thinking that the fall of Premier Orlando and Foreign Minister Sonnino will change the situation in their favor by reducing the Italian claims."

Following is the list of the new Ministry:

Foreign Office—TOMMASO TITTONI.
Colonies—LUIGI ROSSI.
Justice and Worship—Signor MORTARA.
War—Lieut. Gen. ALBRICCI.
Finance—FRANCESCO TEDESCO.
Treasury—Signor SCHANZER.
Marine, ad Interim—Rear Admiral SECHI.
Instruction—ALFREDO BACCELLI.
Public Works—Signor PANTANO.
Transport—Signor DE VITO.
Agriculture—Signor VISOCCHI.
Industry, Commerce, Labor, and Food—CARLO FERRARIS.
Posts—Signor CHIZENTI.
Military Assistance and Pensions—Signor DACOMO.
Liberated Provinces—Signor DE NAVA.

The new Premier has addressed a circular to all the prefects in the kingdom in which he says that Italy's sacred claims cannot be efficaciously set forth by the Government unless the Government is supported by the united strength of the country. The circular urges the prefects to use the utmost vigor in preventing the breaking down of national energy through dissensions.

"The supreme necessity of the country," says the circular, "is to produce, and it is impossible to produce without order."

The Premier threatens severe punishment to whomsoever contributes to augment the dearness in the cost of living and promises a speedy abolition of all war restrictions.

On two former occasions Signor Nitti had tried to achieve what he has now succeeded in doing. After Caporetto, in December, 1917, when he had been Minister of the Treasury only a few weeks, he allowed it to be known through diplomatic circles that he was ready to head a Government which would be ready to make separate peace unless the Allies came to Italy's rescue.

At that time he had several conservatives with Italy's "big boss," Giolitti, who, having thrice been Premier, retired in the Spring of 1914 to attend to private interests, leaving Salandra, it was said, to keep the chair warm for him; but Salandra would not yield this chair when the war came, and Giolitti having failed to have Italy accept the Austrian proposals to keep her out of the war, finally retired in disgrace to Turin just as Italy entered it in May, 1915.

The second time that Nitti tried to secure the Premiership was in January of the present year, when he became convinced that the Orlando-Sonnino policy could not be made to prevail at Paris. This time he had a strong following among the Reformed Socialists, and particularly among the newly formed Catholic Party. But on this occasion he was obliged to resign for his liberal views on the treaty of London and Fiume. The Orlando Government was merely reconstructed.

The Minister of the Treasury, Signor Schanzer, was in the Giolitti Government of 1906, and so was Tittoni. De Nava was in the short-lived Cabinet of Boselli in 1916, and the rest, save General Albricci and Admiral Sechi, were all associated with Giolittian administrations prior to 1914, and have hardly been heard of during the war.

ROME, June 23.—"The Nitti Cabinet will immediately have against it all the force created by the war," says the Idea Nazionale, the intransigeant national organ, voicing, together with Giornale d'Italia and the Epoca, the discontent and suspicion of the greater part of the Parliamentary groups and the press against Nitti, whom they consider to be a follower of Giolitti, the latter having always been a bitter opponent of Italy's entrance into the war.

The undercurrent of feeling everywhere is that a Ministry headed by Nitti will be ready to make renunciation of Italian aspirations, whereas the whole country would be opposed to such a thing.

"No renunciations abroad, internal reforms at home, beginning with the electoral system—these two points are so firmly planted in the public conscience that no human force can remove them," ends up the Idea Nazionale.

The Presidents of the Chamber and Senate have received numerous telegrams from patriotic associations all over the country protesting against intrusting the formation of a Cabinet to "the anti-war Giolittian party."

GERMANS PLANNING BIG TRADE CAMPAIGN

Will Make Superhuman Efforts to Recover Pre-War Eminence, Expert Says.

BUILDING HUGE PLANTS

Great Stocks of Chemical and Pharmaceutical Products Amassed to Flood World Markets.

PARIS, June 23, (Associated Press.)—"Germany is feverishly perfecting preparations for a superhuman attempt to regain her pre-war industrial and economic prestige."

This statement was made today by Edward C. Worden, an American authority on chemistry, who has just returned from an inspection of German industrial centres on a special mission for the American Government.

"From an inspection of a majority of the large chemical manufacturing establishments in the occupied territory of the Rhine Provinces, especially around Cologne and Ludwigshaven," continued Mr. Worden, "it appears that Germany is in a position to resume manufacturing, as soon as raw materials can be obtained.

"Since the armistice the plants have undergone a thorough and painstaking overhauling in anticipation of resumption of production on a large scale, in contradistinction to the watchful waiting policy in a majority of the allied countries.

"Upwards of 5,000 workmen are employed in the operation and on new construction at the Badische plant for nitrogen fixation, located at Oppau, a few miles from Ludwigshaven. Storage capacity has been built or is in process of erection, for upwards of 600,000 tons of ammonium salts for fertilising purposes, mainly ammonium sulphate. It is said that the German Government has advanced for this project alone 2,060,000 marks, to assist the movement for the restoration of Germany's former industrial supremacy.

"Whereas, at the time of the signing of the armistice only the foundations of a few buildings of this gigantic plant had been laid, the works at the present time are in active production, operating on a twenty-four-hour per day basis.

"Furthermore, another plant of still greater magnitude is being erected by the same interests on the opposite bank of the Rhine.

"This is but one cogent example of the policy of Germany. The immediate period of reconstruction, as evidenced by the preparations proceeding in German chemical factories today, is to be largely determined by the bulk and quality of the industrial output. From the activity in these chemical plants, and the new buildings and additions of a permanent nature going up everywhere, there can be only one conclusion, namely, that the German people are laying a permanent foundation for commercial aggressiveness upon a broad and solid basis.

"The immense Bayer factory at Leverkusen has been transformed from a wartime footing to a peace time manufacturing basis and has in stock ready for immediate shipment several thousand tons of dyestuffs, pharmaceutical and photographic chemicals, besides intermediate products of worldwide demand before the war.

"From the chemical activity everywhere, it is apparent that as soon as the opportunity comes, relentless industrial aggression will be inaugurated, and all evidence points to a thorough and painstaking organization to insure permanent success."

"BOW OF PEACE" FOR LONDON.

Observers Comment on the Sign as News Comes from Paris.

LONDON, June 23.—The news that Germany had consented to sign the peace treaty was awaited with keen interest by Londoners. The late editions of the evening newspapers were eagerly bought by the people, but there was no undue excitement and not the slightest approach to the wild scenes enacted on "Armistice Night."

The people waiting in the vicinity of the Houses of Parliament for the news saw a rainbow over the river. This was greeted by some of them as a sign of "Peace in the heavens."

PARIS PRESS SKEPTICAL.

Expects Germans to Observe Treaty Only Under Duress.

PARIS, June 23.—The Paris newspapers, in commenting on the decision of the German National Assembly to sign the treaty, lay stress on the efforts of Germany to escape her responsibilities and see in them proof that the German mental attitude has not changed.

The Germans, it is declared generally, will observe the clauses of the treaty only with a knife at their throats, and point to the deliberate destruction of the German ships at Scapa Flow as a symbol and a warning.

Belief is expressed by the Echo de Paris that the resistance of the Germans, manifested not only at Scapa Flow but at all points in Europe where they are not bound down tightly, will show the Allies that safety can be found only in the military partnership of the victors.

SEE TRADE DIVERSION IN EXCHANGE VARIATION

Lira Buys Far Less Here Than in Europe—Franc and Lira Buy More in Germany.

PARIS, June 23.—The varying rates of exchange will play such an important part in the reconstruction of Europe after peace is signed that economic experts are making a careful study of exchange with a view to discovering what the natural channels of trade will be for the various European countries if the rates continue as now.

The Italian lira and the French franc now buy so much more in Germany than in England that it is considered by financial experts that Germany unquestionably will find buyers for her wares among French and Italians, who will not be ruled by sentiment. The rate of the lira is much better in Germany than in France, and consequently the financial experts believe that Italian traders will be attracted to the German markets in preference to those of France.

Because the buying power of the lira is far less in the United States than in Germany, France or England, the experts say that America cannot hope to compete.

BANKERS PLAN TO AID EUROPE'S BUYING HERE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 23.—James B. Forgan, President of the First National Bank, returned today from Washington with details of the plans evolved at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Federal Advisory Council, for organizing a giant corporation to coordinate all of the financing to be done in this country for Europe.

Mr. Forgan said:

"At the conference of the Federal Reserve Board with the Executive Committee of the Federal Advisory Council, held in Washington, the situation in regard to the establishment of a large corporation for the purpose of financing the purchases which nations desire to make in this country, was fully considered. It was found that the matter had advanced beyond the stage which made it necessary to hold in Washington the proposed larger conference of bankers and exporters. The idea of holding such a conference was therefore abandoned.

"A committee of bankers has already been appointed in New York, and similar committees will probably be formed to represent the other Federal Reserve Districts, and it will be left to them to take the initiative in the matter of the organization of the proposed large financial corporation, and of the co-operating corporations, which it isproposed to organize in connection with the various lines of the export business.

"An amendment to the Federal Reserve act was unanimously recommended at the conference, which will remove the present limitation placed upon additional banks in investing in stock in corporations engaged in international or foreign banking.

"This privilege is at present confined to banks having a capital stock of $1,000,000 or over. The recommendation is that the privilege of investing in the proposed corporation for financing foreign credits should be extended to all banks, irrespective of the amount of their capitalization, to the extent of 5 per cent. of their capital and surplus."

tion by the Senate in its ratification of the treaty. He will insist that the treaty should be ratified in its entirety, including the covenant of the League of Nations, and will make the fight of his career before the Senate and the country for acceptance of the whole treaty, without modification or qualification.

From what can be gathered in inner circles here the President will enter the fight against the Republican opposition in the Senate with a great deal of confidence. He has been kept closely advised as to the progress of events in Washington, and now that the Knox resolution and all other efforts to influence the Peace Conference at Paris prior to the signing of the treaty have failed, the President will make a straight-out fight with the Republicans of the Senate over the action which that body intends to take.

The signing of the treaty, when ratified by Germany and only three of the principal allied and associated powers, will bring about restoration of peace on the continent of Europe so far as the belligerents are concerned, but technically this country will still be under an armistice arrangement with Germany until the Senate by a two-thirds majority ratifies the treaty. Administration leaders in the Senate believe that the acceptance of the treaty by the Germans makes the Knox resolution, for the separation of the treaty from the League covenant, obsolete, and merely smiled when Senator Knox insisted that his resolution was "very much alive."

Expect Pressure from Business.

The belief prevails in Democratic circles that the signing of the treaty will be followed by the development of strong sentiment throughout the country for its early ratification. They do not believe that the masses are opposed to the league, or that the Republicans, through speeches, propaganda, or whirlwind tours, will be able to stir up sufficient opposition to the League project among the people to force amendment or qualification of its provisions.

Democratic leaders are also counting upon the business and trade interests of the country to aid in the demand for early ratification without amendment. It is not the belief of Democrats that the great business, exporting and financial interests will desire to have this country continue in a state of "technical" war with Germany, after the treaty has been put in actual effect through ratification by Germany and three of the principal allied and associated powers.

The irreconcilable element in the Senate has determined not to await the return of President Wilson to Washington. Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California and Senator James A. Reed of Missouri have accepted invitations to speak at a mass meeting to be held in Carnegie Hall, New York City, next Saturday night. This will be the first of a series of mass meetings planned to be held throughout the country in opposition to the league by the League for the Preservation of American Independence.

Senators Johnson and Reed, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, are to be put forward as representatives of the non-partisan fight that is to be made on the covenant by the League for the Preservation of American Independence. Henry Watterson is President of the league and George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia is Vice President and Chairman of the Board of Directors. Mr. Pepper will speak at the meeting.

At the mass meeting in Carnegie Hall, the keynote of the opposition will be sounded. After the opening in New York, a number of Senators opposing the League of Nations will start on speaking tours which will include every part of the United States.

Senate Ratification Predicted.

It is not believed by advocates of the treaty and of the League, among Senators, that the projected tour of this little group of inflexible opponents of the covenant will seriously affect its fate in the Senate. The belief is growing that the publication of Mr. Root's letter to Senator Lodge, following so closely the appearance of Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, in Washington, on Friday, is more than a mere coincidence. It was recalled today that it was at Chairman Hays's request that Mr. Root wrote his first analysis of the original league covenant, suggesting many changes.

The conviction is also growing that the great majority of the Republican Senators agree with Mr. Hays that the disposition of the league covenant should not be made a party issue. Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has sent a telegram to Washington denying that at any time, or under any circumstances, has he ever declared that the League of Nations was a party question.

The acceptance of the treaty by the Germans and the policy outlined by Mr. Root seem to leave no doubt that the Senate will ratify the League. Whether there will be any qualifying resolution or resolutions passed is the only question now and its answer will depend on the turn which sentiment takes in the Senate after the President and the Republicans complete their contest. The general view now entertained at the capital appears to be that the President will ultimately win his fight against both amendment and qualification.

Late this afternoon Secretary Baker received a dispatch from Colonel T. Bentley Mott, American Military Attaché at Paris, stating that the Germans had signed the Peace Treaty shortly after 5 o'clock, Paris time. Later advices convinced officials that there had been some confusion in the dispatches and that the Germans had only "promised" to sign, but had not actually signed, and that it was probable that the actual signing would not take place before Wednesday or Thursday.

NAMING OF HANIEL IRRITATES COUNCIL

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

to strict accountability for every provision contained in the revised treaty.

When over night Germany sought to obtain a further delay of two days within which to determine whether to accept or reject the peace conditions, Wilson, Clemenceau, and Lloyd George realized that the time for even plainer talk had arrived and sent their brief ultimatum refusing to grant a postponement and demanding an answer before 7 o'clock this evening—time limit set a week ago today.

That emphatic answer could not have been communicated to Haniel von Haimhausen at Versailles much before noon, as the decision to send it was reached at the conference between Wilson, Clemenceau, and Lloyd George which began at 9 o'clock this morning.

This shows how grave was the situation that confronted Germany, as the allied ultimatum had to be transmitted to Weimar in time to permit the German Government to consider the rejection of its appeal for further postponement and have its reply in the hands of the council by 7 this evening.

That the heads of the German Administration realized the necessity of haste is obvious from the fact that their answer reached Haniel von Haimhausen several hours before the time limit was up.

All the plans of the Allies for the ceremony of signing are based on having it occur at Versailles under impressive circumstances, and in order to carry out these arrangements and make them as impressive as desired it will be necessary to have the German plenipotentiaries return to Versailles from Weimar.

The council was irritated over the inference drawn from the designation of Haniel von Haimhausen as temporary plenipotentiary that he alone would sign the treaty on behalf of Germany. To have the final ceremony at once it would be essential to recognize him in this capacity, and the council regarded such an arrangement as yielding to the evident German desire to show its last contemptuous disregard for the leading men of the victorious nations.

A program being formulated this evening is based upon Thursday as the date that will see the official ending of the war with Germany.

When the news that the Germans had agreed to sign the treaty was circulated in the various allied headquarters the commonest expression, uttered with an air of relief, was: "The war is over."

GLOOM OVERCAST WEIMAR SESSION

voice, explained that the old Secretaries had dropped out because they could not bring themselves to sign the treaty, and his tone became almost sepulchral as he announced the willingness of the present Government to sign.

Denunciation of Treaty Cheered.

The audience remained quite still during most of his address. There were no protests or interruptions except when the new Prime Minister concluded:

"I am finished. I will only add that a man in my position who is willing to sign a document that means terrible harm to his people has no right to speak of a better future. But I will say one thing: All Germans without exception agree that this treaty contains the most shameful conditions ever inflicted on any people."

This provoked something like general applause.

Bauer was followed by Herr Loeb, for the Government Socialists, and by the Centrist leader Gröber, both trying their best to justify a vote of confidence for the new Government and willingness to sign peace. They were interrupted now and then by half-hearted cries of "Very true." Both orators were evidently hastening to get over their tasks as quickly as possible, almost as if ashamed.

The audience became much more animated when Herr Schiffer, Democrat, and Count von Posadowsky-Wehner, of the National People's Party, urged refusal to sign the treaty.

Herr Schiffer gained stormy applause when he taunted the Socialists and Centrists with quotations from some English authors who had declared that Englishmen would never sign such a peace, but his appeal to the honor of the members of the Assembly was answered by the Independents with shouts of: "It is ridiculous to talk of honor to a drowning man."

Posadowsky had somewhat noisy support from the reactionary members, but the rest of the house soon tired of his often repeated arguments, and members who had sat quite still through the earlier part of the session became restless. His indignation over the demand for the extradition of the ex-Kaiser and others evoked only very slight approval from his Junker friends. This seemed to nettle Posadowsky, who again returned to the subject, saying that even Wilson had not insisted that the ex-Kaiser and his Generals alone caused the war.

Haase Flays the Junkers.

For the first time Hugo Haase, leader of the Independents, had undivided applause from the Government Socialists when he unmercifully derided those who blamed the revolution for Germany's present plight.

"Bethmann's policy and the Kaiser's clique are guilty," he thundered. "That is beyond all doubt.

"You dare not try again," Haase continued, pointing a threatening finger at the Government benches, "to shield the guilty parties. There must be no more subterfuges. The world wants nothing but truth and honesty."

Haase raged again when he accused the retiring Government of having encouraged armed opposition to the last, even in case some other Government should sign peace. "Has ever the world heard of such dishonest conduct by responsible statesmen?" he asked.

There were violent protests at this, but also much applause.

"Haase has accused the past Government of sleight-of-hand tricks in dealing with the peace proposition. Let me tell you that all the members of the past Government together do not know as much of sleight-of-hand as Haase."

A telegram describing the sinking of the German warships in Scapa Flow arrived and was posted in the lobbies. Great crowds gathered and read the news silently. One old Centrist member remarked:

"That is what I call a good German deed."

Bauer Asks for Moral Revolution.

WEIMAR, June 22, (Associated Press.)—In announcing before the National Assembly today the decision of the German Government to sign the peace terms, Premier Bauer said: [This passage from the speech is in addition to extracts previously cabled.]

"At this hour of life and death, under the menace of invasion, for the last time I raise in free Germany a protest against this treaty of violence and destruction. I protest against this mockery of self-determination, this enslavement of the German people, this new menace to the peace of the world under the mask of a treaty of peace.

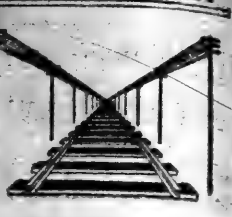
"No signing can enfeeble this protest which we raise and swear to. This treaty does not lose its annihilating character by alterations in detail. Protesting against it is useless and is at the risk of a new crisis within forty-eight hours.

"Our power of resistance is broken and there is no means of averting this treaty. The treaty itself, however, does give us a handle which we cannot allow to be wrested from us, namely, the Entente's solemn promise of June 16 that the treaty can be revised from time to time and adapted to new conditions. That is one of the few words in the treaty breathing the real spirit of peace."

Premier Bauer concluded by expressing his faith in the German people and their final realization of a better future. He said they were faced with years of labor for the foreign account, but owed it to their descendants to hold the country together.

"They must safeguard our new liberty," he said. "There must be a will to work and a discipline in all ranks of society. There are no miraculous charms to cure a nation. Even a world revolution cannot rid us of the malady from which we are wearing away. Only by a revolution of our moral consciousness can we succeed in raising ourselves out of our night into a better future."

Analysis of the vote on the treaty in the Assembly seems to show that the bulk of the Democrats went over at the last minute to the side of those who advocated signing, on the understanding that the terms would be accepted on condition that former Emperor William would not be delivered to the Allies and that German citizens, such as Field Marshal von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff, would not be extradited.



At each pole you pass

Few minds can grasp a figure as large as a million. Here is one way: Next time you are riding on the back platform of an observation car, watching the miles fade by, imagine a parcel of eight copies of The Delineator thrown off at each telegraph pole you pass. If this were kept up all the way from New York to San Francisco, there would still be left forty thousand Delineators out of a single month's edition of a million. And every Delineator — 12 million a year — carries its message (and yours?) into the heart of an American family.

LEAGUE OPPONENTS SEEK REALIGNMENT

With Peace Signing at Hand, Conservatives Incline to Root Qualifying Plan.

KNOX TO PRESS FOR VOTE

Says His Resolution is as Effective as Ever—Radicals Firm for Direct Amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—With the treaty of peace about to be signed by Germany, opponents of the League of Nations in the Senate today devoted themselves to an effort to come to a definite understanding on a policy to pursue against the League covenant when it reaches that body. At the end of the day, after a number of conferences among groups of Senators, it became evident that the task of agreeing upon a program was an extremely difficult one.

Bitter foes of the League of Nations, including Senator Borah of Idaho, Senator Johnson of California and other Progressive Senators, insisted that the body of the League covenant must be appreciably amended to win their support. They were not disposed to accept the suggestion of Elihu Root, as embraced in his letter to Senator Lodge, that the Senate pass a qualifying resolution enunciating features of the covenant to which the Senate objects.

As opposed to the attitude of these Senators, the majority of the conservative wing on the Republican side accepted the Root idea. They feared that they could not muster enough votes to make amendments directly upon the body of the covenant.

A few Senators among the conservatives, such as Mr. Moses of New Hampshire, maintained that the League opponents could get enough support to amend the covenant, without resorting to the qualifying resolution. Mr. Moses prophesied that Article X., involving guarantees of territorial integrity, would be eliminated from the covenant. The opposition, he said, could count upon forty-nine votes with which to do it. The Republican opponents would depend upon Democratic Senators Reed of Missouri, Gore of Oklahoma, and possibly Thomas of Colorado to make up for defections from their own ranks.

Either Change or Rejection.

Senator Moses predicted that every change urged by the opponents of the League covenant would be adopted by the Senate.

"If these changes are not made," he said, "the treaty of peace, with the League of Nations covenant, will be rejected by the Senate, for its advocates could not muster the necessary two-thirds vote to ratify it."

Within forty-eight hours, Senate leaders said, they expected an agreement to be reached among the contending Republican elements as to what policy to pursue. Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and those who stand with him in support of the Root plan believe the foes will concentrate upon that plan.

If the adherents of the qualifying resolution should win out, it was admitted, they would first have to convince the Borah-Johnson faction that there was no hope of direct amendment to the covenant. Both Mr. Borah and Mr. Johnson feel, so they said today, that direct amendments can be accomplished and they insisted that they would accept no compromise. Senators who espouse the Root plan were trying to convince them that, to win the fight against the covenant, they must yield.

While the conferences were going on Senator Knox of Pennsylvania announced that he intended, some time before July 1, to call up his resolution asking the Peace Conference to write a clause into the Treaty of Peace reserving to the United States and other nations the right to join the League of Nations later. The Pennsylvanian argued that his resolution would be just as effective, if adopted, after July 1, when the appropriations measures will be out of the way—as now.

Knox Still Backs His Resolution.

"Of course I intend to press my resolution to a vote," said Mr. Knox, "and a vote after July 1 will be as good as one at this time. The single question raised by the resolution as to the United States is that the League covenant should receive further consideration by the people before the Senate advises its inclusion in the treaty. This can be done without delaying peace a moment, and can be accomplished by exchange of diplomatic notes at any time. It will be remembered that this proposition of separate consideration was presented to the Senate on Dec. 3 last, before President Wilson left for Europe, and was pigeonholed in the Committee on Foreign Relations, then under democratic control."

Although Mr. Knox's suggestion that the proposed change could be made through diplomatic exchanges was approved by a few adherents of his resolution, the majority of Senators appeared to consider the measure hopelessly lost. They argued that the time for any effect to be produced by it would pass with Germany signing the treaty of peace. To do anything with the resolution, they said, it would have to be amended so as to provide that the desired clause be inserted by the Senate. This, it was pointed out, would alter it so that it would assume the phase of a qualifying resolution. If any resolution of reservation was to be put through, Senate leaders agreed, it would be along the lines of that suggested by Mr. Root.

Proposes a New League.

Senator Hale of Maine, in a speech in the Senate, in which he attacked President Wilson and the other American peace delegates for having failed, as he alleged, to safeguard the interests of America in the Peace Conference, adverted to the Knox resolution and offered an amendment to provide for the codification and development of international law, establishment of international tribunals, and settling disputes among nations. The amendment, which went to the Foreign Relations Committee, read:

That, finally, it shall be the declared policy of our Government, in order to meet fully and fairly our obligations to ourselves and to the world, and in order to promote and maintain a condition of peace throughout the world, to encourage the establishment of and to enter into a League of Nations open to all of the nations of the world, which shall embody the suggestions in the proposed covenant of the League of Nations found on mature deliberation not to be in conflict with our interests, and shall bring about what our country has consistently stood for in the past and what the proposed covenant does not bring about, namely, the codification and development of international law, settle questions involving international law, and the settlement by arbitration of all differences between the nations which are not cognizable under international law.

Senators who oppose the Root plan for a qualifying resolution, with its suggestion for elimination of Article X., argued today that under any such resolution the matter under reservation would at some time be thrown back to the League Council for determination and that the Council, in that event, might decide that all reservations running counter to the League covenant must be rejected. This, they argued, would nullify the purpose sought, and put the United States in the position of being forced to accept the covenant as it stands.

As against this, Senator McCormick of Illinois pointed out that Mr. Root had suggested that the matters proposed for reservation be submitted to the principal powers signing the treaty, so as to ascertain whether they approved them. In this way, Mr. McCormick argued, the reservations, or understandings, would be passed upon by the other powers, the United States in the meantime reserving the right to withhold acceptance of the matters dissented to.

Progress for Root Plan.

The Root plan is to be taken up by the Foreign Relations Committee after the treaty of peace reaches the Senate. The committee, dominated by opponents of the League, is expected to approve either the Root proposal or a modification of it, to be embraced in a resolution to be reported favorably to the Senate. Around this report of the committee the battle on the League of Nations covenant will centre.

This is the program now in the minds of advocates of the Root plan.

Senator Reed believes the covenant can be amended on the floor of the Senate without recourse to a qualifying resolution.

"We will either amend the league covenant, or kill it," said the Missouri Senator.

Senator Chamberlain, Democrat, of Oregon, who, until recently, favored changes in the league covenant to explicitly reserve the right of the United States to determine its control over immigration, fell into line today with advocates of the league.

"If the covenant were to be changed, I think the plan suggested by Mr. Root would be the one to follow," said Mr. Chamberlain. "But I am satisfied that the covenant is all right, as it stands. I will vote for it."

Senator Johnson reiterated his previous attitude of uncompromising opposition.

"I am opposed to the Root plan because it does not go far enough," he said. "I am against any qualifying resolution. I want changes, and drastic ones, made in the body of the covenant. I intend to fight for them."

Senator Swanson of Virginia, reflecting the attitude of the Administration Democrats, said the Senate unquestionably would defeat any move for a qualifying resolution.

Mr. Knox's suggestion that his resolution would be as effective after July 1 as now," he said, "is logical only in that it never would be effective. The League opponents have tried every trick and they are beaten at every turn. The League covenant will be adopted by the Senate as a part of the treaty."

Notice to Peace Conferenee.

In his speech in the Senate Mr. Hale expressed the opinion that the Knox resolution was too late to effect changes in the Peace Treaty.

"But at least the resolution, reported favorably, as it was, by a majority of the Committee on Foreign Relations," he said, "has given notice to the Peace Conference that the proposed covenant of the League of Nations is not acceptable in its present form to the Committee on Foreign Relations, to which the treaty of peace must be referred.

"The President, with his board of dummy delegates, chosen because they would do his bidding without question and with the immense prestige of our country back of him, has used that prestige to force upon an unwilling world a project that in its present form violates every principle and policy of the country which he was supposed to represent. To enforce the adoption of this project he has sacrificed not only the interests of his country, but practically every tenet which he himself announced, before the armistice, as the basis of future government of the world.

"The trouble with President Wilson is that his ideals and policies are not the ideals and policies of the American people. He has told us repeatedly that our fight against the Central Powers was a great crusade for democracy and humanity, and we have not challenged the statement, because it sounded well and because we thought that the statement would do no harm. But it has done harm, infinite harm. He has persistently gone ahead with this idea in his mind, and the fruits of this idea and its working out are the present covenant of the League of Nations, to accept which he is seeking to force the American people.

"The covenant is now, or shortly will be, before a body of Americans who will look after and are in duty bound to look after the interests of our country. Our position is that of trustees for the American people. As such we have no right to administer our trust for any other purpose than the best interests of the people whom we represent. We have no right to forfeit to the rest of the world any of our country's assets, unless by so doing we are acting for the manifest advantage of our people. We are acting for them, not for the rest of the world."

WASHINGTON, June 23. (Associated Press.)—Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, read into the record today a telegram from Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, denying that he had said the League of Nations was a party question.

"At no time and under no circumstances have I said the League of Nations was a party question. On the contrary, I have maintained it is an American issue," it said.

POLL A PLURALITY FOR RESERVATIONS

Lineup on League Covenant in Senate Shows 43 Favor This Course.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 23.—That the League of Nations covenant will be approved by the Senate, with reservations protecting American rights and interests, as proposed in the Root letter, was indicated by a poll of the Senate made by The Chicago Tribune in Washington today. The poll gave this result:

For the covenant, with reservations, 43.

For the covenant, without reservations, 40.

Against the covenant, either with or without reservations, 8.

Non-committal, 5.

Here is the detailed lineup:

Democrats for the covenant, with reservations: Gore and Thomas—Total, 2.

Democrats for the covenant, without reservations: Ashurst, Beckham, Chamberlain, Culberson, Dial, Fletcher, Gay, Gerry, Harris, Harrison, Henderson, Hitchcock, Johnson, (S. D.,) Jones, (N. M.,) Kendrick, King, Kirby, McKellar, Martin, Nugent, Overman, Owen, Phelan, Pittman, Pomerene, Ransdell, Robinson, Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, (Ariz.,) Smith, (Md.,) Smith, (S. C.,) Stanley, Swanson, Trammell, Walsh, (Mass.,) Walsh, (Mon.,) Williams, Wolcott—Total, 39.

Republicans noncommittal: None.

Democrats noncommittal: Bankhead, Myers, Shields, (Tenn.,) Smith, (Ga.,) Underwood—Total, 5.

The Tribune's Washington correspondent says:

"The eight Senators listed as against the League, even with reservations, who contend that all entangling alliances are un-American, will vote for the reservations, so that the opponents of the League in its present form will be able to muster at least fifty-one votes, or more than the majority required on amendments.

The first move of the Administration leaders will be to strike out the reservations one by one. On these votes, the opposition Senators insist they can muster a majority vote sufficient to beat any motion to strike out.

With the ratification resolution loaded with reservations the issue will be on the final acceptance of the treaty. The Administration forces will then be confronted with the choice of accepting the ratification resolution with the reservations included or voting for rejection of the treaty and the delay of peace.

Ledebour Acquitted in Brief Trial.

BERLIN, June 23, (Associated Press.)—Georg Ledebour, Social Democratic leader, who was arrested in connection with the disorders in Berlin in January, was placed on trial today. He was acquitted.

MOVE TO DECLARE WAR AT AN END

Senators Fall and Edge Put in Resolutions for Congress to Act at Once.

STOP GAP TILL TREATY VOTE

Seek to Open Up Enemy Trade to America While Fight Over Ratification Goes On.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Movements were started in the Senate today to bring about formal recognition by the American Government of the return of the status of peace in view of the prospective signing of the Peace Treaty by the Germans.

Senator Edge of New Jersey and Senator Fall of New Mexico each introduced a joint resolution declaring the war at an end. The resolutions were laid upon the table for future consideration.

These and other Senators feel that the United States will be at a disadvantage in the matter of resumption of trade relations with the enemy countries unless the treaty is ratified promptly by the Senate and the American ratification papers deposited at Paris. They assert that some action is necessary as a stop-gap pending actual ratification of the treaty.

The final revised draft of the treaty has not been made public. The draft made public by Senator Borah early this month provided:

"From the coming into force of the present treaty the state of war will terminate. From that moment, and subject to the provisions of this treaty, official relations with Germany and with any of the German States will be resumed by the allied and associated powers."

The final article of the treaty explains when the treaty shall come into force. It provides, first, that "the present treaty shall be ratified." This means that each Government must ratify, hence if there should be an extended fight in the Senate against ratification running, say, over several months, or into the Fall, American ratification would be delayed just that long and the treaty not come into full force as far as the United States was concerned.

Deposit of Ratifications.

"The deposit of ratifications," read the text of the treaty as submitted by Senator Borah, "shall be made at Paris as soon as possible."

How soon these ratifications are deposited on behalf of the United States will depend upon the promptness with which the Senate acts. England, France, Italy, and Japan are in position to ratify the treaty much more speedily than the United States. There will be considerable delay here unless the campaign of opposition in the Senate collapses and prompt ratification is given.

"Powers of which the seat of government is outside Europe," the text of the treaty read, "will be entitled merely to inform the Government of the French Republic through their diplomatic representatives at Paris that their ratification has been given; in that case they must transmit the instrument of ratification as soon as possible."

No such notification can be given through the American Ambassador at Paris until after the State Department has been officially informed that the Senate has consented to ratification.

The treaty provides that "a first proces-verbal of the deposit of ratifications will be drawn up as soon as the treaty has been ratified by Germany on the one hand and by three of the principal allied and associated powers on the other hand."

Under this provision when Germany and any three of the principal allied and associated powers, such as England, France, and Italy, or Japan, ratify the treaty this proces-verbal will be deposited. The treaty provides:

"From the date of this first proces-verbal the treaty will come into force between the high contracting parties who have ratified it. For the determination of all periods of time provided for in the present treaty this date will be the date of the coming into force of the treaty. In all other respects the treaty will enter into force for each power at the date of the deposit of its ratification."

Amendment to Pending Bill.

These features of the treaty were uppermost in the minds of Senators Edge and Fall in the action they took. Senator Fall offered an amendment to the Army Appropriation bill to have Congress declare the state of war at an end. This amendment was ruled out of order as not germane and was tabled without debate. The amendment read:

The state of war heretofore existing between the United States of America and the Imperial German Government and Germany, and the United States of America and the Royal Austro-Hungarian Government, declared to exist by Senate Joint Resolutions 1 and 121, April 6 and Dec. 17, 1917, respectively, no longer existing, a state of peace between the United States of America and its people and the former Imperial German Government and Germany and its people and the United States of America and its people and the former Royal Austro-Hungarian Government and its people is recognized by the Congress to exist, and the President is hereby authorized and directed to procure the immediate return to the United States of all military forces used under his command and direction under authority of said resolutions, or either of them, and also the return of such naval forces as are not necessarily used in foreign ports or waters in times of peace.

No funds herein appropriated or authorized shall be used for maintenance of such military forces upon foreign soil, except as necessary in carrying out the above purpose.

Text of Fall Resolution.

Failing to reach the matter over the amendment route, Senator Fall drafted a joint resolution as follows:

Whereas, heretofore, to wit, on April 6, 1917, the Congress of the United States adopted a joint resolution declaring that the Imperial German Government had committed repeated acts of war against the Government and people of the United States, and "that the state of war between the United States and the Imperial German Government which has thus been thrust upon the United States, is hereby formally declared, and that the President be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to employ the entire naval and military forces of the United States and the resources of the Government to carry on war against the Imperial German Government;" and

Whereas, by the use of such forces and means the war so declared to exist was brought to a successful termination and an armistice was entered into on Nov. 11, 1918, and the Imperial German Government was overthrown, and the terms of such armistice have been fulfilled; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the state of war heretofore existing between the United States of America and the former Imperial German Government and the German people no longer exists, and a state of peace is hereby declared to exist between the United States of America and the German Government and people.

Resolved, further, That the President be and he is hereby authorized and directed to secure immediate return of all military forces of the United States used in the pursuance of the power vested in him by the said resolution of April 6, 1917, and not already returned to American soil, and to likewise secure the return of all such naval forces not necessary to use in foreign waters in time of peace.

Text of Edge Resolution.

Senator Edge's resolution reads:

Whereas, a treaty of peace between the United States of America and associated nations and Germany has been concluded and duly signed by the respective plenipotentiaries of the Governments recently involved in war; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the state of war declared by Public Resolution No. 1, Sixty-fifth Congress, approved April 6, 1917, to exist between the German Government and the Government and the people of the United States, be and hereby is declared to be terminated and at an end.

Section 2. That all American soldiers of the forces of the United States now in Europe shall be withdrawn from such foreign service without loss of time and returned to the United States, except such soldiers of the United States Regular Army as have enlisted specifically for service in Europe.

Statement by Senator Edge.

Senator Edge made this statement on his resolution:

"The war actually is at an end, and this resolution is formal recognition and declaration of that fact by the only agency of the Government which can declare war or peace, the Congress of the United States. The object of this resolution is to preclude delay in the formal conclusion of the peace and to open a way for prompt and business-like discussion of the peace pact and the covenant of the proposed League of Nations.

"It is now nearly eight months since hostilities were stopped by the signing of the armistice, and it is high time that the United States took up the question of peace in concrete fashion and relieved the uncertainties and apprehensions in American business circles and in the homes of the citizens. That the American soldiers, except such as have voluntarily enlisted for foreign service, should be sent to their homes without loss of time, is, to my mind, imperative. The boys have fought and suffered, and their relatives and other friends have suffered even more in their hearts, and it is time that all such suffering be relieved."

Senator Fall's Views.

Senator Fall in a statement said:

"War is a status of relations between nations. It is not a status that ordinarily is produced by legislation or specific acts, but is a condition which is recognized as existing, as we recognized it to exist when it was thrust upon us by Germany. That state of war has since ceased to exist. I propose, therefore, by resolution, to recognize the cessation of that status precisely as formerly we recognized its existence.

"No treaty is necessary to make peace, which is simply a condition; just as no declaration to make war. The writers on international law recognize at least three ways in which peace can be produced.

"If, now, we declare a declaration of peace, peace in fact being restored, we return to the old status of relationship. The treaty that is being negotiated in Paris is not an ordinary peace treaty at all. I know of no document like it that has been negotiated for the purpose of making peace between nations. Ordinarily a peace treaty prescribes the conditions under which the nations are to live in the relations of peace. It specifies the terms under which navigation and commerce shall be carried on. But there is nothing of that sort in the treaty they are making at Paris.

"The purpose of my resolution and of the amendment I have offered to the Appropriation bill is simply to recognize formally the fact that the status of peace has returned. The return of that status is a return of the relationship as to commerce and navigation which existed before the state of war was declared to exist.

"It must be remembered that while Clemenceau, Lloyd George, and the others at Paris are engaged in actually making peace, President Wilson is not making peace. He is merely negotiating it. After his negotiations it will not become peace until it is ratified here and the ratifications are deposited. The point is that the other nations have processes by which they are able to peace more quickly than we can, because our procedure includes ratification by the Senate.

America at a Disadvantage.

"As a result the European nations will be at peace with Germany before we can, unless by such a resolution as this we formally declare the status of peace to be resumed. The treaty includes the provision that when three of the major belligerents opposing Germany shall have deposited their ratifications the peace will be effective as between those three countries and Germany.

"That would mean that while we were still discussing the treaty in the Senate those three nations would have returned to peace and would be free to resume their ordinary commercial relations, to the great disadvantage of American business. Our business men would still be barred from Germany, while their competitors would be getting the advantage of early entrance to the field. My resolution aims to give our American business the advantage of an even start and equal opportunity.

"It is to be remembered also that there is going to be a good deal of opposition to the treaty of peace, as distinguished from the League of Nations covenant. This treaty does nothing toward re-establishing the relations of peace among the countries. The United States gets absolutely nothing out of the treaty. In effect, all it does is give the Alien Property Custodian a clean bill of health on the management of the properties which have come into his hands."

DOUBT IF AMERICA SIGNS TURKISH TREATY

Belief That Action in That Case and Bulgaria's Might Complicate Senate Situation.

PARIS, June 23, (Associated Press.)—Whether the United States will sign the Turkish treaty, if such be negotiated, and the Bulgarian treaty is still undecided, and probably will not be known until shortly before the signature, although the Americans are participating in the preliminaries daily.

International law experts are agreed that the United States may properly sign, because of its membership in the League of Nations, although not at war with those countries.

As the signature of the United States would require ratification by the Senate, with a revived discussion of the League, it is generally believed that the United States may not sign unless public sentiment is favorable.

SEE BRITISH BASE BLOCKED.

Scapa Clearing May Be Costliest of Salvage Operations.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—American naval officers said today that, as a result of the sinking of the German fleet in Scapa Flow, Great Britain faced a choice of attempting one of the most extensive and costly salvaging operations in history, or loeing the use of a valuable part of the country's most important naval base.

The consensus of opinion here was that an attempt would be made to raise the larger ships, at least, so as to clear the channel.

TO COURT-MARTIAL GERMAN ADMIRAL

were lying anchored in couples. Unlike the battleships, they had not been repainted and looked very dirty. The return journey had just been commenced, when the Kestrel was warned by a drifter to keep clear of the German ships.

Those on board the Kestrel recognized that something was wrong, and soon afterward they beheld the German Eagle being run up to the mastheads of each vessel. On board the German ships, all was immediately bustle and confusion.

The vessels gradually began to settle, some sinking very slowly and others more rapidly, while a few turned turtle.

The Germans in the meantime had abandoned their ships and taken to boats and rafts, all of which were flying huge white flags and were being taken in tow by British drifters.

Some of the boats managed to land on the neighboring islands. The British sailors still had the situation well in hand, the witness said, but were, of course, powerless to avert the sinking of the warships.

Many of the 5,000 Sailors Missing.

LONDON, June 23, (Associated Press.)—Although reports have stated that six Germans were killed and ten wounded when the boats of the German fleet in Scapa Flow were fired upon subsequent to the scuttling of the fleet, The Daily Mail says that others may have been drowned and that some may possibly have reached the Orkney Islands and have not as yet been reported.

The main force of the British fleet was absent exercising at sea when the German ships were sunk, only some drifters, small warships, and patrolling aircraft being on guard over the interned enemy squadron.

Admiral von Reuter, commander of the surrendered German fleet, The Daily Mail adds, says that he believed, from newspaper reports, that the armistice had been ended."

Admiral von Reuter visited Germany some weeks ago, it being understood at the time that the reason for his trip there was that he was ill, but he soon returned, and it is believed that at that time he circulated the order to sink the German ships, by evading the censorship or making signals to the various vessels, an act which the close proximity of the German ships made quite easy.

The Mail quotes the Admiralty as denying that the German crews were periodically changed, and saying that the original crews remained on board the vessels. There were from 150 to 200 men on the big ships and from ten to twenty on board the destroyers.

There were, therefore, nearly 5,000 in the water or in the ships' boats when the fleet was sunk. Fourteen hundred were landed by the British on Sunday at Nigg, Rosshire, on the northern shore of Cromarty Firth. They were placed in huts ments and are being held under military guard.

The Daily Mail prints the story of an eyewitness of the sinking of the fleet, who says that he witnessed naval activities at Scapa Flow for many years and saw many impressive sights, but "the most imposing of them was tame compared with Saturday's staggering spectacle.

"Toward noon one of the German battleships was reported in a sinking condition, and almost simultaneously each German ship hoisted the German ensign at the masthead, the most of them showing also the red flag at their foremast.

"The crews immediately commenced to leave the ships, and it was soon evident that a concerted plan of action was being carried out."

From the behavior of the ships, according to The Mail, it was evident the sea valves had been opened, and in a surprisingly short time the vessels, big and small, began to settle down. Every effort was made by the British naval craft to beach the sinking ships, and in the case of destroyers considerable success was achieved.

By 1 o'clock in the afternoon, however, what an hour before had been a stately fleet riding calmly at anchor was an array of reeling, rocking battleships, the doom of which was written in their movements.

Ships Plunged in Clouds of Steam.

Here a destroyer would disappear amid a cloud of steam, and there a battleship would take her last plunge and disappear in a cloud of spray. One would settle down by the stern and another would heel over until only the keel showed above water.

The Derfflinger, Hindenburg, von der Tann, Moltke, and Seydlitz settled down beside each other, the last named turning turtle as she filled with water. Her keel is still showing where she capsized. The waters of Scapa Flow were dotted with small boats full of men who had, with dramatic suddenness, settled the question of the disposition of the interned ships.

As the first boatload of the escaping crew was towed alongside of H. M. S. Victorious by a drifter a German officer in the boat ordered his men to cheer. They responded with three vigorous "Hochs."

Craft of every description followed fast to the side of the warship, each towing boatloads of Germans, who were taken on board the Victorious, the decks of which soon became crowded with men and bundles.

A German officer who came aboard wore a sword and seemed to wish to make an impressive ceremony by handing it over to an officer who had been in command of a division of interned destroyers.

"We are not Bolsheviki," he said. "Peace was signed today. We had our orders and have carried them out."

The Germans were not aware that the armistice had been extended until Monday, and there was an almost continuous heel clicking and saluting as the officers of various ships greeted each other on coming aboard.

That the Germans were ready for the event was apparent from the amount and variety of the gear they had with them, some seamen staggering under the weight of bundles bigger than themselves, the salvage representing everything from banjos to pet dogs. Both the officers and men seemed anxious that none of their ships should be saved.

One officer, who wore the Iron Cross, pointed to the sinking ships and said:

British Hauled Down Enemy Flag.

Such, however, was not the case, as British sailors had boarded most of the German ships and had hauled down the flags before the vessels went under.

The prospect of salvaging a few ships is fairly hopeful, The Mail says. None has gone down in really deep water. The beaching of the sinking ships proved a difficult and, at times, a dangerous matter. One destroyer sank as it was being towed to shore, British sailors on board having scarcely time to jump clear before the craft went down.

About twenty destroyers out of the fifty that were interned were beached during the afternoon. The German crews which were taken to the Victorious were later transferred to other warships.

"What was a crowded anchorage this morning," wired a Mail correspondent late on Saturday, "is a desolate expanse of water tonight, with here and there the masts of a sunken German ship marking the final resting place of a once proud and mighty high seas fleet."

One of The Mail's correspondents who watched the sinking ships from the air station at Houton, which overlooks the anchorage, writes:

"The battleships, as a rule, gradually submerged until their decks were almost awash. Then they turned turtle and went quickly out of sight, there being a slight hollow of the sea at the surface for several hours, and a bluish scum on the water caused by the release of oil. These were all that marked the spot where the ships had gone down.

"The light cruisers settled by the stern or bows, and sometimes 100 feet of the hull of one of these ships projected into the air, like huge whales leaping from the water.

"When the last sinking battleship disappeared a drifter and trawler were at work alongside, and a destroyer was standing by, evidently making an attempt to tow the battleship into shallow water. A long splash between the destroyer and the ship showed that the tow line had parted.

"The battleship canted violently, the drifter moved off, and, quicker than a photographer beside the writer was able to change a plate in his camera, not a single vestige of the battleship remained.

"A number of German sailors came to the pier at Houton this afternoon, but were not permitted to land, being directed to the flagship. Strong patrols were landed from the fleet and took positions along the beach, presumably to deal with any German swimmers who came ashore."

Germans Leaped Into the Sea.

A Thurso dispatch to The Mail says that the moment the German flagship ran up the red flag twenty or thirty British destroyers and trawlers were patrolling in and out of the German lines.

A rush of Germans to the boats followed the signal, but the capacity of the boats was limited, as their number was cut down some time ago. All the Germans were likewise, and those unable to enter the boats leaped into the sea without hesitation.

In the meantime, guard ships and several destroyers opened fire on the boats, and the Germans leaped overboard. Then the destroyers, patrol boats, and pinnaces dashed in all directions picking up the Germans from the water.

"It is known here," the dispatch says, "that the behavior of the crews of the German ships has been growing progressively worse. The first few weeks after the armistice men from the German ships were allowed to land on the island, but very soon farmers complained of the loss of sheep. Leave for the Germans thereupon stopped, only one boat being allowed to each squadron."

DENY OTHER SINKINGS.

Report That Home Fleet Was Sunk by Sailors Contradicted.

LONDON, June 23.—The German Admiralty denies a rumor that was in circulation today in Paris and elsewhere that the Germans had sunk the remainder of their warships in German harbors.

WEIMAR, June 22, (Associated Press.)—The German warships which were not surrendered to the Allies, and which have been anchored off Kiel, Wilhelmshaven and other points, have been sunk by German sailors manning them, according to a report received here from a reliable authority.

According to the reports, there were twelve German war vessels, besides destroyers, which were in German waters, not having been turned over to the Entente under the armistice provisions.

BRITISH KNEW OF DANGER.

But It Was Practically Impossible to Keep Full Watch.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 23.—The Admiralty today announced that there was nothing more to be given out officially as to the scuttling of the German fleet. Meanwhile expert comment lays stress on the evidence which the incident affords on the danger of trusting the word of the Germans. There is much criticism of the "hands off" policy observed under the terms of the armistice.

It will be remembered that when Secretary Daniels visited Scapa Flow he did not visit the German ships, but merely steamed around them.

No announcement has yet been made as to whether any of the ships can be salvaged, but if that is impossible the British Government will be put to a heavy expense in blowing them up and clearing them away, and so making the famous Scapa inlet fit for use as a base again.

Under the conditions of internment of the German warships, the Germans were at no time allowed to land. All day and all night four armed trawlers, each mounting 12-pounder guns and with an armed party aboard, patrolled the anchorage for months past.

The trawlers had orders to open fire should any of the German ships attempt to communicate with the others by boat, or should the Germans attempt to land.

Permission was given to the Germans, however, to communicate once a day, with each other by means of a British drifter, so that the German Admiral might convey his orders for the administration of his vessels.

About once a month also they could communicate with Germany by one of their own cruisers or transports, which came over with provisions and mail—of course, censored.

Otherwise the Germans were responsible for the internal economy of their ships. The German crews were not, as reported, relieved at intervals. The crews that came over in November were taken away, and only a guard and maintenance party of about 200 officers and men for the large ships, down to a dozen or twenty for destroyers, had been left aboard.

Members of the crews were constantly "going sick" and there was continuous mutiny among them, von Reuter frequently appealing to the British for help in preserving order.

It was necessary for the British naval authorities to keep a battle squadron and battle cruiser squadron in constant attendance in Scapa Flow. The possibility was clearly foreseen that the German might attempt to scuttle their ships, but to prevent it would have been practically impossible without putting guards on board sufficient to keep close watch on every compartment of each vessel.

Presumably this point was fully discussed by the Allied Council when drawing up the arrangements, but, in view of the trouble likely to arise from the presence of British sailors on the German ships, it was decided that there should be no guards, and this provision was embodied in the armistice terms.

REPARATIONS COVER SINKING.

Paris Sees No Change in Situation Affecting Peace.

PARIS, June 23.—In the opinion of some experts, the sinking of the German fleet constituted a direct violation of the armistice and an act of war, in that the Germans in scuttling the ships destroyed material with which they are bargaining for peace.

It was pointed out today, however, that the reparations clause of the treaty was in such shape that destruction of German assets represented by the warships could be dealt with later.

The sinking of the warships by their crews, it was apparent today, did not affect the general situation regarding peace with Germany. There is no indication that the act of the Germans will enter into the proceedings at the present stage or cause a reopening of the negotiations.

While the act is generally denounced as a violation of the armistice technically, if not actually, in British and American circles, no marked regret is expressed.

In French quarters, however, there is understood to be considerable feeling, which it is expected will reflect itself in Italian circles. France and Italy have been opposing the much-discussed plan of sinking the German fleet, which was favored supposedly by the Americans and the British.

The German ships at Scapa Flow did not have red flags flying when they went down, according to advices received today by the American peace delegation. The ships carried the old Imperial German ensign, which had been raised by the crews.

The advices also say that the German Admiral made a formal statement, which, although mutilated in transmission to Paris, is construed as saying that he debated the question of sinking the ships, but acted finally: "in the interest of civilization."

BERLIN SEES MORE TO PAY.

Public Makes No Demonstration on First News of Fleet.

BERLIN, June 23. (Associated Press.)—Bulletins announcing that the German fleet had been sunk in Scapa Flow arrived too late for the morning editions of Berlin papers today, and the people received their first information through noon editions.

In a more auspicious political situation the news might have caused an outburst of enthusiasm, but the public was not moved to demonstration.

The Admiralty has received nothing beyond a brief bulletin, which came by way of Holland.

Commenting on the sinking, the Berlin Gazette says that it was perhaps a deed of folly, as Germany might have been able to force an indemnity for the surrender of the warships.

"Nevertheless," it continues, "it was a handsome deed."

The Neue Gazette says:

"The officers and men who performed this deed may be forgiven. They acted in the spirit in which they were trained. On the other hand, if their action carries with it injurious results for Germany, it must be regretted, for Germany is hardly in a position to indulge in the luxury of heroic poses, and the brief satisfaction of appearing before the world in this Bengal illumination may have to be paid for in cash."

Drug Trade Sales Manager Wanted

THIS man must be a top-notcher! First of all he must be able to point to a successful record in introducing toilet goods to Drug Stores and Department Stores direct, as well as through the jobber. There's a short cut to 100% distribution in the drug-toilet goods trade and our man must not only know that short cut, but he must have traveled it himself. The man we have in mind will know where to find a sales force of the same calibre as himself and that in itself is quite an order. But the man we select will be able to fill it. We demand a high-powered sales manager, and we're willing to pay the price. Please do not answer this advertisement unless your experience four-squares with our necessities. If you can "deliver" sell us your services in a letter. Frankly, this proposition merits the attention of the best men on the selling end of the Drug-Toilet Goods field. FEDERAL ACTIVITIES ENDED BY PEACE

Signing of Treaty Will Cut Short the Work of Many Bureaus and Commissions.

TASK FOR THE PRESIDENT

Department of Justice Must Interpret Phrases in Various Acts of Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—When President Wilson returns to Washington he will find it necessary to give careful consideration to the effect of the closing of the war upon various Government activities set up for the period of the war, or whose termination is in some way related to the "end of the war," the "period of the existing emergency," the "proclamation of peace," or the "declaration of peace."

The phrases used in the various war measures are not uniform, and it will be necessary for the Administration to call upon the Department of Justice for an official legal interpretation of the meaning of such phrases as "during the present war," "for and during the period of the present emergency," "shall cease to be in effect when the national emergency resulting from the existing state of war shall have passed," "six months after the present war," and "until the war shall have been brought to a successful conclusion."

The Sixty-fifth Congress, in the act making appropriations to supply deficiencies for the fiscal year 1917, provided that the President by public proclamation should declare when the war had terminated. The fourth section of this act carried this provision, which has a most important bearing on the service of drafted men in the army:

"That the service of all persons selected by draft and all enlistments under the provisions of the act for the temporary increase of the army, shall be for the period of the war, unless sooner terminated by discharge or otherwise. Whenever said war shall cease by the conclusion of peace between the United States and its enemies in the present war, the President shall so declare by a public proclamation to that effect, and within four months after the date of said proclamation or as soon thereafter as it may be practicable to transport the forces then serving without the United States to their home station, the provisions of said act in so far as they authorize compulsory service by selected draft or otherwise, shall cease to be of force and effect."

Following is a complete statement of the termination of various war agencies which were set up in the different departments:

STATE DEPARTMENT.

Alien Passport Control Section of Passport Bureau—Terminates with close of the war.

Special Information Service of Office of the Counsellor—This has been conducting secret investigations for the State Department and may continue for some time after the close of the war.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Bureau of War Risk Insurance (insurance of vessels against loss or damage by the risks of war)—Service ceases with termination of the war.

Bureau of War Risk Insurance (awards as to allotments of pay of enlisted men to dependants)—Service ceases one month after the war.

Bureau of War Risk Insurance (awards of compensation for death or disability of persons in military and naval service, and sale of insurance to soldiers, sailors, and marines)—Service permanent.

Bureau of War Risk Insurance (licensing of foreign insurance companies engaged in business in United States)—Service ceases with termination of war.

War Finance Corporation (finances investment banking of country by making loans to banks and trust companies for financing war activities)—No powers to be exercised longer than six months after termination of war, except those incidental to liquidation of assets and wind up affairs.

Capital Issues Committee (has investigated and determined whether securities in excess of $100,000 shall be issued by private concerns)—Act in effect not longer than six months after termination of the war.

War Loan Organization (has stimulated sale of bonds and other Government securities)—No time of termination specified. Will probably continue as long as present series of bond issues are authorized.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

The second session of the Sixty-fifth Congress passed a law authorizing President Wilson to co-ordinate or consolidate executive bureaus, agencies, and offices, in the interest of economy and more efficient concentration of the Government. It was provided in this measure that it "shall remain in force during the contingency of the present war and for six months after the termination of the war by the proclamation of the treaty of peace, or at such earlier time as the President may designate."

HOUSE TO GO TO LONDON.

Holds Last Conference with Press—Paderewski Pays Him Tribute.

PARIS, June 23, (Associated Press.)—Colonel E. M. House announced this afternoon, at the last of the conferences which he has held daily for the purpose of giving confidential information to the American correspondents attached to the Peace Conference, his intention to leave Thursday for London.

M. Paderewski, the Polish Premier, and the new Polish Minister to the United States, Prince Lubomirsky, came in during the conference to pay farewell calls to Colonel House, and in the presence of the newspaper men offered a graceful compliment to Colonel House for the interest he had taken in the Polish cause since the early days of the European war.

"I am glad to have the opportunity in your presence to pay the thanks of Poland to this noble man," said M. Paderewski to the correspondents.

Thomas Nelson Page, American Ambassador to Italy, who was present, assured the Polish representatives of America's interest in Poland. Mr. Page told Prince Lubomirsky that the Minister was sure of a cordial welcome in Washington "as the representative of something very dear to American hearts—the liberty of Poland."

NAVY LEAGUE HEAD ASSAILS DANIELS

Breckinridge Tells House Committee of Alleged Animosity Toward His Organization.

APPEALS FOR PROTECTION

Urges Curbing of Secretary So That Work of the League Would Be Recognized.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Navy League of the United States through its President, Henry Breckinridge, Assistant Secretary of War in the first Wilson Administration, sent a letter today to the House Committee on Naval Affairs assailing Secretary of the Navy Daniels for his testimony before that committee recently in regard to the activities of that organization.

Mr. Breckinridge also accused Secretary Daniels of depriving men of the navy of many comforts and little luxuries which the Navy League endeavored to supply, because of his personal animosity to the league. Mr. Breckinridge called attention to the fact that in assailing the motives of the League Secretary Daniels aimed his shafts at many prominent men who were officers and members. Among them he names the late Colonel Roosevelt, who was Honorary Vice President of the League and contributed $500 of the money he received from the Nobel Peace Prize to it; Elihu Root, Alton B. Parker, the late Robert Bacon, Dr. David Jayne Hill, Myron T. Herrick, General Horace Porter, Jacob H. Schiff, Charles M. Schwab, and August Belmont. In concluding his letter Mr. Breckinridge says:

"We are imbued with no malice against Mr. Daniels, but following out the inalienable American right of petition we do petition you, so far as you may be able, to protect us as American citizens from the malice of the servant of the people or an official of the executive arm of the Government, who by all our traditions is a servant of the people and not a master of the people. When he illegally attempts to deprive us of an equal right to associate with the men of the navy and to visit the ships and institutions of the navy upon the same conditions with other classes of citizens, we ask you, if possible, to restrain him."

Referring to the testimony which Secretary Daniels gave before the committee on June 8, Mr. Breckinridge says:

"Let me say at the start that there is some difficulty in dealing with his statement before your committee, because he said one thing in person before the committee and then called for the transcript of his remarks, changing the same so as to modify the implication of some of the men's gross vulgarities of his verbal statement, padding same with further matter which he thought might strengthen it and give it an added power of conviction. This substantial alteration after the fact, I respectfully submit, is in keeping with the general lack of genuousness of his attitude and conduct toward the Navy League.

"This central fact remains, however, that in his statement he committed a gross insult to 300,000 American women who have labored incessantly for the comfort and welfare of the men of the navy during the war, and slandered an organization which comprises among its membership many of the most noted and respected men of the nation and thousands of patriotic men and women throughout the country whose only offense has been to love their country, to be interested in its navy and naval policy, and, perchance, to be unwilling to follow blindly the shifting leadership of the honorable Josephus Daniels.

"Before your committee, Mr. Daniels lays his great stress upon a statement appearing in the NEW YORK TIMES of Aug. 15, 1917, which was given out by one of the League's publicity men. At this time I was in the army, and therefore not cognizant of the details of the Mayo Island incident, but a study of the statement divulges the fact that Mr. Daniels is incorrect in alleging that it carries any implication against any navy officer. The war is over. This incident was investigated by a board of navy officers. So far as I know, the proceedings of this board have never been made public, and, conceiving no reason why they should not be made public, I suggest the propriety of the Secretary of the Navy publishing the proceedings in full—not the findings alone, but the proceedings—so that all may know the full facts and judge thereon."

The letter recounts some of the clashes which the Navy League had with Mr. Daniels. It states that early in the war the Secretary forbade members of the navy to use an athletic field near a certain port which the Navy League had supplied when it was found that proper recreational facilities were lacking. Secretary Daniels, it is said, permitted the men to use the field only after the Navy League turned it over to a private individual again.

Secretary Daniels attempted also, it is said, to keep from the sailors the articles knitted by the 500,000 women connected with the league. In this, Mr. Breckinridge says, the Secretary was not entirely successful as "means were discovered for circumventing his obstruction."

It is alleged further by Mr. Breckinridge that Secretary Daniels "refused to let sick and convalescent sailors accept the invitations of the ladies of the Navy League Comforts Committee for outings on the Potomac during the period of the influenza epidemic." The offer was then extended to the authorities of the Walter Reed Hospital, "and about 1,700 soldiers were afforded the opportunity that was denied to the men of the navy."

CENSOR CAUGHT HIS WIFE.

LONDON, May 25. (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Captain A. J. Cunningham, British postal censor at the little town of Cyprus, some time ago came across a letter addressed to his wife that aroused his suspicions. He did not exert his prerogatives as censor, however, and delivered it to her unopened. But he did use his censorship power on the next one that came.

He petitioned for divorce, named the waiter as co-respondent and quickly received legal separation when the letter was produced in court.

DE VALERA COMES HERE TO GET HELP

In the interval between his arrival and the reception it was learned that he had spent Sunday with his half brother, the Rev. Father Thomas J. Wheelwright, who is attached to the Redemptorist Catholic Mission Church in Tremont Street, Boston. He had gone to Boston in an effort to see Cardinal O'Connell, but was unsuccessful.

After the reception, Dr. de Valera came into his apartments for an interview. Some of his friends, however, followed him in, and while he was receiving further congratulations on his arrival in New York, there was a good opportunity to observe him. Professor de Valera is tall; he must be six feet and something, although a scholarly stoop detracts from his height. A high forehead gives the impression that he has less than the normal amount of black hair. He wears glasses, his brown-black eyes are deep set, his nose is rather prominent, his upper lip is clean shaven, and the general expression of his face is one of eagerness. Upon arrival yesterday he was attired in a salt-and-pepper tweedish mixture, wore a collar almost of collegian highness and a big blue tie tied in a big knot.

Having finished with his friends, he turned sharply to face the half-a-hundred newspapermen and said he was glad to see them. With his first words, a brogue that was just the echo of a brogue was apparent.

"I suppose I must apologize," he said, "for the briefness of the statement I have prepared. I have been so busy, however, that I had just time to scribble a few words after getting here. I believe you feel somewhat hurt for not being able to find out how I got into this country, but the seriousness of my business makes me keep it from you. I have been traveling here incognito and now my private life here is ended and I am now in an official capacity and I hope that you will assist me in every way. I feel that the American press will do its duty for me. I feel that the cause of the Irish people can be brought before the common people better through the press than through statesmen and diplomats. I want to speak frankly to the American people and speak all in my heart. Often my statements have been perverted by English propagandists."

As Professor de Valera was speaking a Miss Martin who is connected with the Publicity Department of the Friends of Irish Freedom, 280 Broadway, came into the room with her arms full of typewritten statements. These were the "few scribbled words." De Valera had them distributed and took one himself. He announced that he wished it printed word for word "so that British propagandists cannot misrepresent what I said."

The statement, prepared for him, which de Valera read was as follows:

"From today I am in America as the official head of the republic established by the will of the Irish people, in accordance with the principles of self-determination. Last December, Ireland by a more than three to one majority of deputies—chosen by ballot on adult suffrage—demanded her rights under this principle. The deputies chosen on the direct issue of the establishment of the republic outnumber their opponents by more than two to one, the exact figures being 73 to 32—nor are those who consider the republic undesirable as numerous as the 32 would indicate."

"The degree of unanimity obtained in Ireland on this issue is higher than that claimed by the American colonies when they declared their independence and decided that they would no longer allow themselves to be exploited by England in the interest of her imperialism. You had your Tories and your Loyalists, too, to whom Washington very properly sent the ultimatum that if they preferred the interest and protection of Britain to the freedom and happiness of their own country, they might forthwith withdraw themselves and their families within the enemy lines.

"The degree of unanimity obtained in Ireland is higher, too, than that by which your own glorious union and constitution were established. Had complete unanimity been insisted upon as a precedent to your independence, as some people pretend to believe it should be insisted upon in the recognition of ours, then you today would not been the great united nation you are, but merely thirteen disunited colonies with your people kept permanently divided by the intrigue of English statecraft into opposing and contending groups. It was the hope of re-establishing such a condition and not any love for the Southerners that was the inspiring motive and object of England in aiding the South in the Civil War."

Professor de Valera's prepared statement went on to declare that factories and prosperity would not be in America, and the American mercantile marine "non-existent" as Ireland's if Great Britain had maintained her hold on the colonies. He also declared that the American population would have decreased as rapidly and as greatly as Ireland's did—according to de Valera's figures—under British rule. He gave Ireland's population as decreased from 8,000,000 to 4,000,000, and said he thought this would not have happened had the isle been under any but British rule.

"Had Ireland been under Kaiser, Emperor or Czar its population would have been doubled or trebled, as the population of the three divisions of Poland, of Bohemia, of Alsace-Lorraine have been," read the statement in this connection.

"England would have contrived for you, even in your abounding land, the artificial famines recurring in every decade which she has contrived in ours, which has been no less favored with natural gifts from the Almighty. Crushing your industries, she would have forced the young, the enterprising, the bold, the very pick and flower of your manhood and your womanhood, into the emigrant ship, to build up the greatness of some new land where liberty to live and to develop was not denied them. No! The leaders of the Revolution that made you a nation, while admitting that a minority has its rights, would concede that its will should be allowed to prevail as a perpetual veto on the will of the majority. Rule of the people by the people would by such a concession be reduced to an absurdity.

"The very same catch cries and the very same tools were used by the English Government against the leaders of the American Revolution as are being used today against us. But your leaders acted, and so have we acted. The majority behind them justified them; our majority more than justifies us. They proclaimed their independence and their republic; we have proclaimed our independence and our republic. The justice of their cause, even in its darkest moments, was for them a hope, a surety even, that they would ultimately win if they but persevered. The justice of our cause is similarly our surety. They fought; we have fought, and we now still fighting. They were called traitors and murderers; so are we, though we were never England's colony and never accepted English rule.

"The man who established your republic sought the aid of France. We seek the aid of America. It is to seek that aid that I am here, and I am confident that I shall not be disappointed. I come here entitled to speak for the Irish nation with an authority democratically as sound and as well based as that with which President Wilson speaks for the United States or Lloyd George for England or Clemenceau for France. I come directly from the Irish people to the people of America, convinced that the American people, and consequently the American Government, which as a government of the people should reflect the people's will, will never consciously connive at or allow itself to be made a party to the suppression of the natural, God-given right of the Irish nation to its liberty.

"The great American nation, nurtured in liberty, has been liberty's most consistent champion. It has never been annealed to in vain. When other Chancelleries and Cabinets callously closed their ears to the agonizing cries of the people of Poland, Greece, Hungary, and the Latin races of this continent, timorous of offending the tyrants that held them writhing in their grasp, excusing themselves by the plea that they could not interfere in the affairs of other States, your nation, conscious of its mission, listened to them and braved their oppressors wrath in succoring them.

"It must surely be a source of pride to you all, as it is a source of hope to us, to reflect that never have you undertaken a cause that you did not bring it to a triumph. The Latin races, as well as Poland, Hungary, and Greece, are now free States. Ireland, the one remaining white nation in the slavery of alien rule, will similarly be free unless Americans make scraps of paper of their principles and prove false to the traditions their fathers have handed down to them."

After reading his statement and making a few minor corrections in it, Dr. de Valera was questioned but evaded direct replies and proved an adept in the art of talking and saying nothing.

"Are you an American citizen?" he was asked.

"I am an Irish citizen," he answered.

"Did you forswear allegiance to the United States?"

"I ceased to be an American," he replied, "when I became a soldier of the Irish republic."

Another question was:

"How about the Irish bond issue?"

"I can't talk about that now; not now."

Professor de Valera's secretary, Boland, said later that he had visited Cardinal Gibbons in Baltimore. The object of the visit, and the result, Mr. Boland did not disclose, giving the impression that it had been merely a personal call.

Just what plans Professor de Valera has formed for his visit, Boland said, he did not know. Another visit to Washington, this time "officially," however, was likely in the near future. Last night he was the guest at reception by the Friends of Irish Freedom in the Astor Gallery at the Waldorf. Just before the reception de Valera said that he did not expect to campaign through the country, declaring that he believed it would not be necessary, since the American people understand the Irish situation."

Following an address by de Valera, delivered in Gaelic and then in English, it was announced that Supreme Court Justice Goff had been appointed National Director of the Nation-wide American Ireland Campaign, to be launched in a few days. It was also announced that Justice Goff and Justice Cohalan would spend the months of July and August in Washington as joint Chairmen of a committee which will introduce de Valera to the various Congressional committees.

DE VALERA MUST OBEY LAWS.

Washington Not to Interfere Unless He Violates Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—So far as could be ascertained by inquiries made in official circles here today, Professor E. de Valera, who has come to this country as President of the "Irish Republic" and is reported to be planning to try to obtain an Irish loan, will not be interfered with unless he violates American laws or runs contrary to our treaty stipulations.

State Department officials would not express an opinion today as to how far de Valera might go without infringing treaty stipulations, but it was intimated that, unless there is legal obstacle to the contrary found on investigation to exist, no legal objection could be raised against negotiations by de Valera for the promotion of his cause. However, if the object of the money is to create a military force or to equip such a force, he would make himself liable under neutrality laws against the use of American territory for setting on foot military expeditions against friendly countries.

Officials here would not pass on the question whether de Valera may rightfully claim to be an American citizen by virtue of the fact that he was born in the United States. There was a disposition among some officials to regard his residence and acts in British territory as having made him a subject of Great Britain.

REDS RETREATING FROM THE CRIMEA

DENIKIN'S FRONT 800 MILES

Bolshevist Strategy and Morale Reduced to Confusion by Cossack General's Movements.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

EKATERINODAR, June 10, (Delayed.) —General Denikin's front is nearly 800 miles long, and it is hopeless to try to define it, for its contours change daily as the victorious armies rapidly advance, meeting with less and less opposition from the disorganized enemy.

The Bolshevist front is becoming a mist which here and there completely evaporates, this notwithstanding the fact that the Red forces on this front are probably still superior in numbers to those under Denikin's command. The fact is they are disorganized and in many sectors completely routed and panic stricken by the impetuosity and resource of the patroits' onset.

Wrangel's troops are advancing swiftly along the railway to Tsaritsin. This General issues a warning not to expect the speedy capture of the town since it is possible that the Reds may have concentrated a strong force behind well prepared defences for final resistance. The warning is probably necessary, but Wrangel's advancing columns have reduced Bolshevist strategy and morale to such confusion that it is difficult to see how effective resistance can be organized at the last moment. For instance, four days ago one detachment of Bolsheviki fleeing northward to Tsaritsin met on the railway another detachment which, suddenly outflanked by Cossacks, was fleeing from the north. The result of the meeting was a double panic and both forces abandoned the railway and fled helter-skelter into the steppe.

The railway along which Wrangel is operating runs obliquely northeast from Takhoretskaya to Tsaritsin. Along the transverse railway which runs to Tsaritsin from Likhaya, north of Novocherkask, the Don Cossacks under General Mamontoff achieved a striking success at Morodvskaya, where, dislodging the Reds, they captured large booty, including a million cartridges and 15,000 tons of grain. Then by a strategem they telegraphed in the name of the Reds to the neighboring station for reinforcements. Two train loads of Bolsheviki arrived and were immediately disposed of.

On the western front, in Ekaterinoslav Government, General Volskmy has in many sectors lost sight of the retreating enemy and is simply advancing and occupying territory. Berdiansk has been occupied on the Sea of Azof.

Farther north, in the steppe, is Gulvai Pole, the headquarters of the bandit chief, Makhno, a Bolshevik with strongly developed pogrom propensities. Gulvai Pole appears to have been renamed Makhnograd. There was a sharp battle there in which Makhno's followers suffered heavily. Over 100 locomotives were captured and another 100 were captured at Berdiansk.

Farther west, Lazovaya, an important junction commanding the line of the Criza, has been captured. The Red forces are evacuating Crimea, and Volskmy, having destroyed a Red force concealed in the Kertch quarries, is now advancing from Kertch into the Peninsula. North of Salvinsk, on the way to Kharkoff, Izium has been captured after a fierce battle. By some miracle a train came through the other day from Kharkoff to Rostov. A passenger who has arrived here says the Soviet authorities have retired from Kharkoff to Lielgorob, and the former town is now administered by a Municipal Council.

The rout of Bolshevism on this front is marvellously complete and due to two causes, first, internal decomposition of the Soviet power through its own gross tyranny; second, the moral stimulus given to the volunteer army by British support, of which the tanks are the most vivid evidence.

It is incontrovertible now that if it is desired to stop the civil war in Russia at the sacrifice of a minimum of human life the most effective policy is to send a copious supply of tanks and airplanes to the reorganizing and liberating forces. If in January tanks had been sent instead of the Prinkipo proposals, the Don Cossacks would never have lost heart. Denikin would long since have joined up with Kolchak on the Volga, and thousands of lives would have been saved.

Now the volunteer army is faced with the great task of feeding and reclothing the liberated but ruined populations. The grain seized at Morodvskaya was plundered by the Bolsheviki from the Don Cossacks. The miners of the Donetz basin are starving. The resources of Kuban will not suffice, and supplies of corn are urgently needed to tide over till the new harvest.

Some system of credit must be arranged to insure an abundant inflow of manufactured goods into the depleted country. A one-time millionaire yesterday showed me with some pride a new coat he had had made of sacking. The primary necessity is the re-establishment of rapid communication with the civilized world, a plentiful telegraphic supply of authentic news, and deliverance from the poisonous atmosphere of Bolshevist lying.

The isolation here is unimaginable. At present Denikin's struggle is like a lonely fight with the cholera on some Indian back country station. Systematic development of British aid in these directions would confirm the alliance with reviving Russia and dissipate the German menace in the east.

THREATENS TO SEIZE AMERICANS IN RUSSIA

Soviet Government Demands Release of Martens, Its Agent, Who Was Never Arrested.

LONDON, June 23.—The Russian Soviet Government has demanded the release of L. C. A. K. Martens, the Bolshevist representative arrested in New York, a wireless message from Petrograd declares. Reprisals are threatened against Americans in Russia.

Martens was not taken into custody when State troopers raided the Bolshevist mission's headquarters here early this month, but was served with a subpoena calling for his appearance as a witness before the Lusk State Legislative Committee investigating reported seditious activities in New York.

Under this subpoena Martens went to the City Hall here on the day after the raid and was questioned in secret by the committee regarding the alleged endeavors by the Soviet organization in New York to circulate propaganda intended to justify the Soviet form of Government as established in Russia.

Shortly after the raid was conducted persons subpœnaed with Martens made threats of reprisal, declaring that the Soviet rulers in Russia would retaliate against Americans there.

EXPECT CONGRESS INQUIRY.

Officers in Brest from Russia Intimate One Is Pending.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BREST, June 23.—On board the transport Von Steuben homeward bound tonight are officers of the 3d Battalion of the 339th Infantry, recently arrived from the Archangel front, who have expressed the opinion they will be called as witnesses in an investigation of why American troops are still in Russia.

Some officers say already they have been approached by representatives of members of Congress proposing an inquiry. With the exception of one Captain, all the officers and men of the 339th Infantry, which reached here last week, had departed tonight. The Captain, who is remaining behind, is facing personal charges preferred by Major Quong of the Second Battalion of the 339th Infantry. The Captain is accused of insubordination, but is not under arrest. His friends say the hearing of the charges against him will bring out many details for the investigation to follow concerning the presence in Russia of American troops and the alleged mutiny of one company.

The captain himself believes he will be accused of inspiring discontent among the men of his regiment, who openly protested against fighting on the Russian front, and expects aid from Senator Johnson and others who have declared the Senate will demand an inquisition if any American troops in Archangel are courtmartialed for mutiny.

Speculation is rife as to what the commanding officer of the 339th Infantry will have to say regarding the reported impending investigation.

SOCIALISTS ASSAIL 'LEFT WING' PARTY

Executive Committee Says That a Plot Exists to Wreck the Regular Organization.

SEES "REIGN OF TERROR"

Statement Gives Reason for Expulsion of Michigan Body from the Party Councils.

A plot to wreck the Socialist Party and to substitute an organization composed of foreign language revolutionary federations, committed to the overthrow of the Government by force and violence if necessary, is charged against the so-called "Left Wing" Socialists in a statement issued by the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party organization which became public yesterday.

The legislative committee investigating seditious activities last Saturday raided the headquarters of the "Left Wing" Socialists in West Twenty-ninth Street, as well as the East Fourth Street headquarters of the Russian Branch of the I. W. W., another element entering into the left wing movement. In both raids much frankly revolutionary propaganda literature was seized.

The statement gives the reason for the expulsion of the Michigan State organization of the Socialist Party from the party councils, together with the Hungarian, Lettish, Lithuanian, Polish, South Slavic, Russian and Ukrainian branches.

"This action," the statement says, "is due to a defiance of national conventions, national referendums, the national Constitution, and decisions of the National Executive Committee. Accompanying this defiance and aggravating the offense was an incredible series of acts hitherto unknown in the Socialist Party in this country. Evidence in our possession indicates an organized and systematic attempt of nation-wide scope to capture the party organizations by fair means or foul. An opera bouffe reign of terror was inaugurated in many locals or branches. Their plans were made to vote the whole foreign language federations for a slate, using the foreign language newspapers in a disgusting campaign of slander against the party and its elected officials. The party and its officials were helpless against this cowardly tirade, as we could not know what was taking place."

The canceling of the charter of the Michigan State organization the statement declares due to action taken by the Socialist State Convention in Michigan proposing the expulsion of any member, local, or branch advocating legislative reforms or supporting any organization advocating such reforms. After the Michigan organization thus definitely had turned its back on a program providing for the achievement of Socialist aims through processes of peaceful evolution, the Secretary of the organization was called before the Executive Committee, but refused to answer any questions.

An "emergency" national convention of the Socialist Party has been summoned to meet in Chicago on Aug. 30, for the purpose of passing upon the action of the National Executive Committee in purging the party of its unruly elements. Among Socialists of both wings there is a strong belief that the split is final and that the solidarity of the party this Fall and in the Presidential, Congressional, and State elections next year is out of the question.

A national convention of the Left Wing Socialists, which has been in progress in this city since Saturday, is regarded by the regulars as ample indication that the revolutionary element of the party has left the fold for good and is determined to set up housekeeping for itself. The Left Wing Convention, which is meeting behind closed doors at the Manhattan Lyceum in East Fourth street, was summoned for the purpose of effecting permanent organization and drafting a Red Wing Constitution and set of bylaws.

The bitterness of the factional fight and the wide divergence of "regular" and "left wing" policies are reflected in quotations from Left Wing pronunciamentos cited in the statement of the National Executive Committee. It was in this State that the first clash occurred after the New York local had expelled some twenty English-speaking Assembly District organizations and foreign language branches. The Socialist Party of Queens went en bloc body and joined the Left Wing. After the charter had been revoked, the Lithuanian, Lettish, Ukrainian, Hungarian, and South Slavic Federations proclaimed jointly that they had endorsed the Left Wing program and declared that they would take no orders from either State, City, or National Executive Committee.

Favor Alien Deportation Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The House Immigration Committee voted unanimously today to report the bill by Representative Johnson, Republican, of Washington, providing for deportation of undesirable aliens.

BLACK TOM SUIT BEGUN.

Insurance Companies Demand Damages from Lehigh Valley R. R.

Trial of a suit in which ten insurance and casualty companies ask for damages amounting to about $1,000,000 from the Lehigh Valley Railroad because of the Black Tom explosion in July, 1916, began yesterday before Judge William H. Speer at Jersey City, with a jury selected in Bergen County in the box.

The largest demand for damages was $100,000, based on the destruction of the steamer Wolcott and $20,000 for injuries sustained by Ira W. Allen, a steward aboard the ship. The allegations by the insurance companies are that the railroad did not have sufficient guards to keep away aliens and plotters, and that there was not sufficient fire protection. The hearing will continue today.

Seen under a powerful magnifying glass, a dull razor blade looks like a saw edge

Stropping keeps these tiny teeth in perfect alignment, provides a smooth keen edge for every shave

How many different razors have you tried?

MOST men have owned at least three or four different razors—in addition to the old-fashioned straight-edged razor.

It's not that men are fickle about their razors. On the contrary when they find the right razor, they invariably stick to it.

The AutoStrop Razor makes good with its users because it provides a keen edge for every shave—gives a perfectly cool and comfortable shave every time.

A new blade for every shave is not necessary with the AutoStrop Razor. The razor provides in itself the means for keeping the blades keen-edged as when new. This patented stropping feature insures a perfect shave every time.

The Autostrop Razor is the only safety razor that sharpens itself, shaves and cleans without removing the blade. Ask your dealer about the 30-day free trial plan.

DUTCH IN DILEMMA ON KAISER'S STATUS

Press Comment Indicates Question Is Cause of Much Anxiety.

DOUBTS OVER LEGAL LIMIT

Minister Lohman Says the Chamber Cannot Go Beyond Extradition Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—An official survey of Dutch press opinion which has been received here indicates that the question of the surrender of the ex-Kaiser is the cause of much controversy and anxiety.

"Newspapers of views so diametrically opposed as the Nieuwe Potterdamsche Courant and Het Volk, the Socialist organ, are in considerable agreement in criticising the circumstances surrounding the demand and the conditions under which the fallen Emperor is to be tried," the report reads. "The former paper is the more restrained of the two, and cautiously feels its way. 'If it is indeed true,' this newspaper states, 'that the ex-Kaiser, either consciously or through a lack of the sense of responsibility, was the cause of this disaster to Europe, then it would be to the interest of the country that we should not withhold him from being made accountable. And if, under the rule of a properly organized League of Nations, we might be compelled to extradite the ex-Kaiser as a matter of duty, then there might be even now, in certain circumstances, occasion for our acceding to such a request.'"

The report quotes Het Volk as stating:

"On the one hand, we are not in the least inclined to expose Holland to any injury or inconvenience for the sake of a man who rounded off a thirty years' career of bluff and sword rattling with a cowardly flight. On the other hand, the whole conduct of the associated Governments is so much in conflict with our conceptions of right that the extradition of the ex-Kaiser could only be regarded as an act of self-humiliation."

The views of statecraft and learning have also been canvassed, and the Handelsblad quotes the opinions of A. F. de Savornin Lohman, Minister of State, and S. van Houten, a former Minister, as elicited by the Rotterdam correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung. Holland, said the former, being bound by law and treaty, the question of extradition was a matter for decision by the judicial authorities. If the Entente insisted on the surrender of the Kaiser then Germany would have to make the application to Holland, but the extradition itself would depend on the terms of the extradition treaty between Holland and Germany. "Of course," he continued, "the Entente may declare war against Holland and remove the Kaiser from the country by force, but that is highly improbable. So far as I am able to judge, almost the entire Chamber is of the opinion that the extradition will not materialise, since the question being a judicial one, it will be impossible for us to comply with a demand that contravenes the law."

Mr. van Houten said he though it was going too far to impute to Germany and the ex-Kaiser the sole responsibility for the world conflagration and completely to ignore the part played by certain Entente statesman.

Last Americans Leaving Archangel.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The last battalion of the 310th Engineers is to leave Archangel Wednesday, according to a message received by the State Department today from the American Consul there. The dispatch told of the friendly farewell given to the American troops in all the villages through which they passed.

FORCE SAFE IN NEW RAND SCHOOL RAID

the most far-reaching in the country, and broadly defines "the advocacy of anarchy" as follows:

By word of mouth or writing advocates, advises, or teaches the duty, necessity, or propriety of overthrowing or overturning organized government by force or violence, or by assassination of the executive head or of any of the executive officials of Government, or by any unlawful means; or

Prints, publishes, edits, issues, or knowingly circulates, sells, distributes, or publicly displays any book, paper, document, or written or printed matter in any form containing or advocating, advising, or teaching the doctrine that organized government should be overthrown by force, violence, or any unlawful means; or

Openly, willfully, and deliberately justifies by word of mouth or writing the assassination or unlawful killing or assaulting of any executive or other officer of the United States or of any State of any civilized nation having an organized Government because of his official character, or any other crime, with intent to teach, spread, or advocate the propriety of the doctrines of criminal anarchy; or

Organizes or helps to organize or becomes a member of or voluntarily assembles with any society, group, or assembly of persons formed to teach or advocate such a doctrine, is guilty of a felony and punishable by imprisonment for not more than ten years, or by a fine of not more than $5,000, or both.

Furthermore, the New York law makes it a misdemeanor for "the owner, agent, superintendent, janitor, or caretaker of any place, building, or room" to permit the use of such premises for anarchistic gatherings, such as come within the meaning of the New York law, which defines "the advocacy of anarchy" in the words already quoted.

The Federal authorities are also considering legal action, particularly on the State Department confidential cablegram that was sent on Jan. 24 by Acting Secretary of State Polk to Secretary Lansing in Paris, in which Mr. Polk made extended reference to the Russian situation. A copy of the cablegram was read at the meeting by Max Eastman, a local radical leader. Eastman has since intimated that he has more State Department confidential information at his disposal. In the opinion of the Government agents the Polk-Lansing correspondence was obtained by Bolshevist agents in Paris and sent to this country. Eastman says the message was sent to him anonymously.

The second raid on the "People's House," in East Fifteenth Street, was made at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger and Archibald E. Stevenson, associate counsel for the Lusk committee, were in charge. The warrant which authorized the searching of the safe in room 301 was obtained on Sunday afternoon, following the submission to Chief Magistrate McAdoo of an affidavit made by Charles L. Converse, an agent of the Legislative Investigating Committee.

I. M. Sackin, counsel for the Society of the Commonwealth Centre, was waiting in room 301 when Mr. Berger, Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Converse and several State agents arrived with the warrant. Mr. Berger read the warrant and Mr. Sackin immediately protested that the proceedings were illegal and that he would not advise that the safe be opened for the inspection of the State officers. Mr. Sackin then called in two policemen and demanded that they prevent the opening of the safe. The policemen read the warrant and informed Mr. Sackin that they had no right to interfere with proceedings instituted by the Attorney General of the State.

"I call upon you again as police officers of the City of New York to protect our private property," Mr. Sackin said to the policemen.

"Talk to the Deputy Attorney General there; he is in charge," one of the policemen answered.

"He [Mr. Berger] has no right," replied Mr. Sackin, "to touch our property, and I will hold you policemen personally responsible if you do not do your duty and protect our property."

"The proceeding is something we cannot interfere with," one of the policemen replied. He and his companion then left the building.

Deputy Attorney General Berger then told Mr. Sackin that the safe would be opened, and added that Mr. Sackin, if he so desired, could find his remedy in the courts. Another request was then made to Mr. Sackin to open the safe and when he refused, Vincent Thomas, an expert safe opener in the employ of a safe manufacturing concern, was called in and told to open the safe. Mr. Thomas tapped the metal around the combination lock with a light hammer, then bent his ear and listened to the clicking within, produced an automatic drill, and in six minutes from the time he began the safe doors were swung back.

The safe was opened so quickly that the spectators who watched the proceeding did not even see how it was done. All anybody saw or heard was the hammer taps, the quick cutting of the drill, and then the insertion into the drill hole of a piece of wire which was immediately followed by the swinging back of the double doors.

When he saw that the safe was open Mr. Sackin informed Mr. Berger that a representative would stand by and list everything seized in the name of the State. He appointed Algernon Lee, the Educational Director of the Rand School, to make the list.

"I intend," said Mr. Sackin last night, "to find out whether or not private property is protected by the authorities of this State and city and if necessary I will take the matter to the highest courts. I made a proper demand on the police for protection and they refused it."

When asked who were the officers of the Society of the Commonwealth Centre Mr. Sackin declined to name any except himself. He is the Secretary.

All of the documents seized were taken to the offices of the Lusk committee, where they were arranged and indexed. It will take at least three days, it was said, to go through the papers seized at the Rand School, the I. W. W. headquarters, and the offices of the Left Wing Socialists last Saturday, and taken from the safe in the People's House yesterday afternoon.

The Bolshevist "Ambassador" Martens, issued a statement yesterday denying that a list of persons aggressive in opposition to Bolshevism in this country had been found among the papers taken from his "embassy" by the State agents when they raided his offices a week ago last Thursday.

POLISH JEWS HOPEFUL.

Traveler Says They Plan Big Part in Rebuilding Nation.

Isidore Hershfield of 99 Nassau Street, a lawyer who has just returned from Poland, yesterday told some of the impressions he received abroad, at a meeting of the Joint Distribution Committee of American Funds for the Relief of Jewish War Sufferers, held in the office of Felix M. Warburg.

"Despite their affliction and their hardships, the Jews of Poland have not given up hope for the future," said Mr. Hershfield. "They are planning to play an important part in the reborn nation. With the help in money and materials that American Jews have promised, they can give invaluable assistance to their country.

"The most pressing matter is the saving of thousands of our people in Poland from starvation. Any idea that American relief work is almost over is premature. On June 30 the American Relief Administration will cease to exist, and this will throw a heavier burden than ever upon voluntary relief agencies in this country.

"The Jews of Poland need machinery, raw material, tools, food, and commercial credit. The whole commercial and industrial structure of the country must be rebuilt. An instance of this is found in Kalisch. Before the war this city was a famous handmade lace centre. When I visited the place, strenuous efforts were being made to keep the industry alive, but no thread for manufacturing lace was to be had. To pass the secrets of lace making down to the younger generation, instructors were unraveling socks and old rags and using the ravelings as thread.

"American Jewish relief agents have taken many helpful steps in Poland. One of these is the outright gift of additional capital to every Jewish free loan society in the country. These donations will make it possible for small Jewish merchants to obtain the money they need to rehabilitate themselves.

"Every Jewish hospital, orphanage, old folks' home, and similar institutions has been canvassed with reference to its needs in linen, medicines, surgical instruments, disinfectants, and other supplies. These needs have been tabulated. It will require about $1,500,000 to supply the necessary materials. Poland is all but devoid of medicines, disinfectants, linens, underclothing, socks, and shoes. In the dead of Winter it was the ordinary thing to see old and young of both sexes by the score barefoot in the streets."

Mr. Hershfield said that in Lemberg bread costs 112 times its pre-war price, eggs 40 times as much as they used to cost; meat, which is scarcely to be had, 400 times; rye flour 70 times; potatoes 2,000 times; and kascha, a cereal much used by the Jews, 100 times what it formerly cost. Fresh milk is not to be had in any of the cities.

OIL MEN TO SEE AGUILAR.

Conference Here Expected to Improve Relations With Mexico.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Relations between Mexico and the United States are expected by officials here to be greatly improved by conferences to be held in New York this week between General Candido Aguilar, son-in-law of President Carranza and Minister of Foreign Affairs in Carranza's Cabinet, and representatives of the oil companies operating in Mexico.

General Aguilar, according to official information, is empowered by President Carranza to make any agreement necessary to effect a settlement of the troublesome oil question. As a result of conferences between General Aguilar and officials of the State Department last week General Aguilar is considered as having obtained a better view of the reasons behind the stand taken by the American Government in its insistence on protection of American interests.

Before leaving Washington last Friday, it was learned today, General Aguilar wrote a long and exhaustive report to President Carranza dealing with the American Government's attitude on the oil question.

From New York Tribune, May 31, 1919—

"Fellows Who Stick by You Through Anything"

—says Corporal Daly

In "this man's army" you form the finest of friendships, the kind that last through life. Read what Corporal William Daly, of Company M, 108th Infantry, says. He knows. He's tried it. Wouldn't you like to be one of Uncle Sam's "buddies," wearing a uniform that is honored in every land, one of the big, clean army of regular fellows, and "sit on the top of the world"? Well, here's your chance! Read every word of this advertisement.

Good Pay—Foreign Service—Free Education

When you're in the Army, Uncle Sam pays your bills—food, clothing, living quarters, everything of the best quality. He furnishes medical attention, care of the teeth, all the necessaries. In addition, at the present rate of pay, you receive $30 a month and upward—all "velvet." It means money in the bank if you are thrifty. Does your present job show you $30 a month profit?

Our Flag flies in France, on the Rhine, in the Philippines, Porto Rico, Alaska, China, Panama, Hawaii, etc. What part of the world would you rather see? Wherever the Flag floats, there Uncle Sam's boys will be found guarding its honor. Extra pay for service in Europe, Asia, Philippines and Alaska. This means experience most people gladly pay for. Uncle Sam pays you.

You can study almost anything, right up to college and technical subjects. You can learn a skilled trade.

When you enlist, you actually go into training for SUCCESS in after life, laying a firm foundation to build on.

U.S. ARMY

50,000 Red-Blooded Men Going to Serve in France and on the Rhine—Now

If you want to see the battlefields of France, and the historic Rhine which the Germans thought impassable, enlist today. You will be sent across the Atlantic to join the Army of Occupation of the A. E. F. This is the chance of a lifetime. Many veterans are re-enlisting to go back there. You may be too late unless you act at once.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY—WILL YOU GO?

Healthy, Out-Door Life

In the Army, you live mostly out-of-doors. Your work builds you up physically, makes you strong, healthy, alert and masterful. Skilled physicians look after you. Your military duties keep you fit. You eat well, sleep well, feel like a king all the time. Most men gain weight when in the Army, and it's all sound muscle—no fat. Military life makes you courageous, builds up willpower and self-control, gives you mastery over yourself. It broadens your mind, and stiffens your backbone. It makes you the kind of chap that gets the best sort of job when your enlistment is up. It develops confidence and leadership. The U. S. soldier is respected everywhere, because he has the greatest government in the world behind him. His uniform is a uniform of honor. No calling builds up character and independence like the military profession.

Training in a Skilled Trade Fits You for Success in Life

There are thirteen branches of the service: Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, Ordnance Dept., Medical Dept. (including Veterinary Corps), Coast Artillery, Signal Corps, Tank Corps, Motor Transport Corps, Air Service (including Balloon Corps), Quartermaster Corps, Engineers, Construction Division. You have your choice of these branches. Each branch utilizes a number of skilled trades—often a great many. These trades include surveying, auto-repairing, telephone repairing, road construction, wireless telegraphy, tailoring, telegraphy, switchboard installation, motor mechanics (air and ground) and a great many others. YOU CAN CHOOSE WHICH OF THESE TRADES YOU WILL LEARN.

Liberty and Recreation

In the Army you have plenty of liberty, and lots of entertainment. You can play baseball, football or other games. You go to shows, dances, movies. You meet agreeable people in U. S. Army and Hostess Houses, etc. You get acquainted with nice girls. IN FACT, YOU HAVE A BETTER TIME THAN MOST CIVILIANS.

Promotion

By sticking to the game, you may become a non-commissioned or commissioned officer. Men are also selected from the ranks to go to West Point; others are commissioned from the ranks. There are also the grades of corporal and sergeant in the line, and higher non-commissioned staff grades. Every promotion brings added pay. Marksmanship brings added pay. Skill at your trade brings increased pay.

Now, Men, what do you want? Call and talk it over To-day!

Are the Tools of Business to be the new Farm Implements?

Will the farm change wrought by mechanical development—the harvester, the thresher and the tractor—be eclipsed by a second and even greater change?

How farming was revolutionized since the Civil War by the replacement of the scythe and the flail by the reaper and the thresher, we all know. And we know what the tractor is doing today to change farm production methods.

But are we awake to the ultimate result of this development?

As a result of machine-farming, American farms are increasing in acreage. In the last census period the number of farms of 50 to 175 acres increased only 6%, while those of 500 to 1,000 acres increased 22%.

Large-scale farming is bringing to the farmer executive problems he never had before.

Agricultural colleges recognize this. Today every agricultural school of the first rank offers from one to five courses in farm business management. From the graduates of these courses a new idea of farming is spreading through the whole farm field.

The new type of farmer

A new type of farmer is definitely developing—an executive who is employing labor to run his machines and devoting his time to directing his business.

A farmer who has an office desk with a telephone at his elbow. Fourteen styles of office desks are now listed in the catalogs of one of the great mail-order houses selling to farmers.

A farmer who is beginning to see the need of a typewriter and an adding machine as a part of his equipment. "We receive very good returns from our advertisements in farm papers," states the vice-president of a well-known mail-order typewriter company. And the manufacturer of a famous adding machine reports considerable sales of a small model to farmers.

A farmer who is looking into questions of marketing and merchandising. Five per cent of all the labels registered at the U. S. patent office last year were taken out by farmers for raw food products.

A farmer who is studying cost problems. The hue and cry raised by farmers against the Department of Agriculture for failing to publish their cost of production figures shows how important he considers them.

From all over the farm field comes evidence of the growing interest in farming as a business. How FARM AND FIRESIDE is meeting these changing interests of the farm field for more than 600,000 progressive farmers is indicated by these articles

In the June issue

"Costs—the Greatest Joke on the Farmer," an article by James H. Collins on cost records and statistical comparisons on the farms.

"What You And I Can Do Now To Put Farming on a Better Basis," by MacHenry Johnson.

"If You Are Not Making Enough Money, Maybe This Tells You Why," by Alvin Johnson.

"Why I Don't Have To Work So Hard on My Farm Any More," by Charles Foss, a successful dairyman.

SAYS WILKIN'S PUT DATE IN WIFE'S WILL

PROSECUTION RESTS CASE

Defense Will Present First Witness Today—Jury to Visit Scene of Murder.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 23.—David N. Carvalho, a handwriting expert, testified today that Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins wrote "Oct. 20" on the so-called 1915 will of his wife, Julia, for whose murder he is being tried before Supreme Court Justice Manning.

The witness said that he had examined a number of checks signed by Dr. Wilkins. When the 1915 will, under the terms of which Dr. Wilkins was to receive much of his wife's estate, was shown to him Mr. Carvalho said the date was not in her handwriting.

The prosecution announced, at the close of the testimony of Dr. Otto H. Schultze, Medical Assistant to the District Attorney of New York County, that it rested its case. District Attorney Charles R. Weeks requested permission to have the jury visit the Wilkins home at Long Beach, in front of which Mrs. Wilkins met her death. Justice Manning said he was willing to grant the request provided the defense consented. After consulting with Dr. Wilkins, Charles N. Wysong, his attorney, suggested that the visit be deferred until the defense had put in its case. Justice Manning agreed with him that it would be better to wait until the defense had finished.

Dr. Schultze testified that Mrs. Wilkins had died of a compound fracture of the skull and lacerations of the brain. He testified that he had made hundreds of autopsies.

Allen O. Meyers, chief investigator of the Burns Detective Agency, recalled by the prosecution, related a conversation he had had with Dr. Wilkins in which the doctor told him of finding $71 in a dog's bed. Meyers declared he had made a thorough search of the bed the day before but had not discovered any money. When he remarked to Dr. Wilkins that it was odd that no one had seen the money, he testified that the defendant said Mrs. Wilkins was in the habit of hiding her belongings in strange places.

"Duke," the dog for which Dr. Wilkins professed to have a strong attachment, shunk away when detectives took the defendant to the Long Beach home following his arrest, the witness testified.

Meyers said that in searching the Wilkins' home he saw an old gold watch, another watch and a dust-covered pocketbook on the top of a buffet. The prosecution brought out this testimony to disprove the theory that burglars had been in the house. The witness also identified gloves and hairpins he said he had found in the Wilkins' home two days after the death of Mrs. Wilkins. The defense will introduce its first witness tomorrow.

SAY NILES WAS NOT SLAIN.

Police and Medical Examiner Scout Family's Murder Theory.

Little "information" "regarding" the death of Ensign Arthur L. Niles, Jr., who, it was learned through an advertisement on Sunday, had been married one day to Miss Dorothy Hathaway Sutton of Garden City before he had committed suicide in his city home at 319 West Eightieth Street, could be obtained yesterday. A theory was advanced to the police by a member of the Sutton family, who said that young Niles had no reason for taking his life, that it was possible for someone to have followed him into his home on Wednesday and to have shot him, placing the pistol alongside the body. The police last night denied the plausibility of this contention.

The Rev. Dr. Alpheus M. Morgan, minister of Janes's Methodist Episcopal Church at 461 West Forty-fourth Street, declined yesterday to tell the contents of the marriage license, since, he said, he had been requested by telephone on Saturday, not to divulge anything of the wedding. He said that a woman made the request, but that he did not learn whether she was a member of Niles's family or of Sutton's.

Mr. Sutton, who is Treasurer of the Electric Carrier Company, with offices at 165 Broadway, said last night that he did not see how it was possible for Niles to have committed suicide.

"He had been keeping company with my daughter Dorothy for a long time," Mr. Sutton said, "and they had been engaged for about a year. They were very much attached to each other, and neither my wife nor I would have had any objection to the marriage as he was really a splendid young man. He was in the hospital for a short time suffering from shell shock, and perhaps it was the result of this condition that brought on the act of last week. Otherwise I cannot account for it."

When George Hohman, the medical examiner who inspected the body last Thursday, was asked last night about the theory that Niles had been killed, he said that it is impossible. The bullet had gone through the mouth, he said, and the revolver, with one cartridge missing, was lying in the dead man's hand.

TEACHERS ASK NEW RATING

Association Protests Against Present System of Grading.

There promises to be a great deal of worry and trouble for many of the public school teachers in carrying out the new salary law.

Section 555 of the law reads that a member of the supervising and the teaching staff, serving under a schedule which provides for annual increments, shall receive for any given year of service the salary and the increment provided in said schedule for the year which corresponds to his year of service, unless his services for the year immediately preceding have been declared by a majority vote of the Board of Education or Board of Superintendents of a city to be unsatisfactory, after opportunity to be heard.

The Board of Superintendents on Tuesday and Friday of last week had before it a number of high school elementary school teachers, about thirty-two in number, whose services had been marked by their principals as unsatisfactory. The teachers were called upon to give reasons, if they could, why the principals' rulings should not be upheld. The teachers did not know, until they appeared before the superintendents, what the ratings were, it is said, and why they were given. Under the old law there were different ratings by the principal, namely, A, which meant most satisfying; B+, and B, which stood for satisfaction, and C, which denoted that the services were unsatisfactory. City Superintendent William H. Maxwell ruled that a teacher might ask the reasons for the C marking, but very little satisfaction was obtained by the teachers, it was said.

The marking of B has always been considered satisfactory and teachers attaining it have felt that they stood well. In a recent letter by Associate Superintendent John L. Tildsley to high school principals, however, he is said to have told them that if teachers obtained a B marking it was not necessary that their service should be rated as satisfactory. This means, it is said, that many of the teachers, who have been marked B, have been rated unsatisfactory by their principals. If the unsatisfactory rating is maintained it will result in the reduction to a considerable extent of the cost of the new salary law.

President Prall of the Board of Education said yesterday that if any teacher thought that his marking was unjust he could appeal to the Board of Education for an investigation.

At a meeting of the Legal Committee of the teachers' organization Miss Maud Whitney introduced a resolution which was unanimously adopted. It stated that the present system of rating teachers has proved unsatisfactory and that the Teachers' Interest Organization recommends that the present system of rating teachers be discontinued; that teachers' work, beginning September, 1919, be rated satisfactory or unsatisfactory, and that the duplicates of all data and reports sent to a supervising office regarding a teacher be given to that teacher at the time they are sent to the superior officers.

5,000 STRIKE IN VICTORIA

Shipyards and Machine Shop Workers Go Out in Sympathy with Winnipeg Strikers.

WINNIPEG, June 23.—It was officially announced today that all aliens hereafter caught participating in demonstrations against the Government will be taken in custody and placed in an internment camp. More than twenty aliens, charged with rioting, are in custody pending internment, it was announced.

More than 100 persons are under arrest as the result of rioting and the city was calm today. Street cars resumed service this morning.

A squad of mounted police raided the office of The Western Labor News late today and arrested J. S. Woodsworth, acting editor. They carried away all the type and "copy" that had been prepared for tomorrow's issue.

The Western Labor News in this morning's issue declared that the strike is unbroken. The newspaper suggests that a "commission with extraordinary powers" should be appointed to settle the differences and concludes with the statement: "Let us reiterate, there are very reasonable men in both camps."

VICTORIA, B. C., June 23.—Union metal workers, said by their leaders to number approximately 5,000, walked out here today in sympathy with the Winnipeg strike. Ship yards and machine shops are chiefly affected.

The men struck at the three yards operated by the Foundation Company of British Columbia, Ltd., and the yards later closed. Virtually all the employes of the Harbor Marine Company remained at work. The majority of these are returned soldiers.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., June 23.—The general strike in this town, called in sympathy with the Winnipeg walkout, was declared off today by the Strike Committee of the Trades and Labor Council.

Forty-four strike demonstrators, arrested for alleged participation in the riots on Saturday, were arraigned today on charges of riotous assembly and released on $1,000 bail each. More than fifty other cases were remanded for hearing next week.

Federal authorities today announced that all efforts leading to a settlement of the general sympathetic strike had been suspended.

Investigation of Saturday's riots began today, and at police headquarters it was said warrants had been issued for a number of radicals.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., June 23.—The railroad shopmen, who went on strike in sympathy with the Winnipeg strikers returned to work today. The Divisional Superintendent of the Canadian Northern Railway promised the men reinstatement without discrimination.

MONTREAL, June 23.—A three-weeks adjournment of negotiations in the Canadian strike controversy was suggested to the Canadian Railway War Board today by the Executive Committee of Division No. 4, Railway Shopmen of America, representing 30,000 men. It was announced the suggestion was made because of assurances received by officials of the division, while in Atlantic City that the United States Railway Administration would have its finding completed within three weeks in connection with demands by shopmen on American roads.

START ENEMY ALIENS HOME.

Troops Guard 267 Leaving War Prison Barracks in Utah.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 23.—Under guard of United States troops, 267 enemy aliens from the war prison barracks at Fort Douglas, near here, started tonight on their way to Germany. The ship, it is understood here, will carry close to 2,000 enemy aliens who are being deported.

Among those to leave here tonight were Captain Herman Elbo and S. Dienst, who were interned after serving sentences at a Federal prison following conviction for complicity in the Hindu conspiracy cases. They were first taken into custody at Honolulu.

FOOD RIOTS IN BERLIN.

Shops Pillaged in Northern Quarter —Army Police Restore Order.

BERLIN, June 23, (Associated Press.)—Numerous food shops in the northern quarter of Berlin were stormed and pillaged today.

The military police soon restored order, but there are fears of a repetition of the disturbances.

Swift & Company's sales of Beef in New York City for the week ending Saturday, June 21st, averaged as follows: Domestic Beef, 17.87 cents per pound.—Advt.

TO TAKE 3 GERMAN SHIPS.

French Navy is Sending Crews for Vessels Interned in Spain.

HAVRE, June 23.—The French navy will take possession of three German ships now interned in Spain. These ships are the Faro, now at Huelva; the Pisnet, at Bilbao, and the Oldenburg, at Cadiz.

The crews of twenty-seven men each will leave here immediately by train for the various ports.

The three interned German ships to be taken over by the French navy probably are among those in neutral ports which Germany agreed to release to the Allies for food transportation in return for the shipment of food stocks.

An Extraordinary Prize Beauty Contest

$10,000.00 In Cash for a Photograph of the Most Beautiful Girl in Greater New York

WE will pay ten thousand dollars in cash for a photograph of the most beautiful girl in Greater New York or suburban districts. Two thousand five hundred dollars to the second prize beauty. One thousand dollars to the third prize beauty.

Our object is to introduce the Illustrated Daily News—New York's new pictorial daily newspaper, to be published for the first time next Thursday, June 26th.

This is an extraordinary prize beauty contest. It will bring a fortune to some girl. We ask you to help us find her. Send us her photograph with her name, home address and occupation written plainly on the back of it. Send photographs to downtown office, 25 City Hall Place, or uptown office, 251 Fifth Avenue, northeast corner 28th Street.

There are no entry fees. No charge of any kind. The judges are

D. W. GRIFFITH
The celebrated motion picture director.

HARRISON FISHER
World renowned painter of beautiful girls.

GEORGE M. COHAN

This contest is open to every unmarried girl in Greater New York and suburban districts, except professional beauties such as theatrical stars and artists' models.

All photographs sent in will be reviewed. Nominees will be selected. New photographs will be made at our expense. Then the three prize beauties will be chosen. To the first choice we will pay $10,000.00; the second, $2,500.00; the third, $1,000.00.

In case two subjects are judged equally beautiful, awards of the sums offered will be paid to each.

Why We Make This Unusual Offer

We make this extraordinary offer of $13,500.00 for three photographs to introduce New York's new Pictorial daily newspaper—the Illustrated Daily News. This new publication will be issued every morning—except Sunday—beginning Thursday, June 26th. It will be in tabloid form—a "picture paper" similar to the two successful publications now being issued in London. Printed on high grade paper in tabloid form it will be unique in American newspaperdom. Watch for it at all newsstands next Thursday morning.

A trade paper writes that English tailors are now being asked to co-operate in the revival of the boutonniere by providing, instead of an imitation buttonhole, a real buttonhole in lapel of coat, with small elastic band at the back about two inches below the opening.

A charming idea!

We've always encouraged it; for years, have not only provided hand-made buttonholes in the lapels of our coats but supplied each with a silk loop for holding the boutonniere in place.

We're glad to speak of it in this, the season of flowers, when one touch of nature helps to make the whole world kin!

Time—1:49 4-5. Won in 1918 by Cudgel.

James W. McClelland's Eternal, which has run second to the great Sir Barton on two occasions and once to the fleet Purchase, came into his own at the opening of the Aqueduct race track yesterday when he captured the time-honored Brooklyn Handicap, while Purchase and many other notable performers were forced to take the dust from his flying heels. It was a great triumph for the son of Sweep, for victory in the Brooklyn, which was run for the thirty-first time yesterday, is one of the most coveted of turf honors, and the event has been won by many great horses since Dry Monopole fought his way to the front in a thrilling finish on the old Gravesend track in 1887.

Even though the success of Eternal signalized the defeat of a strong public choice in Purchase, it is safe to say that no more popular colors have flashed first past the judges than the canary and purple of McClelland. Horse and owner have gained the respect and admiration of racegoers by the plucky manner in which they have accepted all engagements. Eternal has traveled further than any other horse this season in order to meet the best of his age in the big stakes of the East and the West. He has fought valiantly on tracks that sometimes did not suit him, and his defeats have been accepted with good grace by his owner. All these defeats were wiped out yesterday, when with a pull in the weights and trained to the minute the little brown beauty showed a flight of speed that had the others trailing at the finish while he breezed over the line with a margin of three lengths, one of the easiest winners of the Brooklyn on record.

Came Near to Record.

Had there been a horse fit to give real contention to Eternal it is likely that a new record for the event would have been hung out. As it was, Eternal ran the mile and a furlong in 1:49 4-5, only two-fifths of a second slower than the record for the race and track, made by Harry Payne Whitney's Borrow two years ago. Eternal had swept to the front before half the distance had been covered, and thereafter held command with consummate ease. He was striding swiftly and easily all through the stretch, with his rider awaiting a challenge that never really materialized, and Shuttinger was looking back at the finish as his mount galloped on to his initial victory of the season on a local track.

In many respects the current Brooklyn was different from any of its predecessors. Victories of three-year-olds have been rare, only five of that age having won previous to Eternal. The contest yesterday showed how the present crop of three-year-olds dominates the racing situation, for three-year-olds took all three places, for the first time in turf history. Edward Arlington's lightly weighted Questionnaire finished third to Eternal and Purchase, and he was two lengths in front of Hal Parr's Crimper, the first of the older division to complete the route. The Brooklyn has always been noted for close finishes, but this tradition was shattered also, the soundly beaten Purchase finishing five lengths in front of Questionnaire, with the rest of the field of twelve well strung out.

Weight Told on Purchase.

Without detracting from the well-merited success of Eternal, it is only fair to call attention to the fine performance of Purchase, which suffered his first defeat of the season under circumstances that make him rank as a great horse and the logical contender for the honors held by Sir Barton. Owing to a victory since the weights were announced, Purchase had to pick up a penalty, bringing his weight up to 117 pounds, which is nine pounds more than any three-year-old has successfully shouldered in the Brooklyn. With the exception of War Cloud, which finished far back in the ruck, Purchase was giving weight to all the older horses, as well as to the horses of his own age. Eternal carried but 105 pounds, and it was this light impost that made it possible for the son of Sweep to show unsuspected speed and outrun the favorite.

There was a crowd of nearly 20,000 persons to see the running of the race, and the visitors found that the Queens County Jockey Club had done everything possible to insure their comfort. The grand stand had been lengthened and widened, more boxes installed for the clubhouse patrons, and the lawn smoothed and leveled for the benefit of those whose speculative tendencies keep them close to that busy mart. Fresh paint here and there made the surrounding buildings look spick and span, while even the grass in the infield had been cut so that it resembled a well-kept lawn. Through all the changes the coziness of Aqueduct has been retained and there was the same old delectable odor from the kitchen to greet the racegoers as they passed under the stands to take their places in the crowd.

Mayor Hylan Sees Race.

A thoroughly representative assemblage saw the big race. As a fitting tribute to Brooklyn's big turf event Mayor Hylan was present with his daughter, Miss Virginia Hylan. No big race crowd would be complete without Mrs. Payne Whitney, and that fine sportswoman had the satisfaction of seeing her colors carried to victory by Syosset in the steeplechase. Joseph E. Widener came on from Philadelphia, but Trompe la Mort, his entry in the Brooklyn, proved a forlorn hope. Others well known in the turf world who were noticed were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Courtney, Robert Hilliard, R. T. Wilson, Jr., Andrew Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davis, George W. Loft, Richard F. Carman, Henry A. Buck, Christopher J. Fitzgerald, and Johnson N. Camden, the last named President of the Kentucky Jockey Club.

Aqueduct still lacks adequate room for a paddock suitable to the importance of the racing plant, and there was a tremendous crush there as the candidates were being saddled for the engrossing number of the program. Previous to that Eternal had aroused the greatest enthusiasm by his display of fire among the horses that warmed up in public. Most of these were content to canter through the stretch, but Eternal came down as though gifted with wings and gave a taste of the speed that he was to use with such good effect a few minutes later.

Purchase did not warm up, but he elicited praise as he stepped out jauntily behind War Cloud in the parade, while Crimper was another that showed every evidence of fitness. Trompe la Mort was evidently on the big side, but all the others looked in the pink of condition and ready to race.

The start took place in the chute of the back stretch, but the horses were all the time in view of the crowd as they backed and wiggled while their riders were manouvring for positions. It was then the backers of Purchase, and they were legion, first felt uneasiness. For even Loftus could not make Purchase stand still and he dashed at the barrier and wheeled around as if he resented being asked to carry so much more weight than the others.

L'Errant Off in Lead.

Some said he was running his race at the barrier, and there was a cry of relief when Loftus got him to stand still for a moment and Cassidy sprang the webbing to a real good start. Purchase had to give one more sign of fractiousness before he settled down to race in earnest, for he threw his head in the air as the barrier went up and lost a length or two by this uncalled for action. The rest jumped into motion without the slightest hesitation, and T. P. Thorne's L'Errant with such lightning rapidity that he immediately showed in front.

Shuttinger also lost no time, and the canary of McClelland followed the light blue so quickly that the pair held a clear lead before the field had gone a furlong. L'Errant was running as if in a six-furlong sprint, and Shuttinger was content to rate Eternal along a length and a half behind him, at the same time moving so swiftly that he opened a gap of three lengths on the compact mass of horseflesh behind him. In this bunch were Trompe la Mort, Crimper, and Purchase, with Trompe la Mort the first to show clearly in advance of the third division.

It was not the part of the great Purchase to dally with these outsiders, and Loftus urged him for a few strides, so that he drew clear and went in serious pursuit of L'Errant and Eternal. Almost at the same moment that Purchase leaped forward Shuttinger made up his mind that L'Errant had been indulged with the lead long enough. He shook up the son of Sweep, and with quickened strides Eternal rushed by L'Errant, to leave him easy prey for the determined racers following.

This effort left Eternal with a lead of four lengths on Purchase as he rounded the bend, clinging close to the rail and galloping with a lightness and freedom that boded ill for the plucky Purchase, which was holding his own with his real effort uncalled on.

Purchase Tries in the Stretch.

Into the long stretch they turned, with the spectators craning their necks and some forming the idea due to the angle that Purchase was gaining on the son of Sweep. That view only lasted until the horses were straightened out for home, when it was seen that Eternal still had a useful lead of at least three lengths. The Hildreth champion was well clear of the others by this time, and when Loftus drew his whip and began to urge his mount the cry of "Purchase wins!" arose from thousands who made the wish father to the thought.

One glance was sufficient to destroy the hopes of the favorite's supporters, for while Purchase was straining every nerve under the pitiless whip of Loftus, Eternal was galloping along as easily as when he started, and with Shuttinger only keeping him up to his work by the gentle motion of his hands.

Even Loftus realized that he was beaten, and a sixteenth from home he stopped punishing his gallant thoroughbred in a stern chase and hopeless cause. It was then that Eternal appeared at his best. The others were reeling and staggering behind him, dizzy from the effects of the sizzling pace, while the hoofs of the brown colt in the van were lightly touching the smooth dirt track. There was no straining, no effort, as he galloped to the finish with even stride, one of the easiest winners of the Brooklyn Handicap on record. Questionnaire came with a rush to take third place from Crimper, which was two lengths in front of the Latonia Derby winner, Be Frank.

As a curtain raiser to the Brooklyn Handicap there was the Hudson Stakes for two-year-olds, an event which had its inception at the same time as the handicap. This served to further demonstrate the quality of the Glen Riddle Farm's Man O' War, which picked up 130 pounds and gave weight to all his competitors, winning with the greatest ease from Hal Parr's Violet Tip. Man O' War has not been beaten, and it is the opinion of many turfmen that he will go through the season without defeat. This was his fourth victory and on every occasion he has won with ridiculous ease.

James W. McClelland's cup was filled to overflowing when after the brilliant victory of Eternal he sent out Hasten On for the first time to take the last race for two-year-olds just as easily as Eternal had scored. Hasten On is a son of Great Britain and is said to be the best youngster in the McClelland barn, perhaps another Eternal.

HOOFBEATS.

Havre de Grace will be saved as a racing plant in the Maryland Circuit. There was a meeting of horsemen interested in the sport in that State at Aqueduct yesterday, and it was decided to purchase the track, closing the option which was given until July 1. Those interested in the venture are H. G. Bedwell, Richard F. Carman, William Garth, and James Arthur.

There will be a double bill for turfmen today, for after the races at Aqueduct there will be a general movement to the city, where the first yearling sale of the season will be held at Durland's Academy. The young thoroughbreds to be disposed of are from the studs of Johnson N. Camden, Lucas B. Coombs, Brownell Combs, John H. Morris, and W. H. Threlkeld.

Not even Loftus has put up a better ride than was credited to Jimmy Butwell in the fifth race, when he brought W. L. Oliver's Kilts II. home a winner. Kilts II. was left at least a dozen lengths at the start of the mile race, but was nursed along by Butwell, who finally shot him up on the inside to take the purse from Benevolent.

Star Class was led to the post for the Brooklyn by a piebald pony, a mixed color that is a sign of luck to turfmen. The charm failed to work, however, as Star Class finished last.

Andrew Miller did a merciful act when he ordered Roamer scratched from the big event. The gallant old gelding has performed so poorly of late that it would have been cruel to subject him to another certain defeat.

Man o' War was a 1 to 10 favorite for the Hudson, and his success was assured when S. C. Hildreth's Dominique was scratched.

W. W. Lyles, paddock judge and silver-tongued auctioneer of racehorses in Cuba, paid his first visit to a metropolitan track this season to see the running of the Brooklyn.

Old Koenig made a successful return to the turf after his accident early in the season. He carried the big impost of 130 pounds in the Kingston Handicap at six and a half furlongs that opened the sport, and in the hands of Loftus won handily by a neck.

Loftus and Shuttinger divided the riding honors. The former scored with Old Koenig and Man o' War, while Shuttinger had the mount on Eternal and Hasten On.

BIG SCORE BY POLOISTS.

Philadelphia Country Club Makes 20 Goals Against Devon.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—Philadelphia Country Club's polo team, exhibiting a return to form today, smothered the Devon Polo Club quartette under an avalanche of goals in the second game in the tournament for the third Wood Crest Cup. The score was 20 to 7, in favor of the P. C. C. team, and the result will match the country club against the Bryn Mawr Polo Club, winner of last Saturday's game, for the final on Thursday.

The Devon team, including R. Penn Smith, Jr., John W. Converse, Alfred M. Collins, and G. B. Fletcher, really earned only one goal, and the rest were allowed under the handicap rules. Converse was the lone scorer for his side, and put the ball over two minutes after play started. After that the country club team took the offensive and held it until the end of the game.

The stars of the contest were Thomas Stokes and W. Standley Stokes, who with their brother, E. Lowber Stokes and Barclay McFadden, made up the country club's team. Thomas Stokes scored nine of his team's points; W. Standley Stokes scored eight, and E. Lowber Stokes made the other three.

The lineup:

Phila. C. C. (20.)	Hcp.	Devon, (7.)	Hdcp.
1—Thos. Stokes	4	1—R. Penn Smith	1
2—Thos. Stokes	4	2—J. W. Converse	3
3—E. L. Stokes	4	3—A. M. Collins	4
Back—B. McFadden	3	Back—G. F. Fletcher	1
Team total hdcp.	15	Team total hdcp.	9

Philadelphia Country Club—Goals earned, 20; no handicaps or penalties; net score 20. Devon Polo Club—Goals earned, 1; award by handicap, 6; no penalties; net score, 7. Eight periods of 7½ minutes each. Referee—Philip L. Leidy. Timekeeper and scorer—W. A. Beckley.

Miller to Handle Butler's Horses.

James Butler has made arrangements to have Richard Miller, for many years in the employ of the late P. J. Dwyer, Charles F. Dwyer, W. S. Fanshawe, A. A. Doctor and other owners, handle his thoroughbreds, and the following have been sent to him at Aqueduct: Spur, Siesta, Bally, Teacher's Pet, The Snob, Parable and Turf. Miller is the man who developed Africander and made him the champion of his day. He also trained Sandmarsh and won the Excelsior Handicap two years in succession with the big son of Sandringham. In his hands Spur may be confidently expected to show a return to the form which made him one of the best three-year-olds in training.

COOPERSTOWN FOUR CAPTURES POLO CUPS

Up-State Team Defeats Meadow Brook Rovers in Final Game by 7½ to 3¾ Goals.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., June 23.—By consistent teamwork and fast riding the Cooperstown polo team, consisting of F. A. Clark, Fred H. Post, F. S. Von Stade, and F. H. Prince, Jr., defeated the Meadow Brook Rovers this evening on the International Field at Meadow Brook in the final match for the Hempstead Cups, by a net score of 7½ to 3¾ goals.

By improving their teamwork over that shown in the play for the Wheatly Cups, the winners held firmly to their positions today and frequently took the ball from the Long Island players after the latter had worked it well down to their posts for a possible tally.

The field was fast and the ponies were in excellent condition. Both teams played on an equal footing of a fourteen-goal team handicap.

It was not until the commencement of the fourth chukker that Cooperstown took a marked lead, when Post scored three goals and the Long Islanders were shut out. The Meadow Brooks made a desperate rally in the fifth chukker, scoring the only goal of the period, which McKean made from a sharp angle.

It was nip and tuck in the sixth and three times each team drove the ball well toward its opponent's posts, but lost it during lively melés. No goals were scored.

By rapid work by Prince, and later by Von Stade, the ball was passed to Clark in the seventh period and he scored two goals in rapid succession. Honors were even up in the last period, when Clark and McKean made difficult goals for their respective teams.

The lineup and summary follows:

COOPERSTOWN, (7½.)	MEADOW BROOK ROVERS, (3¾.)
1—F. A. Clark.	1—Howard Phipps.
2—F. H. Post.	2—Shaw McKean.
3—F. S. Von Stade.	3—H. T. Peters.
Back—F. H. Prince, Jr.	Back—T. Leboutillier.

First period—Goals made by No. 1, Clark, Cooperstown, 2:10; No. 2, Peters, Meadow Brook, 1:10; one-quarter goal penalty against McKean for safety.

Second period—No. 3, Clark, Cooperstown, 0:23; played 1:34 overtime.

Third period—No. 4, Phipps, Meadow Brook, 2:29.

Fourth period—No. 5, Post, Cooperstown, 2:41; No. 6, Post, Cooperstown, 1:58; No. 7, Post, Cooperstown, 1:29; one-half goal penalty against Post of Cooperstown for foul cross.

Fifth period—No. 8, McKean, Meadow Brook, 1:27.

Sixth period—No goals scored.

Seventh period—No. 9, Clark, Cooperstown, 2:19; No. 10, Clark, Cooperstown, 0:41.

Eighth period—No. 11, Clark, Cooperstown, 2:01; No. 12, McKean, Meadow Brook, 5:06.

PLAN POLO PONY SHOW.

National Exhibit at Meadow Brook Club Tomorrow.

America's first polo pony show will be held at the Meadow Brook Club, Westbury, Long Island, tomorrow. It will be free to all who wish to enter. Projected in the name of sport, a national benefit to horse breeding by giving encouragement to Americans to raise all the mounts needed by the thousands of rich men who play the game is the big idea back of the show.

To help carry out the objects, a National Polo Pony Society will be organized during the day. The morning will be devoted to nine breeders' classes, the entries to be shown to halter; then will come luncheon and the launching of the new society, and in the afternoon the show will be resumed with seven riding classes, for novice and "made" polo mounts, the final class being for the champion cup. The prizes in the halter classes will be in cash and cups will be awarded in the riding classes.

A tentative organization has been formed, which includes many leading poloists identified with the Polo Association, as token of the amity existing between the old and the new. The temporary list for the National Polo Pony Society is:

President, H. L. Herbert; Vice President, Horace Havemeyer; Secretary, William A. Hazard; Treasurer, D. S. Iglehart; Assistant Secretary and Manager, James C. Cooley; Executive Committee, F. S. von Stade, Chairman; J. Watson Webb, F. Ambrose Clark, Quincy A. Shaw, H. T. Peters, D. S. Iglehart, and James C. Cooley.

In a way, the objects will be identical with those of the British Polo Pony Society, which has been in existence for thirty or more years. Polo playing has had a marvelous influence in improving the breeding of Western ranch ponies, for the only mounts available when the game was first started here in 1876 were little 13 to 14 hand, rough broncos from Texas, brought on in carload lots and averaged at $50 or $60 a head. Now American ranch polo mounts bring from $500 to $5,000 each.

Although he has accepted the presidency and believes in the national value of systematic breeding of polo mounts, Mr. Herbert believes that the show has been misnamed. Since the annual meeting of the Polo Association in 1915, when the height of mounts was raised for the season of 1916 and all future time to "shall not exceed 15.1 hands," the word pony has been eliminated from the polo rules and terminology in this country.

"The pony limit is 14.2 hands; at 15 hands a horse is a galloway, and there is no reason to term a mount of that height of 15.1 a pony," said Mr. Herbert. "In accordance with the American rules and customs 'Polo Mount Show' would in my opinion be the better title for the venture, that promises, however, to be a success under whatever name selected."

Regarding the aims and needs of the Polo Pony Show and its organization, Mr. Cooley said, in part: "This is not a Meadow Brook Club show; it is a national one. We want to make it an annual fixture, and another year we may hold it at some other place, although, of course, Meadow Brook is the most prominent polo club in the country at the present time.

"The purpose of the show is to get people interested in breeding polo ponies. It is well known that there are a great many beautiful polo mares in this country that are being used for the game or are retired. We want to have all these mares bred to suitable stallions. Many of the mares came from Great Britain and are clean bred and in the English stud book. It would be the greatest sort of misfortune if these mares were allowed to go to waste, and also it would be a great misfortune if they were bred to anything except thoroughbred stallions.

"The most successful breeder of polo ponies in England was Sir John Barker, and he was especially successful with the two stallions Mark Forard and Right Forard. We have two stallions of this blood in this country now and they are both superb individuals. One of them is the property of Quincy A. Shaw and is kept at his Virginia stud; the other is Christopher Columbus, which belongs to Horace Havemeyer and stands at his farm near Bushkown, L. I.

"It will be a duty of the society to keep a stud book and a list of all deserving polo mares and keep in touch with the owners of them. If any man wishes to dispose of a mare that is in the stud book, or is not in it, we will try to find a home for her. Perhaps get someone to buy and to breed her, or else get the owner to give her to the society, and we would place her where she would be bred and her foal raised in a proper way. At any rate, we will make every effort to see that the mare is not lost to the country."

YANKEES VICTORS IN OPENING OF GAMES

U. S. Nine Defeats Canadians in Pershing Stadium—Sprinters Score on Track.

PERSHING STADIUM, June 23, (Associated Press.)—With a baseball victory over the Canadian nine and the placing of three men in the finals of the 100 and the 115 meter dashes, the American team got away to a good start on the first day of the interallied games, held in Pershing Stadium. An international crowd of 25,000 persons watched the contests.

R. Simpson of Columbia, Mo., record holder in the high hurdles, and Pat Ryan of the Irish-American Athletic Club, New York, champion hammer thrower, unfurled the Stars and Stripes at the opening of the games, with aviators soaring overhead.

Athletes from the British dominions shared the honors of the day with the Americans by winning two of the four principal races.

In the 100-meter dash Edward Teschner, Lawrence, Mass.; Sol Butler, Hutchinson, Kan., and C. W. Paddock, Pasadena, Cal., all won their heats, while Private J. Howard, Canada, and Lindsay of New Zealand captured their heats in the same event. The time made by the sprinters was not extraordinary. The day was cold and clear.

In the baseball game W. B. Fuller, formerly of the Washington American League team, shut out the Canadians 5 to 0, much to the delight of 5,000 American soldiers in the bleachers.

ENGLAND NOT IN BIG MEET.

Colonials Competing, but British Athletes Stand Aloof.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

PARIS, June 23.—The interallied games, one of the greatest athletic meetings ever held, were formally opened at Pershing Stadium today. Great Britain is the only important allied country which is absolutely unrepresented in this super-Olympic contest. Among the nations participating are America, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, China, Czechoslovakia, France, Guatemala, Hedjaz, Italy, New Zealand, Portugal, Rumania, and Serbia, but not Great Britain.

The games were planned by Americans and have been organized by them throughout. On Jan. 1 General Pershing sent a personal letter to all Commanders in Chief of armies of associated nations in the following terms:

"Officers and men of the American Expeditionary Forces, being keenly appreciative of the splendid relations which exist among those who have borne arms in a great common cause and which in the present instance so happily developed into such deep feeling of mutual respect and admiration, are most anxious to preserve and strengthen this relationship in any way possible. Now that active military operations have ceased, they believe nothing could be more conducive to this end than to gather in friendly competition on the field of sport representatives of the armies of each of the nations which have so long been associated together in the stern struggle for right. Accordingly, they decided to organize an interallied meeting, to be held in Paris during the month of May or June, 1919, in which officers and men of all of these armies shall be eligible to take part. As Commander in Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces I have the honor, therefore, to invite through you, as their Commander in Chief, the officers and men of armies of —— to participate in these contests and to express the earnest hope that many of them may do so, and that ties of much cherished spirit of comradeship which sprung from gallant joint effort of our forces on the battlefield be thus even more closely cemented."

Replies from the Commanders in Chief of various allied countries have been published in Paris newspapers, but apparently there was no reply from the British Commander in Chief.

ARRANGE POLICE GAMES.

Many New Features to be Added This Year.

The Police Department announces that the annual games for 1919 will be held at Speedway Park, Sheepshead Bay, July 19 and 26, the proceeds to be added to the Police Relief Fund. With its flying circuses, automobile racing, sham battles, cavalry drills, concerts by operatic stars, athletic events and exhibitions galore, the last police games could justly have merited the name supercircus, but Deputy Police Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis, who is again directing the event, promises that these features, enlarged and improved, will be included on the program for the games of 1919, and that several new and highly sensational attractions are to be added.

COLLEGE GOLFERS TO MEET.

Begin Title Tournament at Philadelphia Today.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—The first intercollegiate championship golf tournament held in this country since the war will start tomorrow on the links of the Merion Cricket Club. Virtually all the large colleges, including Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania, have entries, many of the players having recently returned from active service.

The tournament has been arranged in two sections, one for the team championship and one for the individual title. Team events will be held tomorrow and Wednesday. Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be devoted to the individual events.

There will be 72 holes medal play for the team title, 36 holes tomorrow and the remaining 36 on Wednesday. Play for the individual title will begin Thursday with an 18-hole qualifying round, followed by the first round of match play in the afternoon.

The second and semi-final rounds will take place on Friday, and Saturday will be devoted to the finals, which will be at 36 holes.

EVANS AND SAWYER LOSE.

Beaten by Kirkby and White of New York in Exhibition.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 23.—Although Charles (Chick) Evans, American amateur golf champion, made an amateur record of 70 strokes for the Hamilton Golf Club course today he was beaten with his partner, D. S. Sawyer, former Western titleholder, 3 up and 1 to play, by Oswald Kirkby and Gardiner White of New York, in the first of a series of exhibition matches for the benefit of the Canadian Red Cross.

Other matches will be played this week at Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, and St. Andrews between the Eastern and Western pairs.

DEERING QUITS AS COACH.

Mentor of C. C. N. Y. Nine and Five Will Give Time to Business.

The resignation of Joe Deering, College of the City of New York coach, has been accepted by the athletic authorities of the institution. Deering was mentor of the Lavender basket ball and baseball teams for three years.

It is understood that the former Lavender coach threw up the reins because of pressing attention which he must give his business established in Washington.

POINSETTI RETAINS TITLE.

Retains Press Golf Title by Defeating Gould.

Allan F. Poinsette retained his hold on the press golf championship of New York when he defeated Frank M. Gould, five up, yesterday on the Inwood golf course. By winning, he secured his second leg on the gold championship cup, which is awarded permanently for three consecutive annual victories.

Gould receives a silver medal for runner-up. He was first in the second round last week, when he led by two strokes. Grantland Rice, who probably would have been a strong contender for the title, and who led the first round, was unable to take part further because of a business engagement which took him out of the city.

The scores:

Poinsette	83	85	84	83—[illegible]
Gould	80	85	90	87—[illegible]

YANKEES ON A BATTING FROLIC HAMMER OUT FIVE HOME RUNS AND SMOTHER THE ATHLETICS

FIVE HOME RUNS MADE BY YANKS

Wallop Ball to All Points of Compass and Take Game Easily from Athletics.

PECKINPAUGH BATS WELL

Has Another Good Day and Draws Plaudits—Yanks Get Run for Each Hit—Score, 11 to 4.

The Philadelphia Athletics called at the Polo Grounds yesterday to play a series with the Yankees and ran right into a veritable deluge of home runs which swept everything before it. The new League leaders were feeling sprightly in their lofty position and hit the ball with such reckless abandon that when the cannonading finally ceased they had gathered a very easy victory by the score of 11 to 4.

The Yankees made no fewer than five home runs in the game. While this does not stand as a record, it is at least a rare occurance. It is a lot of home runs for one game, and the Yankees probably wish they could have saved some of them for some other day when they will have dire need of them. But all the circuit blows yesterday were clean hits, with the possible exception of the second one made by Roger Peckinpaugh, which went to the centre field fence in the sixth inning. The relays on this play were rather bad, but as no play was made for Peck at the plate he negotiated the circuit without trouble.

Peck had another big day and was roundly applauded when he first stepped up to the plate, leading the League in batting. Just to show that it was not a mistake that he was up there at the top, Peck crashed out a hit to start the game. Before the contest was over he had made three safe blows, a total of seven for two days, and had increased his lead. He did not come a cropper until the eighth, when he hit into a force play. But by that time all the zest was out of the game and the Yankees were winning, pulled up, as it were.

Eleven Runs and Eleven Hits.

A peculiar feature about the heavy scoring of the Yankees was that they made their eleven runs on exactly as many hits. There was no charge that they wasted hits yesterday. It happened that there were men on the bases when three of the five home runs were made, so that the runs were cashed without much extra effort. The circuit smashes accounted for eight of the tallies, and but for these long drives the Yanks would have had a battle on their hands.

The Philadelphia Athletics, despite the fact that they are trailing the league, are far from a lifeless aggregation. They are hitting the ball hard and playing with a fine spirit. Some day Connie Mack will get some good pitchers and the Athletics will be dangerous.

The Mackmen made eight hits yesterday and enough runs to win many a ball game, but they could not hold the Yankees in check and their efforts were practically wasted.

It is just possible that Bob Shawkey eased up a bit after he had gained such a big lead and did not attempt to shut out the visitors. However, Bob was taking no big chances, for it was his ninth victory and he was not going to let it slip away with the Athletics as his opponents.

Shawkey pitched very carefully at the outset and never did take too many liberties. He also received fine support. An error by Wally Pipp was the only misplay chalked up against the Yanks. On the other hand, Peckinpaugh again fielded brilliantly and the whole team played as if it belonged in first place.

The Yankees entered the contest with a margin of four percentage points in their favor, which is no margin to brag about, and knew they could not be toppled off their lofty eminence by a single defeat. But after the first inning they were not uneasy about the outcome and cared less about what the White Sox and Cleveland were doing in the West.

First Inning Good for Yanks.

The first inning brought the game safely home for the Yankees. Connie Mack started a young right-hander named Rogers. He weathered a hard storm in the initial frame and finally got the side out after Vick, the lead off man for the Yankees, had faced him twice. Having got the side out he was through for the afternoon. Connie Mack sent Thompson, a southpaw formerly with Washington, to the mound in the second inning and permitted him to finish the contest. His troubles came in small but frequent doses, but he got so used to seeing the ball go into the stands for home runs that he didn't mind it.

Fred Thomas crashed a single off Bob Shawkey in the first after one was out, but a double play closed the inning and then the Yankees went to work with their bats.

Vick walked, to start the Yankee's half, and Peck bounced a hit off Thomas's shins at third. Baker attempted to sacrifice, and Rogers made a bad throw to get Vick at third. Vick galloped home on the error. Duffy Lewis then crashed one into the left field bleachers for a home run, scoring Peck and Baker ahead of him. Pipp walked and was forced by Pratt, who advanced on Bodie's out and scored on an error by Burns. Hannah was safe on an error, Shawkey hit safely, and finally Vick came up for the second time and closed the inning with a force play.

The Athletics got two in the second. Walker singled, and after one was out Shannon tripled to left centre, scoring Tillie. Shannon registered a moment later while Dugan was being retired.

Baker lifted the ball into the right field stands in the second, and that was the only run the Yankees made in that inning. In the third Bodie singled after Pratt was out, and Hannah sent him home with a home run into the left field bleachers.

Peck Bangs Ball Lustily.

Peckinpaugh contributed another via the home-run method in the fourth, when he banged the ball into the bleachers. The Mackmen were then permitted to catch their breath until the sixth, when Vick walked with one out and Peck again hit for four bases. This time he sent the ball sailing into centre field and it went to the fence. He might have been halted at third with better work in relaying the ball, but by the time he had turned third the ball was rolling along harmlessly waiting for somebody to field it, and Peck cantered on home. No error was charged, so the hit went for a homer.

The Yanks felt reasonably safe now, and Miller Huggins began filling in with second string men. Fewster went to third and relieved Baker, while Wickland relieved Vick in right field. Bob Shawkey was entitled to a rest, too, but he was allowed to remain and finish the job.

The Mackmen then began to add to their total of runs. In the seventh McAvoy tripled to left centre and seemed in a fair way to get a home run out of it, but Bodie made a good throw to Peck and the latter frightened McAvoy into remaining at third. However, he tallied when Pipp fumbled a roller from Thompson.

In the eighth Bobby Roth tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Burns. The Athletics then called it a day and went out in one-two-three order in the ninth.

CURVES AND BINGLES

Connie Mack claims not to be the least discouraged with the Athletics. Despite the fact that they are a bad last in the race, he says his team is playing better ball than any club he has had since the days of his champions and that their trouble is they make mistakes at critical times. He expects them to improve.

The fans did not overlook the fact that Roger Peckinpaugh had taken the lead in batting. When he came to the plate in the first inning he got a big reception. There is no more popular player at the Polo Grounds these days than Peck. Batting over .300, he is undoubtedly the most valuable shortstop in the game.

Duffy Lewis is beginning to play the kind of ball that was to be expected of him. Always a late starter, he is now getting the range and his average should increase from week to week.

Walter Pipp was the only member of the Yankees who failed to profit by the slugfest yesterday. He did not get a hit all day, though he drew a pass in the first inning.

Wild Bill Donovan, former manager of the Yankees, was a spectator yesterday. He thinks the Yankees have a fine chance to win the pennant this year.

Umpires Bill Evans and Bill Dineen had a quiet day of it, as there was not a decision disputed.

Paddy Livingston, who used to be an agile athlete when he was catching for the Athletics a few years ago, is now acting as coach for the team. You can tell Paddy's catching days are over by the size of his belt.

One of the surprises of the season has been the batting slump of George Burns of the Athletics. He was a terror with the bat last year, but he has fallen away to next to nothing this season. Connie Mack has not been able to explain this change in the player.

Harry Davis is still acting as first lieutenant for Connie Mack and making a good job of it. It is rumored that he will be the next manager of the Mackmen, as the tall leader desires to retire from the active direction of the club.

In the sixth inning there was some noise on the Athletics' bench and Bill Dineen became annoyed. He finally turned and yelled out the first Irish name he could think of. It happened to be Kinney and that young man emerged and was sent along to the club house.

Dugan made a great stop of a drive from Baker in the sixth inning, but spoiled the play and turned it into an error by making a hurried bad throw to first, the ball rolling away to the stands.

Fred Thomas had a good day at bat, making two hits and drawing a pass.

Maurice Shannon, of the Shannon twins, is playing good ball for the Mackmen and Connie Mack is counting on him as a comer.

CICOTTE LETS GAME SLIP FROM GRASP

Weakens in Eighth After Allowing Only One Hit, and Cleveland Wins by 3 to 2 Score.

CHICAGO, June 23.—Eddie Cicotte weakened in the eighth inning after holding Cleveland to one questionable hit, and the visitors bunched four hits and defeated Chicago, 3 to 2, in the first game of the series. A great stop of a difficult grounder by Gardner and a running one-hand catch by Felsch were features.

Oscar Felsch of Chicago today established what is believed to be a world's record for putouts made by a major league outfielder when he caught eleven flies in a regulation nine-inning game. Some of his chances were difficult ones.

HAGEN TO GO ABROAD.

Plans to Meet Vardon, Braid, and Other Experts.

Walter C. Hagen, the new national open golf champion, will not be actively in the professional game another season, and is quite likely to retire from it this season, so far as occupying a club berth is concerned. He has been treated wonderfully at the Oakland Hills Club, Detroit, and has nothing but words of praise for the members and the course, but he feels he cannot afford to pass up the business opportunity which has come his way to become a partner in a Detroit brokerage house.

Next year he is going abroad to play in the British open championship, and he is going about it with a methodical plan which, while it may not land him in the title, at least will give him the satisfaction of feeling that he had left nothing undone that would increase his chances.

Hagen realizes as well as the next man that a man must have his fair share of the breaks in order to win a championship, and that he must play wonderful golf to triumph over a field which includes such men as Harry Vardon, James Braid, J. H. Taylor, Edward Ray, George Duncan, and other British golf luminaries.

PITTSBURGH BEATS CARDS.

Stengel's Home Run in Sixth Accounts for 3 to 2 Victory.

ST. LOUIS, June 23.—St. Louis continued its poor defensive work and Pittsburgh won again today, 3 to 2. Stengel's home run in the sixth, scoring Terry ahead of him, gave the visitors the game.

FEW GREAT PACERS NAMED.

Small but Select Coterie of Side-Wheelers on Circuit.

If the nominations for the early closing events for pacers afford an indication of the number of lateral gaited horses which will be seen on the mile tracks this year, the fields at a few of the meetings will be rather light. Of the top liners Napoleon Direct is slated for a return trip in Geers's stable. The other members of his outfit are Betty Blacklock and Goldie Todd, the latter being considered very promising.

In the event of Napoleon Direct standing the preparation required of a two-minute performer, a renewal of the battles between him and the other free-for-all stars, which include Single G., Miss Harris M., William, Ben Earl, Roan Hal, and Russell Boy, would undoubtedly put the pacers in the spotlight, as the other available material also includes that splendid race horse Directum J., besides Un, Verlie Patchen, Peter Nash, Lillian T., and whatever others may filter down from the class events.

Since the close of last season Murphy has sold Oro Fino, The Problem, and Budlight to parties who will race them over the half-mile tracks, while Zombrino was dropped before the end of the season. At present he has, in addition to Directum J., the Direct Hal pacer Direct C. Burnett, with a mark of 2:07¼; Ethel Chimes, that whisked around the track at Springfield, Ill., in 2:06¾; the Long Island bred mare Esther R., and Banardo. The latter has never heard the bell ring, but as he paced the Syracuse track in 2:02¼ last Fall he is apt to give a good account of himself. Direct C. Burnett was bred by E. T. Bedford at Green Farms, Conn., and made his record at Janesville, Wis. His dam, Alice Mapes, made a pacing record of 2:06¼, while he is also a brother to Hal Mapes, 2:07¼. E. T. Bedford bred Hamburg Belle, 2:01¼, the trotter that made the world's race record, and if all the reports are true this horse may before the close of the season equal or reduce the world's race record for pacers, which is now held by Directum I.

Valentine, as usual, has a bunch of pacers, his collection this year including Un, reported to be in top form; Baronwood; Flora A.; Omonde, with which he won several good races last year; Gladys B., and Gold Quartz. Cox is coming back with the regulars, Little Notice, that formidable cripple; A Game of Chance, which took them all into camp at Cleveland last year; the rejuvenated R. H. Brett; Esther Knight, Florence Peters, and the handsome pony Frank Dewey. The latter made the rounds of the Bay State Circuit last year, and flashed in a heat at Readville in 2:03¼ just to show the Grand Circuit folks what a half-miler could do when cut loose.

Peter Look is rated as the star in McMahon's pacing outfit. He failed to win at Cleveland and Toledo last year, but a different story is expected this season. His stable companions are Symbol Baron and Belle Alcantara. The latter carries the Indian sign. Last year she won ten out of fourteen races, Verlie Patchen, Oro Fino, and Betsey Hamlin being the only horses that finished in front of her.

Belle Alcantara started her turf career with a victory at the Cleveland July meeting, when she paced in 2:07¾. She also won three races at the Columbus meetings, two at Sedalia and Lexington, and one at Hamline and Atlanta. Her record of 2:04¼ was made at Columbus, while she paced in 2:04½ at Lexington. The McMahon pacers were given their final work at Indianapolis, where McDonald prepared Ethel Knight, and Palin drew Verlie Patchen, Captain Mack, Mowrer Boy, Eva Abbe, Crescent Knight, and Admiral to a feather edge before opening the season on the north-Ohio half-mile tracks.

Leese has two pacers to depend on, one being the green horse Seraskih, and the other the clever Northern Man colt Edward P. The South Bend trainer Sturgeon has three, of which South Bend Girl was seen in the fastest company last season. His other pupils are Double G., which was held over after going a few races, and the mare Grace Direct, which won a splendid race at Atlanta last October. The latter also won her first race this season over the half-mile track at Findlay, Ohio, the last week in May, in 2:06¼, with Earl Beck up, her stable mate, South Bend Girl finishing second, and also winning a heat in 2:08¼.

W. Fleming, whose last appearance in the Grand Circuit was behind that sterling performer Joe Patchen II., is this year busy with the Forest Farm horses, which include the pacers Miss Harris M., the De Forest pair, Tommy and Rex, and the recent purchase, Darvester, that is engaged at almost all of the leading meetings.

As Braden Direct has been retired, Fred Egan comes back this year with Baroness Edgewood, Royal Earl, Abbe Dryad, and Bingen Direct, while Fred Edman has Highland Lass, as well as Peter Nash and Al Whitney, the Red Bearer, and the handsome black mare Lillian T.

Fred Ward, one of the California visitors, has four pacers, their names being O. U. C., Peddler Direct, Emma M., and Harry Mac, while Townsend from Fresno will race J. C. L. Roy Owen has come across the Mississippi with the Oregon bred horse Gray Hal by Hal B. and Helen Chimes, while Jay Mack will be raced this year by Ben Whitehead. McDonald and Cox each had him a season and while he had 2:04 speed, they always found a neighbor with a little more. Possibly Ben can place him where he will win.

GREB OUTPOINTS GIBBONS.

Wins Popular Verdict in Fast Ten-Round Bout.

PITTSBURGH, June 23.—Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, was given the newspaper decision over Mike Gibbons of St. Paul in their 10-round bout here tonight at Forbes Field. A record crowd witnessed the bout which was full of action from the starting bell until the finish. Greb won six rounds on points, one was even, and Gibbons took the others.

DEMPSEY PUTS OUT SPARRING PARTNER

Bill Tate Succumbs to Challenger's Blow in Second Round—Willard Takes a Rest.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 23.—The most serious part of Jack Dempsey's training was inaugurated today. His manager, Jack Kearns, has ordered that all visitors be kept away from the clubhouse where Dempsey is making his home. The doors are kept locked until the newspaper men arrive at 3 o'clock each afternoon. Guards are stationed about the building and all automobiles are waved back so that screeching horns may not annoy the challenger.

This new program comes as result of the liberal number of camp followers which has daily grown to such proportions that they have kept the clubhouse alive with their chatter and songs. Even the music boxes in the lounging rooms have been withdrawn to some obscure place.

Over at the Willard camp all was quiet. The champion loafed down town, the first layoff he has had since he arrived here several weeks ago. He took the day off as result of a motion picture in which he is the central figure, being shown at one of the downtown film houses. Willard spent most of his time at this show house as part of the patronage the management expected him to bring. He posed for this film just before coming here and had not seen the finished picture.

Thousands of visitors from points outside came to the camp, and they were fully rewarded with the work done by Dempsey. The challenger put more steam into his work than at any time since he began active boxing last Saturday. He gave big Bill Tate a beating that surprised the Far Rockaway giant. Twice he was floored by left hooks to the chin. The second knockdown put the big fellow into dreamland after they had boxed two minutes of their second round.

The first round Tate and Dempsey worked went five minutes, so as to get Dempsey in good working order. He then took on the Jamaica Kid, and this rugged negro took a more severe lacing than he had experienced thus far in training.

The speed of Jock Malone brought out everything Dempsey had. Malone's defensive work enabled Dempsey to work faster than he did with the other sparring partners.

Jack Kearns declared tonight that he intends keeping Dempsey on a program of fast work this week. He will take on each of his sparring partners each morning in the dining room of the clubhouse away from the curious. Later Dempsey will do some light road work.

The question of a referee was not settled today, as Major Drexel Biddle, Chairman of the Army, Navy, and Civilian Board of Boxing Control, and Gutson Borglum failed to arrive.

Tex Rickard announced that he had received a telegram from Major Biddle stating he and Borglum would arrive Tuesday morning from New York. They were detained in the East going over the list of names for referee submitted to Secretary Empie last Saturday. After the arrival of Major Biddle and Borglum a conference with the principals and their respective managers will be held for the selection of a third man in the ring.

John Reisler got another setback today in his efforts to embarrass Dempsey and the promoters of the bout. Two of Reisler's attorneys called on Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, and asked him if he would make a compromise in the matter of money which Reisler is attempting to collect from Dempsey for alleged breach of contract.

"You fellows get out of here. I wouldn't give you a nickel," Kearns replied. Reisler still contends he will seek redress in the courts.

San Langford, negro heavyweight who met Bill Tate in a bout last Thursday night in Minneapolis, blew into Dempsey's camp this afternoon. He was a witness to the terrific drives Dempsey showered on the big fellow, putting him down for the count. Langford says he will seek another bout with Tate. The latter said he was anxious to meet Langford in some other city than Minneapolis. It is possible the bout will be staged here in the Fall.

Billy Miske, who is to become a member of the Dempsey camp, was ill today, and failed to do any work. He expects to get in condition about Wednesday to give the challenger a hard workout and permit some of the other men to take a few days' rest.

James Guider of New York, who operates a gymnasium in that city for an exclusive set of business men, returned to New York today after declaring that he would lead a delegation of Gotham business men, the wealthiest of that city, in a special train of five cars if arrangements can be made with the United States Railroad Administration. Otherwise they will come on the regular trains to witness the bout.

Tex Rickard announced tonight that the seat sale has reached $400,000, but that the arena, according to plans now completed, would have a seating capacity to accommodate enough spectators to swell the total gate receipts to $1,000,000.

JOHNSON FAT AND SLOW.

Starts Story That Dempsey Has Promised Him Bout.

Special to The New York Times.

MEXICO CITY, June 23.—With rolls of fat on his stomach and otherwise entirely out of condition, John Johnson, former heavyweight champion, wrote the last chapter in his fighting career here this afternoon, when he puffed through an exhibition match with Bob Roper of Chicago.

Although he had trained for two months, he weighed 210 pounds, and repeatedly missed punches because of his poor judgment of distance. After the bout Johnson tld members of the press that Jack Dempsey had promised to visit Mexico City to stage a twenty-five-round match with him. From the former champion's appearance in the ring, critics believe his usefulness as a fighter is limited to six-round exhibitions where 16-ounce gloves were the armament.

LANGE WINS NET MATCH.

Youngster Advances in Manhattan Junior Tennis Tournament.

The Manhattan junior tennis championship, whose winner will become one of the contenders for the national junior title at Forest Hills in August, was begun yesterday on the courts of the New York Tennis Club, at 238th Street and Broadway. Vincent Richards, America's boy champion, who this year graduates into the amateur class, was entered, but let his match go by default, as he is playing in the Delaware State tournament at Wilmington.

Out of a number of good contests in the opening round, the victory of little Jerry Lange over S. Schlesinger stood out, the Yonkers boy taking two successive sets at 6—3, 7—5. Lange is strictly a form player, with a good-looking fore-hand drive and a leisurely, high-bounding service. When things are breaking his way, he is as impressive on the courts as any local youngster of the present generation. In Schlesinger he defeated a steady, hard-working player, who would take a lot of beating even by far more mature and experienced racquet swingers.

The summary:

Manhattan Junior Championship.—First Round—E. Dawson defeated H. Fickiander, 6—0, 6—3; G. Gaywood won from H. Kaltenbach by default; G. Friedberg won from M. Malbin by default; Jerry Lange defeated S. Schlesinger, 6—3, 7—5; H. Jahoff won from G. Landau by default; W. Campbell defeated C. Bailey, 6—1, 7—5; M. Mackwood won from Vincent Richards by default; S. Egelstein won from D. McCallum by default; T. Moore defeated C. Hubbell, 6—3, 6—4; M. Barnhardt won from T. Talmage by default; E. Rodgers defeated C. Lumbard, 5—6, 9—7.

Second Round—S. Egelstein defeated M. Barnhardt, 6—0, 6—0.

HARTMAN SUCCUMBS TO UNKNOWN PLAYER

Bows to R. B. Haines, a Newcomer, at Opening of Middle States Title Tennis Tourney.

The Haines brothers, dark horses in the tennis world, flashed into prominence yesterday afternoon in the opening of the Middle States' championship at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club. The taller of the two, R. B. Haines, practically a newcomer to tournament play, scored a sensational victory over Ingo Hartman in straight sets 6—2, 6—4, starting with the big event a real upset. His brother, Dallas, who is a member of the local club, although suffering defeat, gave R. L. James a terrific battle, taking the second set and always threatening his experienced opponent.

In a well-balanced draw of 74 entries these two matches furnished most of the excitement of the early rounds. All the other favorites came through without difficulty, the most notable winners being F. C. Baggs, Alfred Hammett, who reached the fourth round; Edward Oelsner, the Westerner; G. A. L. Dionne, Leonard Beekman, Harold Throckmorton, Seichiro Kashio and Lindsey Dunham.

The downfall of Hartman, this season's Quaker Ridge champion and a consistently successful tournament player, was accomplished by hard hitting and a steady pounding of the southpaw's back-hand, which yesterday proved unusually vulnerable. The speedy Haines' service also played an important rôle, winning without a single break throughout the match. Hartman had several chances to pull out the second set, but could make no headway against this delivery in the pinches, and Haines fully deserved his spectacular victory.

The Japanese expert, Kashio, who last year challenged and almost defeated Walter Merrill Hall for the Middle States title, showed splendid form yesterday in his decisive defeat of H. B. O'Boyle. The loser put up a strong fight all the way, but could not resist the accuracy and stubborn court-covering of the steady little Oriental, and the sets went at 6—2, 6—3. Lindsey Dunham, a leader among New Jersey's tennis players, was pressed by M. T. Ackerland to win at 6—4, 6—4, but Beekman, Baggs, Hammett, and Oelsner all advanced without difficulty. After disposing of Hammett, Norton, always a dangerous opponent, at 6—1, 6—3, Beekman proceeded to take a third round bracket by the quick elimination of V. H. Cartwell, who had previously won a creditable victory from A. C. Bragaw, the efficient Chairman of the Tournament Committee.

Hammett also was a double victor, neither of his opponents threatening him with more than a deuce set. The other players to reach the fourth round were P. M. Pope, Kashio, Dunham, and O. G. Garve. The last named won the hardest match of the day from Harry Sachs, pulling out the deciding set at 6—4 after dividing the first two, 7—5 and 1—6. Long rallies on the fast turf of William Tucker's newest courts had both men tired after the opening session, but in spite of the streak of brilliancy displayed by Sachs in his one-sided acquisition of the second set, Garve showed the better staying power, and in general a slight superiority of tactics.

Another heart-breaking three-set match was staged by Gwynne French and S. V. Brubans, the former exhibiting far more spectacular tennis, but the latter eventually winning by mere steadiness at 6—0, 2—6, 6—4. French really beat himself in the rubber, missing the easiest of chances at the net, with his stocky little opponent merely returning the ball and waiting for the errors.

Ichiya Kumagae, N. W. Niles, and T. R. Pell, three of the most important entries in the tournament, did not appear yesterday, and are expected to make their débuts this afternoon. The sectional doubles, from which a pair of contenders for the national title will emerge, are also scheduled to begin today.

The summaries:

Middle States Championship.—Singles—First Round—Edward Oelsner defeated Murray Vernon, 6—1, 6—1; Ichiya Kumagae won from Alex. Isler by default; Dr. William Rosenbaum won from D. W. Moorehead by default; Duke Thomas defeated W. H. Pritchard, 6—4, 7—5; W. C. Dunn won from G. S. Groesbeck by default; G. A. L. Dionne defeated A. H. Chapin, Jr., 6—0, 6—1; B. M. Arnold, Jr., won from Dr. G. Stannix by default; V. H. Cartwell defeated A. C. Bragaw, 6—4, 6—4; Leonard Beekman defeated Hammett Norton, 6—1, 6—3; M. H. Soper defeated B. W. Sitterly, 6—2, 6—0.

Second Round—R. B. Haines defeated Ingo Hartman, 6—2, 6—4; F. C. Baggs defeated H. Oakley, 6—3, 6—2; R. L. James defeated D. W. Haines, 6—3, 2—6, 6—2; H. A. Miller won from J. P. Horton by default; Leonard Beekman defeated V. H. Cartwell, 6—2, 6—0.

Third Round.—R. L. James defeated H. A. Waterworth, 6—2, 6—2; P. M. Pope defeated T. T. Cooke, 2—6, 6—2, 6—2; A. D. Hammett defeated R. T. Davis, 6—2, 7—5; O. G. Garve defeated H. Sachs, 7—5, 1—6, 6—4; S. Kashio defeated M. Conant, 6—1, 6—1; L. Dunham defeated C. P. A. Miller, 6—2, 6—1.

DEAN MATHEY IS VICTOR.

Wins First Match in Title Grass Court Tourney.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 23, (Associated Press.)—Play for the world's tennis championship on grass courts began here today. In the first round of the singles Lieutenant Dean Mathey, U. S. A., defeated Simpson, England, 6—3, 6—0, 6—0; A. M. Lovibond of New York, defeated Flavelle, England, 6—1, 6—2, Flavelle retiring, while Captain W. M. Washburn, U. S. A., won from Mellet, former champion of the Natal, 6—1, 6—3, 3—6, 6—1. Washburn played in great form.

U. S. Cannon won from Davis of England, 7—5, 6—4, 6—3. Ashtanter, America, defeated A. W. Dawson, England, 6—1, 1—6, 2—6, 6—2, 6—4, while Lieutenant Louis Graves, U. S. A., overcame Williford, England, 6—4, 6—3, 6—3. Major Robert T. Wrenn was scratched.

Willis Davis will meet P. M. Dawson in the first round of the covered court.

Player Limit Is Increased.

The Western League, at its recent meeting, decided to extend the player limit from fourteen to fifteen, thus revoking one of the measures adopted during the war period. The league, however voted against raising the salary limit at this time.

VOSHELL DEFEATS HALLER.

Reaches Fifth Round in Long Island Net Tourney.

S. Howard Voshell, the new Metropolitan and Bronx County tennis champion, continued his steady progress in the Long Island title tourney at the Kings County Club yesterday, winning the only fourth round match of the afternoon from R. N. Haller in straight sets, 6—1, 6—2. The Brooklyn left-hander was never hard-pressed, using his terrific service and accurate volleying to advantage, and seldom giving his opponent a chance to get set for really aggressive shots.

The veteran H. L. Westfall gave the gallery something of a surprise by his decisive victory over the Long Island youngster, P. L. Kynaston, both sets going at 6—3. H. H. Manchester of the University Heights Club was the only other winner of a third round match, his victory over D. W. Matthews being exceedingly one-sided. Paul Martin of the same club added another easy success to his list, with F. Pawley as a victim.

Frank Fall disposed of Dr. H. L. Morgenthaler in a hard fought three-set match which was practically a toss-up from start to finish. The loser sapped his vitality in putting the opening deuce set to his credit, and although he hung on gamely to the end he lacked the speed and endurance needed for victory, both the tieing and the deciding sets going at 6—4. Fred Anderson, Jr., also had a three-set argument with the unrelated but almost equally skilful J. W. Anderson, winning after a spectacular battle at 4—6, 6—3, 6—4.

The return of Charles Chambers, last year's Brooklyn champion, who has been abroad as a Y. M. C. A. Secretary, was one of the features of the day. A first-round bracket had been saved for the exponent of the choked bat, and he made his re-entry into American tennis with a three-set victory over Dr. R. P. Barber, the latter profiting by the unusual number of errors made by the winner before he struck his stride.

The summary:

LONG ISLAND CHAMPIONSHIP SINGLES.

First Round—Charles Chambers defeated Dr. R. P. Barber, 4—6, 6—1, 6—4; Henry Mollenhauer won from C. C. Magill by default.

Second Round—Fred Anderson, Jr., defeated J. W. Anderson, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4; Frank Fall defeated Dr. Henry J. Morgenthaler, 5—7, 6—4, 6—4; A. V. Duncan defeated A. Cunningham, 8—6, 6—3; H. R. Burroughs defeated J. Ritchey, 6—4, 7—5; G. W. Cocks defeated A. S. Jamison, 7—5, 6—2; Paul Martin defeated F. Pawley, 6—2, 6—0.

Third Round—H. L. Westfall defeated P. L. Kynaston, 6—3, 6—3; H. H. Manchester defeated D. W. Matthews, 6—1, 6—0; W. J. Shannon won from Abraham Bassford, Jr., by default.

Fourth Round—S. Howard Voshell defeated R. N. Haller, 6—1, 6—2.

WILLIAMS DISPLAYS OLD SKILL AT NETS

Defeats S. R. Walls in Opening Match in Delaware Tourney—Tilden Also Victor.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—War worries evidently have left no serious effect on R. Norris Williams, for the former Harvard star and national tennis titleholder, in the opening round for the men's singles championship of Delaware played at Wilmington, today won his match in the second round in straight sets. His opponent in this match was S. R. Walls, who bowed in defeat by 6—0 and 6—1. Williams won his first match from Lamont du Pont by default. Williams displayed his old dashing game. He completely outplayed, outmanoeuvred and out-skilled Walls, who is above the mediocre player. The former champion played as if he knew that critical eyes were focused upon him. That old sweeping style of his was quite evident and his bullet-like shots seemingly bewildered Walls, who experienced all kinds of difficulty in protecting his side of the court.

Williams's showing aroused considerable interest, for in this tourney are such famous racquet wielders as William T. Tilden, Wallace Johnson, Craig Biddle, and Harry C. Johnson. Tilden looms up as a formidable opponent, for he won three matches today, dropping but nine games in the three contests. Tilden's victims were Robert Sell, 6—0 and 6—0; S. Merrihew, 6—3 and 6—2, and George Powell, 6—3 and 6—1. Johnson drew a bye in the first round, then won his second set match from Jack Ford Crane, 6—3 and 6—2, while Craig Biddle also drew a bye, then conquered W. H. Laird, 6—1 and 6—2, and in the third round defeated B. A. Vaneman, 6—1 and 6—1. Harry C. Johnson defeated Charles DeLong, 6—1 and 6—2, and H. R. Miller, 6—1 and 6—0.

Many Entries for Pony Show.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., June 23.—There will probably be more than three hundred entries in the pony show at Meadowbrook on Wednesday. It will be an all-day affair, starting at 10 o'clock in the morning, and is being held to determine a standard type for breeding purposes. Every prominent polo man of the East, and many ladies who also own polo ponies, have entered. All sections of the field are free. There will be no admission charges.

What Do You Use as a Laxative?

NO matter what kind you use, laxatives and purgatives give only minimum relief while doing the maximum of harm.

A better remedy has been originated with USOLINE — the original Russian White Mineral Oil. USOLINE is neither a laxative nor a purgative drug, poison or a food. It is nothing but a lubricant, effectively relieving constipation, with no harmful effect whatsoever.

Leading physicians recommend USOLINE. It is tasteless and pleasant to take, even in summer, if the bottle is kept in a cool place.

Write for our booklet, "Light Upon Long Living."

THE INEVITABLE SURRENDER.

The Germans will sign. They have acquiesced, as it was plain they must acquiesce, in the terms dictated by the twenty-odd nations that one after another were forced to take up arms to defend themselves against German aggression. Truthful for once, they say that they are yielding to force to escape a worse fate; and this is exactly what they are doing. So long as the Germans had the superior force, the world had no chance of getting a peace that would have suited the elementary demands of justice. That such a peace is now written down, that the Germans sign it, we owe to the utilization of force without stint or limit.

But nobody should, probably few will, attach too much importance to the German decision to accept the inevitable. This undignified yielding after repeated vows never, never to yield is only one incident in the long series which began with the French, American, and British offensives of July 18 and Aug. 8 of last year, and came to its culmination in the German submission to armistice terms which took away for the time being Germany's power to do harm. The formal ceremony of signature, which will take place some time this week in the Hall of Mirrors, will be an impressive demonstration of historical justice, an exhibition which can stand in history for all time as a warning to young and ambitious military empires; but it, too, will be only an incident in the series which began nearly a year ago, and which will not end for many years to come. The peace has been accepted; it will soon be signed; it remains to be enforced.

Much that is characteristic of the German mind may be found in the final efforts to obtain further mitigation of the terms. These terms, the Germans have repeatedly asserted, are unendurable, literally impossible of fulfillment. Germany now undertakes, under duress, to fulfill them. Is it a change of opinion as to the possibility of compliance, or does Germany hope that the Allies may ascribe too much merit to the mere German signature to a document? The Germans insisted that they would not acknowledge their guilt for the war; it is in the document which their envoys are about to sign—under duress, to be sure. But they knew they would have to sign it. Did their tumult and shoutings up to the very last moment serve the purpose of calling their protestations of innocence to the attention of History, or will History merely note that once again the Germans are obstinately denying what all the world knows to be true? In a recent note the German Government solemnly "declines all responsibility as regards "the consequences which may be "threatened against Germany when, "as is bound to happen, the impossibility of carrying out the conditions" becomes apparent; and by way of specific declaration it declines responsibility for "any difficulty "which may result from the resistance of the inhabitants in the districts to be cut off in the East "against their separation from Germany."

If any but Germans had written those lines, we should take it as an outright declaration that they did not intend to abide by the treaty; and that in particular they would continue to make trouble for Poland. But the Germans are a strange race; this may be merely their tactful way of calling attention to what they regard as their wrongs. In the same way we might regard the solicitude expressed in the notes for the Kaiser and other war offenders. The Germans have driven the Kaiser out into the wilderness with the burden of their sins upon him; the German people, we have been assured, abhorred the war from the outset and would have none of it; if any Germans were guilty in a war forced upon them by their envious neighbors, it must have been the Kaiser and his officials. So many German dignitaries have in the past few months called our attention to the distinction between the old German Government and the German people that one is surprised at finding the people's representatives coming sturdily to the defense of the man whom they condemned. No doubt the Germans see some reason for it, but to the rest of the world it will merely suggest that a people which went forth joyfully to what appeared to be a short and easy war of conquest still cherishes a tenderness for the man who was going to lead it into the promised land.

The incident at Scapa Flow, followed by similar sinkings of German warships at Kiel, comes conveniently to remind us of the difficulties we are likely to have in the enforcement of just reparations and the finding of just guarantees for the future. The Germans are delighted by the sinking of the ships; the Berliner Tageblatt alone regrets it, since the Allies may add the value of the lost ships to the indemnity, and thinks that this may be too much to pay for "a fine gesture." That is it exactly. To a German, the destruction of property to be surrendered in partial reparation, destruction accomplished by taking advantage of the confidence or the laxity of an enemy, is a fine gesture. Unless we want to have intensive sabotage applied to the treaty terms, the allied military commands and Reparations Commission will have to be more alert than were the British naval authorities at Scapa Flow. We have beaten the Germans; they have now promised to pay. But they are the same Germans; the moral reformation which so many of us hoped for two years ago seems no nearer than ever. Until it comes, it is for the Governments and peoples of the allied nations to see that Germany does not evade the demands of justice which she now promises to meet.

PROHIBITION OR WAR.

WILLIAM H. ANDERSON, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, told a church congregation in this city on Sunday that, when President WILSON makes his tour in support of the League of Nations, he will realize that he would hardly strengthen that cause by an order terminating the demobilization period and thus putting an end to the wartime prohibition order. This sounds greatly like a threat to the President of the United States that the strength of the Anti-Saloon League will be turned against the League of Nations unless he bows to its will.

In the case of another speaker we should seek for a different interpretation than this obvious one. The public has had so much opportunity to view the workings of his mind that it may understand him as ready to jeopardize the peace of the world in revenge for a halt of six months in the prohibition program. Prohibition is to be with us in January next, and forever, except in the improbable event of its being subsequently amended out of the Constitution. If the President were to declare the army demobilized, we should have to wait until then for prohibition; otherwise we shall get it six months sooner. If Mr. ANDERSON does not get that additional six months, would he punish the President by opening the way to future wars? If that is not what he means, then for once in his life Mr. ANDERSON has been uttering nothings, and for once in his life he has failed to speak clearly.

THE RESERVE SITUATION REDRESSED.

There was a surprise when it was reported a week ago that there was a deficit of bank reserves of something less than a million. But scant attention is paid to the fact that the next statement, last Saturday's, reported a surplus of $31,000,000 and a decrease in loans of $205,000,000. There could be wished no better indication that the deficit was due to the Government tax collections and cash disbursements, emphasized by the remnants of the old Sub-Treasury practice, an anachronism of our reformed banking system. The ease with which the situation was redressed is worth notice. Under the Federal Reserve system a deficit of reserves is no longer a deficit of cash reserves, with calling of customers' loans as a means of reducing requirement of reserves and thus restoring the required percentage. A deficit of reserves now is merely a matter of the member bank's reserve account with the Federal Reserve, and the deficit can be made good on demand by rediscount of available assets. The option to call loans remains, of course, as long as a call-loan system exists.

That is another survival which should disappear at early convenience. Its survival obstructs the development of the superior acceptance system, and emphasizes the importance of the call-loan market unduly. Credit is a right only to commerce. Credit to speculators to an excess in the banker's opinion is a favor of doubtful value, even to the speculator. Bankers have a right to their opinion of the market as well as speculators, but bankers besides are trustees of their depositors' funds and guardians of the public interest. The outcry over bankers' reduction of speculative credits is meretricious, and should be reserved until accommodation is denied to productive credit. It is anomalous that call money should be cheaper than commercial money, and when call money goes above what speculators like to pay it is a good sign, not a bad one.

When that occurs by the force of good banking opinion there is no occasion for criticism; there is a demonstration that good banking practice is more protective than even good law. It is better to keep the credit which is needed for unprecedented commerce out of Wall Street than to shake it out by shaking down security prices, even if they are outrunning a promising situation. Stability is better than a traders' market, just as bankers' opinion is better than speculators' opinion.

MR. ROOT'S PROPOSAL.

It is easier to stamp on a League of Nations than it is to make one. To the end that Mr. ELIHU ROOT may have a realizing sense of the danger he incurs in making affirmative proposals for greater security for the peace of the world, let us put to the test this suggestion, made in his letter to Mr. LODGE:

> If it is necessary for the security of Western Europe that we should agree to go to the support of, say, France, if attacked, let us agree to that particular thing plainly, so that every man and woman in the country will understand the honorable obligation we are assuming. I am in favor of that. But let us not wrap up such purpose in a vague universal obligation, under the impression that it really does not mean anything likely to happen.

It is strange that Senator BORAH and Senator JOHNSON have not already raised the cry of alarm over this proposed agreement, so clearly in derogation of our sovereignty, of our Constitution, and of the rights of Congress. Mr. ROOT would have us pledge the support of our army, of our navy, and of our resources to France "if attacked." How can we do that? Congress alone can declare war, yet by this agreement we should strip Congress of that sole and undivided authority. We should enter into a general agreement to make war and Congress could fail to declare war only by violating that covenant.

Supposing France becomes a Soviet republic, in the manner of Russia. It is a menace to the peace of Europe, and for their protection Great Britain, Italy, Spain, and Belgium declare war and send their forces across the French frontier. Thus France would be attacked, and under Mr. ROOT's agreement we should be bound to go to her support. His misgivings concerning Article X. carry him to the extreme of doubt whether the people of the United States would be willing "ten years or twenty "years hence to send their young "men to distant parts of the world "to fight for causes in which they "have little or no interest." But his agreement would bind them to fight for a Soviet government in which, we venture to predict, they would feel no interest at all.

We submit that this reasoning, which is utterly subversive of reason, worthless, fallacious, delusive, and repugnant to common sense, is every whit as sound, valid, and convincing as most of the arguments advanced against the League of Nations at such intolerable length by Senator BORAH, Senator JOHNSON, Senator LODGE, and Senator KNOX. The opponents of the League should confine themselves to destructive criticism. There alone they are on safe ground. Mr. ROOT is not an opponent of the League, he admits that a properly constituted League would be of great value. But when he suggested that we really put ourselves out to secure the inestimable blessings of peace, he exposed himself to precisely the sort of attack that has been directed against the League covenant prepared at Paris.

EXTENDING THE AIR MAIL SERVICE.

No one reading the statement of OTTO PRAEGER, Second Assistant Postmaster General, about the development of the air mail service can doubt that the railway train as a carrier of postal matter on main routes will soon be regarded as too slow, though it be a limited express and bear that now inappropriate name, the "Flier." It is, indeed, probable that the railway mail transportation will be discarded on all routes, even the shortest, within five years, little planes of the British "Bantam" type being used on spurs like that to New Canaan from the New York & New Haven line. Rural free delivery has graduated into the automobile class, but on long "hauls" it may be served by airplanes, with the light car as an auxiliary.

When the air mail service between New York and Washington was proposed there were objections that the trip could not be made in strong winds, or in wet, foggy, or snowy weather, and that the expense of operation would be too great. A fantastic experiment, said some. Men of vision, who are sometimes the wisest men, argued that the service would seldom be interrupted and would pay. At the end of a year it had been demonstrated that there need be no interruption of flying on account of the weather, and returns showed that the New York and Washington service was making money. Mr. PRAEGER gives the figures: Receipts, $159,700, to which must be added a saving of $2,264 in railway transportation, or $161,964; cost of operation, $142,861, with loss of one plane, $4,961, included; surplus, $19,103. A distance of 152,000 miles was traveled and 193,021 pounds of mail were carried. It is true that the Winter was abnormally clear and mild, but on the Cleveland-Chicago air mail route a gale that kept the shipping tied up at Chicago did not stop the mail plane from Cleveland; it arrived on time and made a "perfect landing" in Grant Park. There were some days when fog interfered with land and water traffic, but the mail plane got through with a competent navigator at the wheel. It is not to be supposed that the courier of the air would be able to defy a blizzard, nor is the railway mail train able to do it.

With the success of transportation through the air assured, the Post Office Department is planning for the future. As soon as Congress makes adequate appropriations the service will be extended to the Pacific and Gulf coasts. The day may not be far off when a letter mailed at San Francisco at 8 o'clock in the morning will be delivered in New York at 2 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the next day, because a speed exceeding 100 miles an hour is already attainable, and it will be possible for three or four pilots to take turns at the "helm." In the Fall it will be practicable to link Omaha and St. Louis with Chicago, Cleveland, and New York, with the result of saving at least twenty-four hours for the Pacific-Atlantic mail service, letters and packages being transferred from fast trains at Omaha to airplanes.

During the Pan-American aeronautical convention at Atlantic City boxes of eggs were dropped by parachutes from airplanes, reaching the earth without accident. The exhibition has suggested that postal matter could be delivered in the same way, but the scientific mind will not be satisfied with the dropping of mail by parachute; it must be taken from a platform and deposited there as the plane flies by. If the trick can be done by an express train, why not by a ship of the air? The department is considering devices, and the American inventor will find a way.

The problems of aviation are being rapidly solved. New enterprises are reported every day. One company has established a passenger service between towns in Texas—Gainesville, Waco, Austin, and San Antonio—and Ardmore, Okla., and is planning to extend it to Kansas City and Denver. Nothing will be more common in the sky than the airplane in a few years, and special delivery letters coming through the air from distant places, the other side of the continent, Cuba and Mexico, will cost but a trifle for transportation.

THE RAND SCHOOL.

For many years the Rand School of Social Science, raided the other day by the Lusk committee, has been sowing the seeds which are springing up about us now in horrid harvest. It has taught hatred and class discrimination, and under our too tolerant laws has been permitted to go on without interference. It was formed for the purpose of influencing the minds of the young, and that is where it has done its most pestilent work; but it has not neglected their elders, for whose perversion it has conducted lectures and sent out books and pamphlets.

Now comes the time when the pupils of the Rand School, having the opportunity, are furnishing the fruits of their teaching. They are doing their best to reap the harvest of hate. Having been taught that the country is divided into classes, consisting of oppressors and oppressed, they seek to overturn the oppressors and give the reins of power to the oppressed.

How far the teaching of the Rand School may be responsible for the utterances of still more violent agitators, who advocate a revolution with bloodshed, there is no means of knowing. But impress a young mind with the gospel of hate, and it will improve on your teaching. The Rand teachers have been careful to keep from advocating violence in so many words, but violence is the certain result of such education.

In referring to documents seized in recent raids, Deputy Attorney General CONKLIN says that the papers "are so carefully and cleverly phrased" that no single sentence can be picked out as in violation of the law. "Yet," he adds, "taken as a whole, the documents are seditious, in my opinion." They are now a matter of record, and await the disposition of the District Attorney of this county. It has been the policy of the socialistic and anarchistic leaders to study the law carefully, learn what is technically criminal, and use such language as to convey their meaning without a technical violation. ALEXANDER BERKMAN was an adept at this sort of work, and so was EMMA GOLDMAN. Both of them defied the authorities to find anything criminal in any of their writings and speeches; yet at last they overstepped the line by coming in contact with a new law which they did not fully understand, and went to prison.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Defense Fails Completely. In defending the installation of the Safety Institute of America in Central Park, its President, ARTHUR WILLIAMS, attempts to refute the charge of commercialism by denying that the institute itself ever sells, or has any interest in the sale of, the various inventions and devices of which its exhibits consists. The denial is truthful, of course, but it does not in the slightest degree meet the contention of THE TIMES and of all the other real friends of Central Park that the home of this commendable institution—this indubitably "worthy object"—should be somewhere else.

And the denial, though truthful, is not quite ingenuous, for what the institute refrains from doing the exhibitors certainly do, just as do those at all sorts of expositions and fairs, including those big enough to have the word "world's" in their name. There is nothing essentially wrong in this form of commercialism, and it has been mentioned in connection with the use of the old Arsenal by the Safety Institute merely that attention might be called to the fact that the enterprise is not wholly unrelated to "business." That makes an added reason for keeping it out of the Park, but it is not the only one, or even the most important.

If the institute were merely a museum, as it is not, it still should be excluded from the Park as incompatible with park proprieties, and Mr. WILLIAMS did not help his case at all by instancing the Metropolitan Museum of Art, for that, too, is out of place where it is. Its removal now is impracticable, unfortunately, but that one great mistake was made by the city long ago is no excuse for making others of the same sort. That mistake was not repeated when permanent quarters for the Natural History Museum were provided, and in these more enlightened days the Art Museum, if it were just starting, would be put elsewhere.

Only Proves Neglect of Duty. Another argument by President WILLIAMS in favor of letting the Safety Institute establish itself in the Arsenal is that the building stood on the land it now occupies before there was any Central Park—that this land never has been used for any purpose except that of supporting the building, and that therefore the institute, when in it, takes no space away from the Park.

When the tract now Central Park was bought by the city there were on it many buildings of one sort and another, but they were destroyed or removed, and the Arsenal should have gone with them. That it did not was another mistake. And Mr. WILLIAMS shows himself strangely misinformed when he says that no "serious" demands for the removal of the Arsenal have ever been made. As a matter of fact, demands deserving to be called serious have been made again and again, all through the years of the Park's existence, but they were not made by the sort of people whose requests are most likely to be granted by our municipal authorities.

That is why the Arsenal still stands, not because of its architectural merits—of which it has none—or because of its historical associations—which are largely imaginary.

Protesting Without an Excuse. People whose orations always begin, "I have no sympathy with Bolshevism, but——" excite no surprise when they denounce the Board of Education for trying to find out what the children in the public schools have been told about the Bolsheviki, and by whom. People of that sort either deceive themselves or are trying to deceive others, and the difference between them and the out-and-out followers of LENIN is chiefly a matter of courage.

The delegates to the convention of the American Federation of Labor are in quite another class from those who are "not Bolsheviki, but——" They, or at any rate the great majority of them—the majority that make decisions, adopt resolutions, and issue proclamations—really are not Bolsheviki, as the convention proceedings have clearly shown, and yet they have joined in the chorus of dispraise by which the board has been assailed ever since its so-called inquisition.

Their attitude is a puzzling one. In almost every other section of their long pronouncement on education the sentiments expressed are sound, and if a few of the statements made in these other sections are disputable, that is no more than is true of most, perhaps all, documents of the same kind. Only when the question of the school children is discussed do the delegates go astray, for then they repeat the arguments of the protesting teachers—of the teachers whose resentment is excited when there seems to be a chance of the public's knowing what they think about Bolshevism and what they have been telling their pupils about it. Yet if they have not been teaching the Leninite doctrines they are not in the slightest danger even of criticism, and if they have been teaching the opposite doctrines—those advocated by the American Federation of Labor when it dealt with its own radicals—they are sure to be commended for duty done honestly and well.

Republic, or Still Empire? A mysterious peculiarity of the formal documents coming from Weimar is the frequent use in them of the word "imperial." That word, repeated by the spokesmen of what is supposed and asserted to be a republic, gives the non-German reader something of a shock every time it appears.

Perhaps the seeming inconsistency is merely a matter of translation, but if so the new Germany would be wise to have the mistake corrected, for the oftener it is made the more suspicion will there be that they haven't changed as much as they pretend and are still the inhabitants of an "empire."

Whatever they would like to be, they are not that. Whether they are republicans or not is another question. They say they are, and the world is waiting—not too patiently—to see if the statements to that effect are true or just talk for a purpose.

Franking Privilege.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In my mail today I found a printed circular letter from Albert M. Todd, President "Public Ownership League of America," asking support of that organization in its labor of compelling the Government to continue control of the railroads for another five years. The printed circular letter says in part:

"In a separate envelope, franked by Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, I send you a pamphlet of forty-four pages containing highly valuable," &c.

The "highly valuable" pamphlet is a statement of Mr. Todd's testimony before the Committee on Interstate Commerce, United States Senate. As the "League" is a private undertaking or association, may I ask by what authority Mr. Todd's statement is given a "franking privilege," during these times at least, when the fully paid postage on letters of the country's citizens does not get us accurate or speedy delivery of our letters?

The printed letterhead of the "League" informs us that Amos Pinchot is one of the Executive Committee and among the Vice Presidents are Frederic C. Howe, the Immigration Commissioner; Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, Mo., and Edward F. Dunne of Chicago.

INQUISITIVE.

New York, June 22, 1919.

AMERICA AND IRELAND.

Effect on Anglo-American Relations of the Senate Resolution.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There are one or two points in connection with recent developments of the Irish question, the weight of which, great as it is, is apparently not fully realized in the United States, solely, I believe, because they have not been brought to the notice of the American public. If they had no effect outside the United States there would be little reason for any one devoted to Anglo-American friendship to worry, but there is at least one development of the question abroad which has in it distinct elements of danger as far as relations between the two countries are concerned.

The fact is, and this I say from personal knowledge, that American correspondents of British papers are having considerable difficulty in persuading their readers that the recent Senate resolution, for instance, requesting the President to intercede on behalf of Ireland is not more than an episode in American domestic party politics. English people are about as ignorant of the part played by the Irish question in America as Americans are of the relations between England and Ireland. Consequently, it is very difficult for them in the light of recent events to escape the conclusion that America is trying to make Ireland an international question. They certainly do not realize a fact which my American friends are continually impressing on me, namely, that Americans don't care two straws about the Irish question beyond wishing that it could be settled so as to remove the nuisance of Irish activity in American party politics, nor did it ever occur to them that the Senate resolution was an Irish club waved over the head of the President following the waving of a similar weapon over the heads of the Senate.

I state these facts simply for the information of Americans who have at heart the union of the great English-speaking peoples, so that, if they care more for that ideal than they do for Irish independence, they can take steps to curb the activity of those who do not hesitate to put sand in the wheels of Anglo-American relations to further their own political schemes at home.

There is one other point on which I would like to write very briefly, and that relates to the extensive propaganda now being carried on by the "Friends of Irish Freedom" here. If it were not for the assurance of my American friends which I mentioned above, there would be considerable temptation to take up very seriously the question of the allegations of atrocities leveled by the Irish propagandists against England. As it is I am told that there is no need to worry, but since it is a true word that if sufficient mud be thrown some will stick, let me, as an ordinary Englishman, and not as a political partisan, say just this, that at the present moment the vast majority of Englishmen do not care what way the Irish question is settled so long as the settlement brings peace to Ireland. And let me further add this, that the life of any British Government which authorized treatment of Ireland such as the Friends of Ireland allege has been meted out to her would not be worth a day's purchase at the hands of the British public.

FRANK HILLIER.

New York, June 21, 1919.

Dr. Williams Back in Russia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I, for one, am glad to see Harold Williams again in your columns, writing from Russia, which he knows so well. I am deeply indebted to him for what I know of the internal workings of that great and mysterious country.

May I call attention to a slip of the pen on his part. He writes: "The gallant Kuban Cossacks of General Shkuro, the Stewart of Kuban," &c. If he means our General Jeb Stuart, his memory failed him in spelling the name.

To those of us who admire the British for their heroic work on sea and land in the late war, and who have had to listen to so much ignorant and deprecatory talk about them, his description of the unadvertised and generous aid given to the Russians, struggling to recover something for their country from the Bolshevist wreck, is refreshing.

To this should be added the account, by a correspondent in yesterday's Post, of the willing and liberal aid rendered our own American workers in the Balkans and the Far East.

We Americans, who are so fond of trumpeting our part in the war that we have almost persuaded ourselves, if not others, that we alone won it, could not do better than read these two papers. We would learn that there were others in the war, and that our altruism did not exhaust the world's supply.

Wordsworth's Flying Boats.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With the Vickers-Vimy thrilling flight across the Atlantic still fresh in mind, and after reading Captain Alcock's message from Galway to The Daily Mail which closes with the following remarks: "Our flight has shown that the Atlantic flight is practicable, but I think it should be done, not with an airplane or seaplane, but with flying boat," the poem of William Wordsworth's called "Peter Bell" seems quite up to date. The prologue, written in 1798, begins:

> There's something in a flying horse,
> There's something in a huge balloon;
> But through the clouds I'll never float
> Until I have a little Boat
> Shaped like the crescent moon.

And there is this verse for Commander Read of the NC-4:

> Up goes my Boat among the stars,
> Through many a breathless field of light,
> Through many a long blue field of ether,
> Leaving ten thousand stars beneath her:
> Up goes my little Boat so bright.

A Fiume Correction.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the appeal which appeared in your Sunday edition on behalf of Serbia, may I please mention that the statement that 68 per cent. of the population in Fiume were Italians is not correct and the statement was not made by me. I shall esteem it a great favor if you will kindly correct this error, otherwise it may injure the cause of humanity that I am representing.

GERMANIA VICTRIX.

> Now will you call us cowards—brand us treacherous, and jeer,
> Just because we chose to let you have our ships?
> Did you think that we were conquered when we met you in the Forth,
> And greeted you with lies upon our lips?
>
> You could not see our purpose then—you thought that we were crushed,
> And glad to save our lives at any cost!
> You stupidly believed that we were doing what you wished—
> That all our hopes of victory were lost!
>
> You fools! The fleet no longer ours you placed within our care,
> And left us free to work our own brave will.
> You did just what we thought you'd do, you hateful English dogs—
> You trusted us our promise to fulfill!
>
> And now you've paid the penalty—your fleet is sunk and gone,
> Destroyed by an indomitable foe.
> We opened all the seacocks, and we flew the conqueror's flag,
> And we beat you in the fight of Scapa Flow.

STRIFE IN NORTHERN EPIRUS.

Greek Protest Against "Denationalizing" Methods of Italian Army of Occupation.

By N. J. CASSAVETES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES recently appeared an interview with Brig. Gen. Scriven on which, as a native of Epirus, or as he terms it, Southern Albania, I ask to be permitted to make a few remarks.

It is true that Italy has built good roads in Valona and in Northern Epirus. To an American General who knows little of the struggle between the Italian forces of occupation and the natives, the good roads, naturally, have made a lasting impression.

But is General Scriven well informed when he makes the statement, "The Italian troops, without violence, and, indeed, at the request of the inhabitants themselves, occupied the interior towns or the ruins, as some of them then were, of Tepeleni, Argiro-Castro, Premeti, Liaskoviki, Santa-Quaranta, and Porto-Palermo"?

Let us review briefly the history of the Italian occupation of these districts. In 1915, when the Treaty of London was concluded, Italy was given Valona, but was enjoined not to extend her occupation of lands which, by the Protocol of Corfu, were defined as constituting Northern Epirus. This Northern Epirus, in 1915, was under Greek mandate. Greece was governing it by order of the Allies, (England, France, Russia, and Italy.)

When, therefore, General Bandini landed troops and occupied Northern Epirus, he violated the Treaty of London, which explicitly forbade Italy to occupy Northern Epirus; he violated the Protocol of Corfu, which made Northern Epirus autonomous; and violated the agreement of the Allies, according to which Greece was appointed their mandatary in Northern Epirus. The landing of Italian troops in that district was done without the assent of the other Allies. It was a repetition of the coup d'état of a few days ago, in the landing of Italian troops at Budrum and Makri.

Now, let us see how the Northern Epirotes have looked upon the Italian military occupation.

General Bandini proclaimed to the Northern Epirotes that military necessities had made it imperative for Italy to occupy the autonomous province, and that, as soon as those military necessities disappeared, the Italian troops would withdraw. He guaranteed complete liberty of religion, education, and commercial institutions.

In spite of these promises, however, almost immediately, compulsory Albanization manifested itself in every department where national life is created and formed. Italian occupation assumed the form of persecution of Greek nationalism. It first attacked the Greek schools, which were native institutions, reared and supported solely by the native Christian Northern Epirotes. It drove out of the country the Greek clergy, and imposed upon the recalcitrant inhabitants Italian and Albanian masters, whose educational program was directed against every Greek idea. Thus 239 Greek schools, which gave instruction to nearly 12,500 Greek boys and girls, have been closed down since June 3, 1917.

One hundred and thirty-five of the leading inhabitants of towns and villages have, since the beginning of the occupation, been sent to Italy as hostages, owing to the influence which they are supposed to exercise and their attachment to the Hellenic idea. The district of Chimarra has supplied the largest contingent of these.

The gendarmery is recruited especially and almost exclusively among the Mohammedans. The command of the detachments was intrusted to leaders of Albanian bands who were previously known for their persecution of Christians and who ground down the Greek peasants without mercy and committed crimes and outrages without name. There is a long list of Christians who have been victims of the extortions, beatings, and massacres committed by the Albanian corps armed and regularly incorporated by the Italians. When it was a question of sending these fine Albanian troops to the front, however, the masses of deserters formed themselves into bands of brigands who, a fresh scourge to the Christian population, devastated the country.

This country has frequently been troubled, but it is asserted that never before have the people had to deplore such a harvest of crimes and brigandage and never has there been such serious insecurity to the Christian element. The desire to emigrate has been acceded to and encouraged by the Italian authorities whenever they felt that the interests of their policy called for a decrease in the Christian element, no exception being made even in the case of the classes subject to military service. They have forbidden, on the other hand, in the strictest possible manner, all relations between the occupied territory and the rest of Epirus and Corfu. Even commercial relations have been regulated in a manner designed to favor certain individuals, while the principal Greek traders have been expelled.

It is impossible to accuse the Greek inhabitants of Epirus of cowardice or of pro-Germanism. They applied for permission to form two divisions to fight in Macedonia, but met with a categoric refusal from the Italian military authorities. They served, however, by thousands in the Greek Army, having claimed, before the Italian occupation, the honor of fighting for a cause which they believed must bring them freedom and union with Greece.

Now, the fact that Italy has built good roads in Northern Epirus for military purposes no more entitles her to the possession of any portion of that province, or even of Albania, than the most excellent works of the British and French in Saloniki and in the Island of Imbros entitle them to the permanent occupation of these.

The British and French have been in Macedonia for years now. They have made that country prosperous. But they have never applied methods of denationalization such as Italy has applied in Northern Epirus, in Albania, and in the Islands of the Aegean.

Unfortunately, Italy has tried to intimidate the inhabitants into Italianism. She has not, as the French or the British, tried to win the love and the allegiance of the natives. Now it is too late for a change. Greeks and Albanians may have mutual differences, but they are agreed upon their united dislike of Italian rule.

BLACKWELL'S ISLAND DOGS.

Deportation to Manhattan Brings a Protest.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES of this morning has an almost incredible account of the action of our city authorities in "ridding Blackwell's Island of its 400 to 500 dogs, many pets of the almshouse inmates and laborers there." According to this account, the dogs are being loaded, five or six a trip, on the ferry-boat plying between the island and the foot of East Seventieth Street, where the dogs are simply turned loose—to die of starvation, after the manner of deserted city cats, I suppose, or to go mad with suffering and prey upon our east side children, who by thousands throng our streets these warm days.

The picture called up in any imaginative mind by the four or five hundred little human tragedies involved in this sudden wholesale separation of the unfortunates of the island from their equally unfortunate pets may be passed over lightly—though it will keep some of us awake nights, whose windows look over to that not too happy island. But pass that; it is possible to suppose that reasons of health and sanitation make such a stern deprivation necessary, even in the cases of beings whose every sentiment of tenderness should be fostered and cherished. But nothing, absolutely nothing, can be said to lessen the shame and atrocity of abandoning to chance—the cruel chance of cities—the fate of the miserable animals so brutally uprooted and deprived, for no fault of their own, to say nothing of sacrificing the equally innocent children of New York—or even a harmless grownup or two—to the danger of hungry and maddened creatures running loose in the Summer heats. Some years ago the Turks—the "unspeakable" Turks—deported to an island their dogs, and the echoes of the cries of the dying beasts have not yet ceased to ring in the world's ears, or to fix upon the Turk the brand of an inhumanity which prepared us for all the others. Before we become a mandatary for Turkey, suppose we cleanse our own hands of Turkish practices!

There should be some machinery existing by means of which the instigators of this crime against our city's good name can be prosecuted, and it should be done, for the same reason that the Allies are about to prosecute the Kaiser. Immunity, in offenses against the public morality and conscience, is encouragement to the next set of officials with similar happy thoughts, directed perhaps toward "higher" animals next time.

It is about time, in any case, that we began to turn our attention to Blackwell's and other islands; we know too little about what really goes on there, and the occasional candle-rays of lights we do get, as in this instance, are too often far from reassuring. Those who stand for an inhuman policy toward our lesser brothers will not hesitate to stand for inhuman policies elsewhere.

The women of New York have not upon their heads the heavy responsibility for this city administration, but that cannot excuse them from ignoring its consequences. The children and the dogs are facts—so are the Turks.

Suppose New York accepts a mandatary for Blackwell's Island, to begin with.

HOME FOR COLORED GIRLS.

A Committee of Well-Known New Yorkers Seeks $15,000.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The committee named below, in response to a very urgent and apparent need, has undertaken to establish a home for friendless and wayward colored girls such as Waverly House and Florence Crittenton House for white girls. The committee will have complete charge of the house and will oversee all expenditures. Harry P. Robbins of 52 Vanderbilt Avenue will act as Treasurer.

There is practically no place in New York outside of a workhouse or jail where a friendless or wayward colored girl over the age of sixteen can be cared for. Judges of courts and officers of police stations are constantly at a loss to know what to do with colored girls before them who should not be locked up with criminals, but, on the other hand, should not be turned out on the streets with no one to care for them. A small and inadequately run house maintained for the last few years is now entirely without funds to continue the work. Yet New York has the largest negro population of any city in the world, the Borough of Manhattan alone having a negro population of 175,000.

The home will be a place of temporary abode where colored girls can be cared for under conditions favorable to mental and moral improvement. In many cases it will be necessary to keep the girl only a few days until she can be restored to her relatives or friends or some other permanent provision made for her.

The sum of $15,000 is needed to establish a proper home and carry on the work for a period of one year, and the sum of $8,000 will be needed for each succeeding year. This yearly budget will include the salary of a trained court worker.

The committee consists of Dr. Katharine Bement Davis, Bureau of Social Hygiene; Mrs. Etnah Boutte, Circle for Negro War Relief; Miss Eva D. Bowles, Secretary Colored Work Y. W. C. A.; the Hon. Victor J. Dowling, William Dean Embree, Voluntary Defenders' Committee; Mrs. Haley Fiske, Church Mission of Help; Fred R. Moore, The New York Age; Miss Helen Alling Davis, National Board Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Daniel F. Murphy, Florence Crittenton League; the Hon. Morgan J. O'Brien, Mrs. Henry Ollesheimer, National League of Women Workers; Harry P. Robbins, Treasurer; Mrs. George W. Seligman, Sojourner Truth House; Miss Alice C. Smith, Probation Officer Women's Court; Miss Elizabeth Walton, National League on Urban Conditions Among Negroes; and is approved by the Right Rev. Patrick J. Hayes, Archbishop of New York; the Right Rev. David H. Greer, Bishop of New York; the Rev. William T. Manning, D. D., rector of Trinity Church; Otto A. Rosalsky, Judge Court of General Sessions; Frederic Kernochan, Chief Justice Court of Special Sessions; William McAdoo, Chief City Magistrate; Alexander Brough, City Magistrate.

The committee appreciates that our citizens have been asked to give to all the various "drives" and war campaigns, and that the welfare of the negro is not a popular subject; but can we who pride ourselves upon our patriotism and our high ideals of humanity let conditions remain as they are for our poor, unfortunate negro sister?

GEN. S. E. TILLMAN'S DAUGHTER MARRIES

The Bride of John F. Martin, Jr., Second Secretary of American Embassy in London.

WEDS CAPT. J. H. HUESTIS

The marriage of Miss Katharine Delaplaine Tillman, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Samuel E. Tillman, and John F. Martin, Jr., Second Secretary to the American Embassy in London, was quietly celebrated yesterday morning in the chapel of the Holy Trinity Church. Only members of the immediate families witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. James O. Chalmers, who officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents.

Mr. Martin has been in this country on a short leave of absence, and at noon yesterday, following the wedding, he sailed for England on the Plattsburg. Mrs. Martin will sail shortly to join her husband in London.

The engagement of the couple was announced early this month. The bride's father is former Superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point. Mr. Martin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Martin of Jacksonville, Fla., and a nephew of Henry F. Fletcher, United States Ambassador to Mexico. He was graduated from Princeton, class of '11, and since then has been in diplomatic service.

Concert Singer Weds Instructor.

Boris Saslawsky, a Russian baritone and concert singer and soloist at the Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street, and Miss Edith Quaile, an instructor in music, were married on Saturday in the chapel of the Church of the Incarnation by the Rev. George Taylor.

Mr. Saslawsky came here twelve years ago, after a time Miss Quaile became his teacher, and finally his bride. His bride has been connected with the David Mannes School since its commencement and is to be Yvette Guilbert's accompanist on her return here next Autumn. Mr. and Mrs. Saslawsky intend spending the Summer at Gloucester, Mass., and on their return will live at 225 West End Avenue.

Huestis—Wood.

Captain J. Humphrey Huestis, Jr., a son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Huestis of Winchester, Mass., and Miss Elsie Wood, a daughter of Mrs. Philip M. Wood and the late Dr. Wood, were married last evening at the home of Mrs. Wood in Jamaica, L. I., the Rev. Rockland Tyng Homans officiating. Mrs. Leon B. Egan of Buffalo was the matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Dorothy Tiederman of New York and Annie F. Napier of Jamaica. Captain Wesley Gamble of Watertown, N. Y., was the best man, and the ushers were Paul West Bunker of the Naval Reserve and Lieutenant Charles W. Cheney of Peterboro, N. H.

The bride is a member of the Motor Corps of the National League for Women's Service, and was also active in Red Cross work during the war. Captain Huestis's father is the receiver of the Boston & Maine Railroad, and is District Director of the United States Railroad Administration for New England. Captain Heustis was graduated from Harvard in 1915. When the United States declared war he got a commission in the Engineering Corps. He sailed in July, 1917, with the 14th United States Engineers, one of the first regiments to see active service. He was brigaded with the British. After twenty-one months' service he returned last April.

Miss Eisenbach Weds J. H. Cohen.

The wedding of Miss Marion F. Eisenbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Eisenbach of 490 West End Avenue, and Joseph H. Cohen of this city took place last evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Hotel St. Regis. A reception and dinner followed the ceremony.

Falk-Koenig Wedding Thursday.

Miss Fannye V. Koenig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Koenig, will be married on Thursday afternoon to Samuel Falk of this city, at 4 o'clock, at the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, Central Park West and Seventieth Street. Miss Koenig's father is Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee. He and his family reside at 237 East Seventh Street and have a Summer home at Bradley Beach, N. J. Miss Koenig is a graduate of the Horace Mann School. Mr. Falk is a lawyer, and resides at 388 West Fifty-first Street. He is a graduate of New York University. Their engagement was announced last Winter.

Host to Prince Aage of Denmark.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gardner entertained at dinner last night Prince Aage of Denmark in the restaurant Armenonville of the Hotel Knickerbocker. Comte de Rosenberg, Lieut. Col. Lucas of the Royal Air Force, Miss E. Sichirich of Buenos Aires, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Casse were among the other guests. Mr. Gardner for a time was connected with the British Consulate in this city.

J. A. FOLEYS ON HONEYMOON

Senator and His Bride, Who Was Mabel Murphy, at White Sulphur.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., June 23.—Many brides and bridegrooms are at White Sulphur enjoying honeymoons. Arriving this morning from Chicago were Major Walter T. Collins and his bride, who was Miss Anna Wheaton, recent star of the musical comedy, "Oh Boy!" During the afternoon they drove to The Meadows to call on Mrs. Thornton Lewis.

State Senator James A. Foley of New York and his bride, who was Miss Mabel Graham Murphy, arrived this morning from New York to spend their honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Barton Harvey of Baltimore are also on their honeymoon.

Arriving from Boston were Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Hart, Mrs. E. H. Abbott, Miss Louise Hobby, Miss Gwendolyn Hart, and Francis R. Hart, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Sparks of Terre Haute, Ind.; J. H. Stuart, F. W. Glen, N. F. Mernie of Charleston, and M. B. Sommers of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., are registered here.

A large gallery gathered at the swimming pool this afternoon to watch the younger set do various feats. Miss Ella Rice and Miss Katherine Luckett tied in a race across the pool. Charles Norelieus, the swimming professional, and George Converse swam the length of the pool in the tandem stroke. Mrs. Richard M. Regan of Baltimore attracted much attention by her expert swimming.

COUNTESS SZECHENYI VISIT

Former Gladys Vanderbilt to Come from Hungary to Newport.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 23.—As soon as peace terms have been signed, Countess Szechenyi, formerly Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, with her children will come to Newport to visit her mother, Mrs. Vanderbilt, at the Breakers, after an absence of six or seven years. It is not known whether Count Szechenyi, who was interested in a submarine wireless company in this country before the war, will come over with his family, who were at Budapest, Hungary, at last accounts.

Viscount and Viscountess De Sibour of France have concluded a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, having come here to attend Prize Day exercises at St. George's School, where their son Honore, is Captain of both the baseball and basketball teams, with their other son, Blaise, a student there.

Mrs. George Howard of Washington is occupying Mrs. Guy Norman's cottage on Washington Street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart Barney of New York will again Summer here, having rented from Reginald Norman Black Point Farm in Portsmouth.

Mrs. Dudley Davis was a dinner hostess tonight.

Mrs. Wortham James of New York has taken possession of her Summer home at Cherry Neck.

Miss Anna Sands of New York has opened her cottage. She will have her brothers, William H. Sands and Charles Sands, as her guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fletcher Godfrey, the Misses Marion Tiffany and Theodora Tiffany, and Henry Fletcher Godfrey, Jr., of New York are occupying the Tiffany cottage.

Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock of Washington and her mother, Mrs. Andrews, are at Harrison House for the Summer. Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes, Jr., of Washington, the latter formerly Miss Fahnestock, will pass a portion of the Summer with the latter's mother, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald W. Rives of New York are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walker Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills of New York are opening their cottage, arriving the first week in July.

Mrs. Stuart Duncan gave a dinner tonight for her son, John P. Duncan, on his birthday. Mrs. Duncan has Mrs. Downer Hazen of New York and Colonel G. G. Woodwark of England as her guests.

Ballet for Women Workers' Fete.

Members of the Metropolitan Opera House ballet are to appear in classic dances at night, with lighting effects, at Oakmere, the estate of Mrs. Bernard E. Pollak, at Orenta Point, Mamaroneck, on Saturday evening, at the lawn fete which the New York League of Women Workers will hold. Harvin Lohre is to sing, and there will be a quartet of male singers, in costume, who will sing Neapolitan songs from a boat, drifting on the stream which surrounds Oakmere. Miss Virginia Potter of 138 East Seventy-eighth Street, is Chairman of the committee in charge. The proceeds are to be devoted to a fund for establishing further clubs for working girls.

In Aid of Catholic Chapels.

A lawn party will be held on Saturday on the grounds of Fordham University for the benefit of the Catholic chapels attached to the Departments of Charities and Correction, on Blackwell's Island. The committees in charge include many prominent persons. There will be a band concert and tables for euchre, bridge whist or pinochle.

Miss Comly to Wed at Tuxedo.

The wedding of Miss Lanier Comly, daughter of Major and Mrs. Garrard Comly, and Lieutenant John Murray Mitchell, U. S. A., whose engagement was announced last December, will take place on Saturday at Tuxedo Park, where her parents have a villa. Lieutenant Mitchell is the son of Mrs. John Murray Mitchell of this city and Tuxedo Park and the late Mr. Mitchell. Miss Comly's father, Major Comly, was formerly attached to the General Staff in France.

THEODORE P. SHONTS IS CRITICALLY ILL

Interborough President Was Operated On for Empyemia Developed from Pneumonia.

STRICKEN 3 WEEKS AGO

Operation by Drs. Squier and Erdmann Was for the Removal of Pus from the Lungs.

Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough, it was learned yesterday, is desperately ill at his home at 930 Park Avenue, after an illness which began three weeks ago with a slight chill and developed into bronchial pneumonia accompanied by pleurisy. Empyemia developed during the course of the disease, and on Sunday he was operated upon by Dr. J. Bentley Squier of 40 East Forty-ninth Street, and Dr. John F. Erdmann of 60 West Fifty-second Street, for the removal of pus from the lungs.

Neither of the doctors would speak of his condition last night, and at his home it was said that no communications would be received in his apartment, but that all information would have to be obtained from Mr. Shonts's secretary at 165 Broadway. It was learned definitely, however, from one in close touch with the situation, that Mr. Shonts has been and still is in a critical condition, but it was stated that his condition last night was encouraging and that it was hoped that he would soon recover completely.

Mr. Shonts was operated upon just a year ago in the Post-Graduate Hospital by Dr. Squier for severe internal trouble. The operation was a serious one, the nature of which was not revealed. While the life of the patient remained in the balance for a time, he rallied splendidly and soon regained his full vigor.

Mr. Shonts has been President of the Interborough since 1907. For the two years previous to that time he was Chairman of the Isthmian Canal Commission. When he came to New York to head the transportation system he had become known nationally as a railway builder, promoter, and financier. As President of the Interborough he was commissioned to transform into a harmonious whole the unbalanced network of urban railroads intersecting the city's most densely peopled districts—overhead, underground, and on the surface. During the last year he has attempted to educate the people of New York to the necessity of raising the fares in order to save the transit lines from bankruptcy.

SUES WAITERS' UNION.

Healey's Head Waiter Wants $10,000 for Loss if His Job.

A suit for $10,000 damages against five officers of the International Federated Workers in the Hotel, Restaurant, Club, and Catering Industry, an organization with headquarters at 158 West Forty-sixth Street, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Michael Joseph Hegarty, formerly head waiter at Healy's, Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue. The papers have been served on Otto Wagner, Treasurer, and on John Haggerty, Richard Lucas, and Samuel Kremberg, members of the Executive Committee.

The plaintiff alleges that he discovered that check given by waiters to patrons of the restaurant were being altered so that the patrons were overcharged. He also alleged that he detected a system whereby the restaurant itself was losing money through the altered checks. He said that after he had reported the matter to Thomas Healy and the offending employes were confronted with the charges against them and were discharged they had the case taken up by the Executive Committee of the organization named, which demanded that Hegarty be discharged under the threat of calling a strike. Hegarty says that Healy discharged him when the union officers gave him only five minutes in which to act, and he was unable to get other employment since June 5. He alleges that the defendants are wilfully and maliciously preventing him from earning a living.

TO COMBAT BOLSHEVISM.

Miss Margaret Wilson in Sympathy with Americanization Work.

A letter from Margaret Wilson, daughter of President Woodrow Wilson, was read yesterday at a meeting of the Downtown Chamber of Commerce, held at Twelfth Street and Second Avenue, for the purpose of devising ways and means to combat the spread of Bolshevism in the downtown districts.

Julian Goldman, who presided, said that the Board of Education should take immediate action to improve the opportunity afforded by the new Americanization law. This law, he said, empowers the Board of Education to combat the evils of Bolshevism and anarchy at short range through the medium of the city's educational institutions. Municipal Court Justice Benjamin Hoffman moved that the Chamber of Commerce urge the appointment of Harry H. Schlacht, who directed the Liberty Loan campaigns on the lower east side, to head the "work of Americanization."

The Secretary was authorized to forward to Commissioner John H. Finley, head of the State Educational Department, a petition calling upon him to act under the Americanization law. This petition is signed by east side business men and others representing twenty-two nationalities.

The President's daughter, Miss Wilson, in her letter expressed sympathy with the Americanization movement on the east side.

WILL FIGHT DRUG EVIL.

County Medical Society to Support State Commission.

The New York County Medical Society adopted a resolution last night offering its co-operation to the State Commissioner of Narcotic Drugs in every "legitimate and constructive" effort to do away with the drug evil. A special meeting had been called because of reports that the Department of Health contemplated the enactment of new regulations governing the relations of physicians to drug addicts under their care.

A letter from Dr. Copeland was read in denial that any rules would be enacted independently by the Department of Health. The letter added that the only new regulations would be those of the State Commission. Dr. E. Eliot Harris read a long report explaining in detail what was required of physicians and medical institutions under the new regulations, and offered the resolution, which was finally adopted. The resolution was opposed at first by Dr. Henry S. Stark and others who denounced the regulations. They contended that there was a tendency to surround the treatment of drug addicts with such difficulties and penalties that legitimate practitioners would be afraid to treat them at all.

Attacking the new regulations of the State Commissioner, which require the recording of the name of addicts with the State, Dr. Stark asserted that the tendency of the regulations was to put a stop to attemps by honest medical men to cure or help addicts. He said the rules would tend to make them dependent solely on the illicit trade in the narcotics.

J. G. Willis Killed in California.

Joseph Grinnell Willis, 39 years old, son of Grinnell Willis of Morristown, N. J., was killed Saturday night in an automobile accident between Hollywood and Redlands, Cal. Mr. Willis, who was formerly a member of the New York Stock Exchange, had lived at Hollywood for the last three years.

DEVERY FUNERAL TODAY.

Business in Far Rockaway, L. I., will be halted this morning while the funeral of William S. Devery, "the best chief of police New York ever had," is being conducted. There will be a brief service at 10 o'clock at the home in Mott Avenue, Far Rockaway, and then, headed by a platoon of policemen, and the Police Band, playing a funeral march, the body will be taken to the Roman Catholic Church of St. Mary, Star of the Sea, where a requiem mass will be held at 10:30 o'clock. The Rev. Herbert Farrell, pastor of the church, will be the celebrant. All the stores on the streets to be used by the cortege will be closed while the procession passes.

The procession will move up Mott Avenue to Central Avenue and then in Central Avenue as far as Lawrence, L. I., where the town limits end, and thence back in Central Avenue to the church. In the procession will be motormen on foot, five Captains, ten Lieutenants and ten Sergeants. They will be under the direction of Inspector Thomas J. Kelly. The motorcycle police will act as an escort from the church to the Calvary Cemetery, where the body will be placed in a receiving vault.

Thirteen men have been chosen to be honorary or active pallbearers at the funeral. They are Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue; Eugene Woods, Thomas Foley, former Sheriff; Abram I. Elkus, Dr. O'Hanlon, William Shannon, John Howard, Thomas Diamond, who was a former police captain under Chief Devery; Edward Glennon, Helmuth Kranick, Matthew Corbett and George Corbett. Many friends and acquaintances continued to call at the Mott Avenue continued to call at the Mott Avenue home until after midnight, and many additional messages of condolence were received yesterday by the family.

REV. JOHN A. GLEESON DEAD.

St. Michael's Rector for 30 Years Led in Reform of "Hell's Kitchen."

The Rev. John A. Gleeson, for thirty years rector of St. Michael's Catholic Church, at 442 West Thirty-fourth Street, died yesterday morning. Father Gleeson led in the reform of "Hell's Kitchen," and was for many years a prominent figure on the west side. One of his greatest works, however, was in the enlargement and improvement of St. Michael's Home, a Catholic orphanage on Green Ridge, Staten Island, which now cares for 400 boys and girls.

Born in Ireland, Sept. 29, 1846, Father Gleeson came to the United States with his parents when he was 10 years old. He attended St. Vincent's School at Latrobe, Penn., and the Niagara University, and was ordained on June 7, 1873. He was assigned to old St. Mary's in Grand Street, where he served for three years, and was then transferred to St. Rafael's parish in Forty-first Street. In 1880 he became rector of St. Michael's.

Emil H. Frank.

Emil H. Frank, one of the oldest fire and marine insurance brokers in this city and head of the firm of Frank & Du Bois, at 80 Madison Lane, died on Saturday at his home, 21 Montgomery Place, Brooklyn, of pneumonia. Mr. Frank was born in Dresden, Germany, seventy-six years ago, and during the civil war served with the 52d New York Infantry, organized and commanded by his brother, Paul, who was later General Paul Frank. Mr. Frank entered as a Sergeant and took part in many notable battles, including Fair Oaks, Antietam, and Fredericksburg. He was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant for bravery in action. Mr. Frank was one of the originators of the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club, of which he was the oldest member of its Board of Directors. He also belonged to the Montauk Club of Brooklyn and the Downtown Club of Manhattan.

John S. Marble, Comedian.

John S. Marble, veteran comedian, a member of one of the oldest theatrical families in the country, died yesterday at the Lenox Hill Hospital. He had been until recently a guest at the Actor's Fund Home. Born in Buffalo in 1844, he was a son of Ben Marble, who was a leading comedian of his day. He made his debut with the McVicker's Stock Company in Chicago. For a long time he was seen in stock productions.

What is Washington Doing to Your Business?

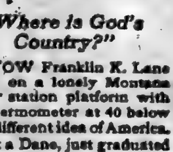
EVERY phase of commercial activity, from tariff on varnish to tax on ice cream is now in process of legislative change.

The program of Congress this year touches definitely and intimately the business of every individual.

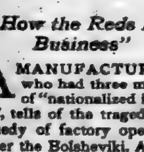
Your business may be affected overnight. The successful man is the one who gets the jump on the other fellow by knowing what is about to happen.

To furnish this information in the language of one business man to another is the function of THE NATION'S BUSINESS, a monthly magazine published for business executives by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The leading article this month is "It's Up To Congress"—a close-up of national legislation from the business man's standpoint.



"Where is God's Country?"
HOW Franklin K. Lane on a lonely Montana station platform with the thermometer at 40 below got a different idea of America. It took a Dane, just graduated from the immigrant class, to give him a new appreciation of this country. The Secretary tells the story. You will be a better American and business man for reading it.



"How the Reds Do Business"
A MANUFACTURER, who had three months of "nationalized industry", tells of the tragedy and comedy of factory operation under the Bolsheviki. As told to Berton Braley—in the July number.

And twenty other articles—now on the stands.

WHETHER your business is little or big, whether you are an employer or employe, THE NATION'S BUSINESS is your magazine. It is more than a magazine—it's your partner on the job for you in Washington. And it costs only twenty-five cents. Buy it this month and every month. On principal newsstands.

PESSOA DEPLORES ATTACKS ON US

Anti-American Propaganda in Brazil Not Popular There, President-elect Asserts.

HONORED AT THE CAPITOL

House and Senate Recess for Him—Entertained by Glass—Plans to Visit Canada.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Necessity for the United States and Brazil to work together for the building up of the world in an age in which isolation is fatal to nationalities was pointed out by Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, President-elect of Brazil, in an address tonight at a dinner given in his honor by Secretary of the Treasury Glass.

The dinner came at the close of the busiest day spent by the distinguished visitor since he arrived in New York last Friday from France, where he represented his nation at the Peace Conference. At noon a luncheon was given in his honor at the Pan-American United by the Brazilian Chargé. In the afternoon he visited the Senate and the House of Representatives, both of which recessed while Dr. Pessoa was presented. Later he was the guest at a reception attended by members of the Latin-American Diplomatic Corps. He also found time during the afternoon to take a stroll unattended through the business district of Washington.

President-elect Pessoa declared in a statement that Brazil "not only recognizes the Monroe Doctrine, but has always recognized it." The inclusion of the Monroe Doctrine in the League of Nations covenant, he said, "is a domestic question of the United States alone."

Anti-American Propaganda.

Dr. Pessoa declared the anti-American propaganda in some Brazilian newspapers did not represent in any way the sentiments of the people of Brazil.

"It is the work of individuals, some of them Brazilian and some European," he said. "I do not believe Germany has anything to do with it, but it will have absolutely no effect upon the relations between the United States and Brazil. The traditional friendship of the Brazilian people for the United States is too well established and consolidated by common interests and common moral affinities to be disturbed in the least by such political propaganda.

"This friendship of the Brazilian people was augmented and fortified by the stand taken by the United States delegates at the Peace Conference in Paris in favor of the interests and claims of Brazil as an outcome of the world war. Under these circumstances it is impossible for any man or group of men to do anything that will interfere with the relations between the two countries. Medeiros Albuquerque, the author of these attacks upon the United States, was a friend of the Allies during the war, which makes it seem improbable that there is any German connection with the affair."

Discussing present world conditions, especially as they affect this hemisphere, Dr. Pessoa said:

"The high cost of living and difficult conditions connected with the work of reconstruction in Europe are bound to result in heavy immigration to both North and South America. It is a problem that must be met by all the countries of this continent.

"I shall support with all my energies, when I get back to Brazil, the bringing closer together of the countries of North and South America with Brazil and solidifying their interests and their common relations, without any hostility to the nations of Europe. I wish particularly to develop the commercial and economic relations of Brazil and this country."

Replying to an address by Secretary Glass at the dinner Dr. Pessoa said:

"Now that the roar of arms has ceased on the battlefields, and mankind, freed from the painful and deep convulsions which shook them for nearly five years, returns to the pre-war life of peace and toil, it is preferably the economic and financial interests, the requirements of commerce and industry that should absorb all our energies. We are now living at a time when, more than ever, isolation is fatal to nationalities. ... uous life which we are about to retake, the infinity of interests of every order, the care for political safety, as for commercial and industrial defense, demand of mankind some sort of federative organization to which each State would contribute with their most appropriate elements for the common purpose."

Visit to Senate and House.

On his visit to the Capitol, Dr. Pessoa was introduced personally to many members of the House. Speaker Gillett in presenting Dr. Pessoa said his visit would strengthen the friendly relations between the United States and Brazil, and that "a peculiar warmth of sentiment was felt by Americans because Brazil so quickly followed the United States in declaring war on the common enemy."

Responding to a welcoming outburst of applause from the members, Dr. Pessoa declared that "Brazil would not forget the honor to her representative."

The Senate recessed fifteen minutes to receive the Brazilian Executive-elect, who made a brief address in English from the Vice President's rostrum. In the absence of Vice President Marshall, President Pro Tempore Cummins acted as host for the Senate, appointing Chairman Lodge and Senator Thomas to escort the distinguished guest to the Chamber.

In addressing the Senate, Dr. Pessoa said:

"I have no words to express all my thanks for the honor you tender to me by receiving me in this House. It is not remarkable that I have no words to express my thanks, because my thanks are very great and very extensive, and my English is very short. But I can assure you that Brazil, the ancient friend in the life of the United States, will keep in her heart the memory of the cordial reception."

An informal reception followed during which the visitor shook hands with Senators and also the Senate pages.

Dr. Pessoa plans to leave Washington Wednesday morning, arriving in New York that afternoon and leaving Thursday for a visit to Canada. He will visit Ottawa only and return to New York about July 1, stopping at Boston en route. The party will sail from New York for Brazil on the dreadnought Idaho early in July.

PARIS, June 22.—Thomas Nelson Page, Ambassador to Italy, who arrived in Paris today, expects to leave for London Wednesday to join Mrs. Page. He will probably sail soon for America, although his plans are contingent upon developments in Italy. He gave up his house in Rome before leaving that city and is not likely to return there.

Comstock & Gest's London Shows.

For general director of their London enterprises F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest have engaged Captain J. A. E. Malone, for twenty-five years identified with George Edwardes's productions, and are planning the production of several plays in London next season.

Among these will be "Experience," "The Wanderer," and "The Light of the World." The first of these will be "Experience," which will be played in London by an American company, opening Christmas week.

FRENCH ARMY OFFICERS HONORED BY PERSHING

Decorated with Distinguished Service Cross for Gallantry at Blanc Mont Ridge.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The War Department today gave out a list of citations for the Distinguished Service Cross which contains the following names:

Captain BERTRAND (deceased), French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Blanc Mont Ridge on Oct. 3-8. During attacks by the 2d American Division he distinguished himself by volunteering twice for hazardous duty; first to take food to the firing line, and later to replace a wounded comrade as liaison agent. His personal courage and coolness under heavy fire were marked.

Lieutenant PIVETEAU (E. M.), French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Massif Blanc Mont, Oct. 3-8. During two attacks by the 2d American Division he repeatedly distinguished himself by his courage and utter disregard of danger in transmitting orders and gathering important information for battalion commander. His zeal, devotion to duty and initiative were of the highest order.

Second Lieut. DIANO, French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Somme Py, Oct. 3-8. He displayed conspicuous gallantry during operations of the 2d American Division, and when his Captain was killed and the company had suffered heavy losses he promptly effected a reorganization. With great heroism and able leadership he led gallant forward the assault in the face of heavy shellfire.

Brigadier EDOUARD Perrin, French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Gesnes, Oct. 4. During the first attack on Hill 235 Brigadier Perrin's tank was destroyed and he was captured. On the following night he escaped and on the followin day he took part in the second attack on the hill. He was wounded soon after the engagement began, but continued to operate his gun, giving an important support to our advancing infantry. He refused to leave the field for treatment until the mission had been successfully completed.

Brigadier ALBERT BAURIN, French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Gesnes, Oct. 4. During the course of an engagement in which the French tanks assisted the American infantry to attack a difficult position, the tank in which Brigadier Baurin was advancing was put out of action and his companion wounded by heavy artillery fire. He continued to assist his comrade to fire until the ammunition was completely exhausted and then dismounted from the tank and carried the wounded man to the American lines, through an intense enemy fire.

Brigadier HENRY BARDOU, French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Massif Blanc Mont, Oct. 8. During an attack by the 2d American Division he displayed marked coolness and bravery in guiding his tank through heavy counterpreparation fire, during an approach march. He never hesitated to leave the protection of the tank, the better to direct its advance. Later he showed great personal courage in going through heavy shellfire to the rescue of several wounded American soldiers.

Aspirant LOUIS FRALY, French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Gesnes, Oct. 4. Commanding one of the tank sections, which was preceding the advance of the American infantry, Aspirant Fraly displayed exceptional bravery in destroying machine gun nests, until his tank received a direct hit from the enemy's artillery. Notwithstanding that his tank was unable to continue forward and that he himself was wounded, Aspirant Fraly continued to operate his guns until all his ammunition was exhausted.

Marechal DES LOGIS RENE THIEBAULT, French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Massif Blanc Mont, Oct. 3. Following an attack by the 2d American Division, he distinguished himself by personal courage and coolness in going, under heavy shellfire, to the rescue of wounded American soldiers.

HANGS HIMSELF IN PLAY.

Boy Dies Through Trying to See How Dime Novel Hero Felt.

In an attempt to enact a scene in a paper-covered novel, which told how a band of villains was hanging the hero of the story, 13-year-old John Schubert, who lived with his parents at 675 East 170th Street, hanged himself with a rope last evening. He was choked to death before aid arrived.

According to his father, the boy had the "dime novel" and "movie" habits. While in the bathroom he tied his trousers around his throat and placed a rope around his neck so that he might breathe during his experiment. He fastened the other end of the rope to an overhead steam pipe, but when he hung his weight upon the rope it slipped upward, cutting off his breath. A younger brother, Albert, found the body.

LONG MOTOR TRIP FOR 100 RECRUITS

Men Who Enlist in Motor Transport Corps Will Go on Test Journey Across Continent.

A NEW RECRUITING RECORD

Men Who Have Seen Service Re-enlist and Tell of Opportunities in the Army.

The Army Recruiting Service announced yesterday that the first 100 men who enlisted in the Motor Transport Corps this week, expressing a desire to make the transcontinental trip with the army motor truck train, would be sent to Fort Meigs, at Washington, to prepare for the journey. The men will receive their uniforms and equipment at Fort Meigs. The journey will begin on July 1.

Thirty officers and men already have been detached from the Motor Transport Corps of the Eastern Department to prepare for the trip, and about 200 officers and men will be needed to carry on all the experiments and demonstrations. In its bulletin explaining the trip the recruiting service said:

"The convoy will comprise two motor truck companies, several staff officers, representatives of the Engineer Corps, Field Artillery, Medical Corps, and Air Service. This organization will maintain itself in the field and will sleep either in the trucks or in military buildings selected along the route. The present plan contemplates following the Lincoln Highway as far as practicable. The tour is intended as a demonstration of the practicability of long-distance motor post and commercial transportation and the necessity of judicious expenditure of Federal appropriations in providing the necessary highways."

Although applications for enlistment were received only a half a day on Saturday, the acceptances throughout the country were 408, a new record in peace time recruiting. The total for the day in this city was 47, bringing the total for the first six days of the campaign in this city to 367.

One of the recruits accepted yesterday was Daniel J. Sullivan, who, except for a few months, has been in the Regular Army continuously since 1908. He has served in the artillery, and for the last few months has been attached to the Twenty-second Infantry. The day before his enlistment expired he inquired at the recruiting headquarters at 461 Eighth Avenue about re-enlisting without spending a day in civilian life.

"I've seen a good deal of the world in this army of ours," said Sullivan, "and I am not ready to quit it. I am learning something every day. I am going to pick up more education and learn more about mechanics in these new schools we're having in the army. Maybe three years from now I'll quit it. If I do, I'll be set up for life with the benefit of education, a trade, and travel."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Up From Nowhere," by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, will be presented in New York in August by John D. Williams, with Norman Trevor in the leading role. "Toby's Bow" will reopen in New York on Aug. 21.

"The Acquittal," by Rita Weiman, will be presented in Atlantic City next Monday by Cohan & Harris. Phoebe Hunt and William Harrigan will have the leading roles.

A motion picture entitled "Open Your Eyes" will begin an engagement at the Central Theatre next Sunday night.

"The Bashful Hero" will be the title of the Harold Brighouse comedy which A. H. Woods will produce, the play having formerly been known as "The Bantam, V. C." Sacha Guitry's play, hitherto called "The Great Illusion," has been retitled "The Girl in the Stage Box."

The first performance of "The Greenwich Village Follies," scheduled for tonight, has been postponed until Wednesday of next week.

"Kathleen," a farce by Earl Derr Biggers, will be produced by John Cort next season. Harold de Becker will be in the cast.

Mr. Biggers's musical adaptation of his story, "Love Insurance," will be produced by Henry W. Savage under the title of "The Love Boat." Frank Carter has been engaged for the leading role.

TELLS OF RELIEF ABROAD.

Whitmarsh, Just Back, Says French Are Busy Cultivating Farms.

Theodore F. Whitmarsh of the American Relief Administration returned yesterday to his office, 42 Broadway, after more than two months abroad looking after the distribution of American food in Europe. He said that in his opinion enough food to provision the peoples of the liberated countries until their own crops were ready for the harvest this Fall would be in transit by the first of next month.

In Southern France Mr. Whitmarsh noted that the fields were well cultivated and the people—men, women, and children, including many discharged soldiers—were working hard in cultivating the fields. "One of the things that attracted my attention," he said, "were the peace-time activities of the men of the American Expeditionary Force. In some countries the Yankee soldiers who came across for purposes of destruction are wholeheartedly engaged, under Herbert Hoover, Director of the American Relief Administration, in the more elevating task of reconstruction."

The Americans, he said, were now making an effort to bring about the organization of European merchants in order that they might buy collectively to provision their respective countries after the foreign relief agencies have completed their work. While the American organization that has had charge of the distribution of the $100,000,000 relief fund voted by Congress would officially close its activities July 1, it would have representatives in Europe until the middle of August at the least, Mr. Whitmarsh said.

Maxwell

300,000 Maxwells; they grow better as their numbers multiply

Gradual, almost invisible to the man at the forge or in the accounting office but certain as the rising of the sun, there's an improvement well nigh daily.

There have been five years of making this Maxwell better and better, and the basic design has never changed once in that time.

At one time the Maxwell was known only as a hill-climber. Again it gained attention through its work in rough country. Then it earned a reputation on economy. But gradually it became better and better spoken of for its enduring, everlasting reliability.

That kind of reliability that doesn't burn your pocketbook with repair bills, that knows no task too difficult, that never complains of old age, that gives you about as much trouble as a pair of shoes, that travels on a very small gas appetite.

300,000 of them are in use throughout the world.

In those sections of the world where few cars make good, there you will find the Maxwell—often the dominating car.

The 300,000th Maxwell is the same basic car as Maxwell No. 1. No changes in design—but many improvements.

There's no doubt it's a better car today. Nearly 300 000 of one model has its obvious effects.

The Natural Flow of Saliva Saves Teeth

Normally there is always more or less of it in your mouth. It works in and out between your teeth, dissolving the food particles, neutralizing unfavorable mouth acids, checking the destructive action of germs, and breaking down protein plaques, tartar and other harmful deposits about the teeth and gums.

PEBECO TOOTH PASTE

Counteracts "Acid-Mouth"

Pebeco Tooth Paste is a mighty good dentifrice to use, because it stimulates the normal, healthy flow of alkaline saliva, and thus tends to improve the teeth in appearance and health.

GARY SEES PUBLIC AS THIRD PARTNER

Labor and Capital to Reach a Better Understanding, Says Steel Chairman.

CITES PATRIOTISM IN WAR

Trinity College Confers Degree on the Speaker—Similar Honor Is Voted to President Masaryk.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 23.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, was the principal speaker at the Trinity College commencement today, when he was one of those receiving honorary degrees.

Judge Gary spoke at the alumni gathering this afternoon, taking as his subject "Labor." He said in part:

"It is not yet fully realized what has happened to the world during the last five years; and in a much less degree can it be conceived what will occur during the next like period. We have been living in an atmosphere of disorder and devastation, of deliberate effort to utilize all the elements of human knowledge, skill and energy, in the destruction of life and property, often in disregard of the laws of God and man. While it is impossible to measure the full effect of these conditions upon the human mind and disposition, it is apparent that in many cases it is degenerating and serious.

"It is the solemn duty of every individual, every aggregation of individuals, to assist in bringing about stable conditions which are healthful—morally, socially and economically; and if this shall be the effort of all, it need not be feared there will be experienced the overthrow of civilization, the disregard of freedom and liberty or the protection of life and property, which occasionally an ill-advised or evil-intentioned speaker or writer proclaims is now threatening the world.

"Fortunately, the large majority of wage earners cannot be influenced by considerations that are base or unreasonable. This is especially true in the United States. It may be useful to bear in mind that, in trying to arrive at a wise and just conclusion concerning the rights of the workmen, the interests of four general groups must be considered, viz: Labor, capital or employer, the consumer, and that part of the general public not included in the divisions specially mentioned.

Labor's Large Part in Industry.

"In estimating the cost of production from the raw to the finished material it should be borne in mind that 85 or 90 per cent. of the total is confined to the sum paid for labor. If capital or labor is receiving a larger return than it ought to have, the excess is provided by the consumer in paying improper prices.

"Also, when we consider that the three groups named are closely connected, we cannot overlook the most important fact that the effort of any one to advance wages or prices, with resulting cost of production, may be simply a step in adding to the cost of living and consequently a higher standard of general prices, with a relatively lower value of the standard dollar.

"In the past it is doubtful if the workingman throughout the world received his just deserts. In considering the relationship between employers and employes, the welfare of the latter is of the highest importance, not alone because it is right, though that is reason enough, but also because it is for the benefit of the employers themselves. These groups are associated for mutual profit. They succeed or fail together.

"They are not and should not be considered partners in the sense of being entitled to the control of the business in question or to participate in the return on the capital invested, except to the extent of contribution by each to such capital, for otherwise one would share in benefits without sharing in the hazard of investment.

"It pays big, in dollars and cents, for the employer to maintain working conditions which are beneficial to the health and the disposition of the employe.

"While it is not the purpose of this address to discuss the temperance question, I venture to remark in passing that it is decidedly for the interest of the laboring men, and all others for that matter, whether they work with their brains or hands, or both, to abstain from the use of alcoholic stimulants. They will be more successful in life; better citizens.

"Many of the wage earners have heretofore become property owners, owning the houses in which, with their families, they reside. Some are the holders of interest bearing securities. They have as keen a desire to see the institutions of this country protected as those who have greater riches, and they may be relied upon to lend their influence and their votes in favor of the protection of property and person.

Gary Sees No Revolution Here.

"Every employe should have the chance to progress from one position to another, depending upon his merits. We may not expect perfection in economic enterprise and management; perhaps we shall not see universal, uninterrupted tranquillity, even in this highly civilized, progressive, and prosperous country; but we shall not witness demoralization, revolution, or retrogradation.

"Those who claim that large numbers of workmen in this country could be induced to participate in any attempt to override law or order misjudge and unopposed, and of this majority there are opposed; and of this majority, there are in control the young men and the young women, the pride and the security of the nation.

"During the recent stupendous military conflict there were in the employ of one large corporation and its subsidiaries about 300,000 wage earners. The greater part were foreign born, thousands upon thousands of them from the central countries of Europe. They were appreciative of the disposition of their employers to treat them justly and in accordance with high standards of business principles.

"They were efficient, faithful and loyal. The manufacturing works were maintained in continuous operation throughout the war and supplied a large and important part of the material needed for the military necessities of the United States and its associates. These workers subscribed liberally to the Liberty Loans and many of them contributed to the war relief campaigns.

"Here was a magnificent exhibition of reciprocal sentiment and industrial co-operation. It was a demonstration that labor in this country is intelligent and honest in thought and performance, and that it may be depended upon to actively assist in the maintenance of good government.

"Public sentiment, based on facts, developed particularly by the learned, thoughtful, fair-minded and conscientious men and women who are neither capitalists nor laborers in the sense intended by what has been said, will have, in the future, more influence upon the situation than ever before; and the attitude of the employers toward employes, if it shall be such as I have indicated it ought to be, will be a potent factor for good."

Degree for President Masaryk.

In addition to Judge Gary and several more who were present, the degree of doctor of laws was conferred "in absentia" by President Flavel S. Luther upon Dr. Masaryk, President of the Czechoslovak republic. The recipient sent a cable dispatch thanking the college for the honor done him, and thanking the American people for their faith in him and his work. Others receiving the LL. D. were Judge William S. Case of the Connecticut Superior Court; Percival W. Clement, '68, Governor of Vermont, and Major Gen. C. R. Edwards, late of the 26th Division, A. E. F.

Degrees of doctor of science were conferred on Major Bowie, '83, of the Geodetic Survey; Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, and Frederick P. Fish, former President of the American Bell Telephone Company, that of master of arts on George S. Goddard, Connecticut State Librarian, and Colonel Calvin D. Cowles, late U. S. A.; doctor of letters, Bliss Carman, poet, New Canaan, Conn.; doctor of music, Arthur Foote of Boston, composer, and doctor of divinity, Charles O. Scoville, rector of Trinity Church, New Haven. The degrees in course were thirty-seven in number.

NEW YORK MEN HONORED.

Receive Degrees at Commencement Exercises at Wesleyan.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 23.—At commencement exercises in Memorial Chapel at Wesleyan today President W. A. Shanklin conferred the following honorary degrees:

Master of Arts—Warren French Sheldon, '99, financial secretary of Y. M. C. A., for New York City; Lewis Loomis Richards, associated with Herbert Hoover in relief work in Belgium and Northern France; Reymond Laylor Forman, '07, pastor of St. Paul's Church, New York City; Benjamin Murley Johns, '06, pastor Methodist Episcopal Church, Oneonta, N. Y.; Ralph Welles Keeler, '06, publicity director Centenary Movement of the Methodist Church; Halp Spalding Cushman, '02, with Centenary Committee in New York City; William Palmer Ladd, Dean Berkeley Divinity School.

Doctor of Science: Edward Lee Thorndike, '96, Professor of Psychology, Teachers College, Columbia University; Frank Bowers Littell, '91, Astronomer, Naval Observatory, Washington, D. C.; George Arthur Burrell, recently in command Chemical Service, U. S. A.

Doctor of Laws—Leigh Carlyle Palmer, Rear Admiral, U. S. N.; Leonard Wood, Major General U. S. A.; Marcus H. Holcomb, War Governor of Connecticut; Caleb Thomas Winchester, fifty years a graduate of Wesleyan.

Trustees chosen by the alumni were Vernon B. Swett, '96, of Newton, Mass., and H. B. Shonk, '03, of New York.

The degrees were given to sixty-five in the course, of whom forty-one were of the 1919 class and twenty-four of 1918, who had been in military service.

At the afternoon gathering of alumni plans were announced for a campaign for an additional endowment for the university.

The Ritch prize of $100 for the best commencement oration was divided between John H. Underhill of New York and Maurice A. Potter of North Long Branch, N. J.

WAR HONORS AT WILLIAMS.

M. A. for Whittlesey — Davison Urges Treaty Ratification.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., June 23.—Williams College, at its commencement today, conferred upon Lieut. Col. Charles W. Whittlesey, a member of the class of 1905, who commanded the famous "Lost Battalion" in the Argonne Forest, the honorary degree of Master of Arts.

Henry P. Davison of New York, head of the American Red Cross, and Stephen B. L. Penrose, President of Whitman College, were made honorary Doctors of Laws.

Other honorary degrees awarded were: Doctor of Letters, Horace D. Taft, founder and headmaster of Taft School, and Henry D. Wild, Professor of Latin at Williams; Doctor of Divinity, the Rev. Henry P. Perkins, a Chinese missionary (in absentia,) and the Rev. William L. Sawtell of New York.

The honorary degree of Bachelor of Arts was given to nine students in recognition of their war service.

Announcement was made of the founding of two prizes of $150 each in memory of First Lieutenant William Bradford Turner of Brooklyn, who was killed in action Sept. 27, 1918, and to whom was awarded posthumously a Congressional Medal of Honor. The prizes are the gift of members of Lieutenant Turner's family. He was actively identified with undergraduate interests.

At the alumni luncheon President Garfield announced that the construction of a new library, to cost not over $260,000, would begin soon. He also announced that the $2,000,000 endowment fund started in 1913 for increasing professors' salaries had been completed.

Lieut. Col. Whittlesey and Mr. Davison spoke at the meeting, the latter saying that American citizens were morally bound to ratify the Peace Treaty if Germany signed.

DEGREE FOR F. L. STETSON.

Middlebury College Makes New York Lawyer LL. D.

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., June 23.—The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was received by Francis Lynde Stetson of New York, and that of Doctor of Letters by Robert M. Collins, chief of the London Bureau of The Associated Press, at the Middlebury College commencement exercises today. Both degrees were in absentia. Mr. Collins is a graduate of the college, class of 1880.

John T. Axton, for eighteen years a chaplain in the regular army, and Luther A Brown received the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Brig. Gen. Stephen M. Foote, who commanded the 152d Field Artillery Brigade in France, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. General Foote was Middlebury's highest ranking officer in the war.

Degrees in course were conferred on fifty-seven graduates. Rev. Harry E. Fosdick of New York delivered the principal address of the day.

TUFTS HONORS SIMS.

Governor Coolidge Also Receives Degree of LL. D.

MEDFORD, Mass., June 23.—Rear Admiral William S. Sims and Governor Calvin Coolidge were awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the commencement exercises of Tufts College today. President Herman F. Bumpus, presiding at the exercises for the last time before his resignation becomes effective, conferred degrees upon 261 undergraduates, 28 of whom were women students of Jackson College. To 48 members of the sophomore and junior classes who left college to join the colors war certificates were given.

Other honorary degrees were Colonel John J. Carty of New York, Sc. D.; the Rev. Edward A. Horton, Chaplain of the United States Senate, and the Rev. George E. Leighton, Superintendent of Universalist churches in Massachusetts, D. D.; Charles R. Gow, who was engineer in charge of constructing the army supply base in Boston, M. S., and Robert C. Brown, a Trustee of the college, M. A.

H. D. GIBSON GETS LL. D.

Bowdoin College Honors New York Banker for Red Cross Work.

BRUNSWICK, Me., June 23.—Harvey D. Gibson, President of the Liberty National Bank of New York and during the war General Manager of the American Red Cross and American Red Cross Commissioner to Europe, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the commencement exercises of Bowdoin College today.

The degree of Master of Arts was given to Lieut. Col. Thomas L. Pierce of Boston, commander of the 325th Infantry; Arthur G. Staples, editor of The Lewiston Journal; Harold M. Sewall of Bath, during the war Chairman of the Maine Committee on Public Safety, and Freeland O. Stanley, Newton, Mass.

Others to receive honorary degrees were Frank A. Munsey of New York, Doctor of Letters; the Rev. Arthur J. Lord, Meriden, Conn., Doctor of Divinity, and George W. Tilson, Brooklyn, Doctor of Science.

333 Graduate at Cornell.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 23.—Cornell University graduated 333 young men and women at its fiftieth commencement here today. The graduating class was the smallest in many years, this being attributed to its many members in war service.

DANIELS DEFENDS LEAGUE.

Tells Graduates of Dickinson That Treaty Assures a Just Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., June 23.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels received the degree of Doctor of Laws at the commencement exercises at Dickinson College today. "The soldiers and sailors from Dickinson and the country at large would have suffered and died in vain," said the Secretary, "if we fail in making peace to garner the fruits of victory by a proper peace covenant."

The treaty about to be signed, he said, assures a fair and just peace in line with America's principles. He was given an ovation when he referred to the transportation without loss of a man in our 2,000,000 men abroad.

The Secretary severely criticised the opponents of the proposed League of Nations, comparing them with agnostics or ignoramuses. He said in answer to the assertion that Great Britain would dominate the League, that America will never enter into any league that any nation could dominate. He denounced the contention that there would be domination of the league by black and yellow races as absurd. Those who complained that Canada had a vote in the League, he said, did not know that Panama had as much to say as Canada.

FACULTY GREETS DR. MEZES.

City College Head Back from Paris for Commencement.

Dr. Sidney Edward Mezes, President of the College of the City of New York, and Mrs. Mezes were welcomed home yesterday by the faculty and guests of the college, after an absence in Europe of six months. Dr. Mezes resigned as Chairman of the Committee of Experts of the American Peace Commission to return in time for the commencement week exercises, and has returned to his work at the college.

Commencement activities will culminate with graduation of the classes of 1919, a faculty-student-alumni luncheon and the senior banquet at the Cafe Boulevard. Commencement day will begin at 8:30 o'clock in the evening with the induction of the graduating class into the Associate Alumni and the planting of the class ivy. The academic procession to the great hall will take place at 10 o'clock.

ELOPED WITH WIFE'S SISTER

Hempstead Woman Gets Divorce as a Result of the Escapade.

The sequel to an elopement involving two well-known young persons of Hempstead, L. I., which took place just before the war, came in the Queens County Supreme Court yesterday, when Justice James C. Van Siclen gave an interlocutory degree of divorce to Mrs. Julia Wolff of 33 Clinton Street, Hempstead, from Alfred Wolff.

The elopers were Wolff and Miss Kate Eckerlin, a sister of Mrs. Wolff. The principal witness for the plaintiff was Fred Eckerlin of Hempstead, the father of the two young women who, according to his testimony, went to Germany and brought his younger daughter home. Wolff is now in Switzerland, but a letter from him was introduced in which he consented to the divorce. The testimony showed that Wolff and Miss Julia Eckerlin were married at Hempstead on July 26, 1913.

Sues Broker for Alienation.

Frank S. Douglass, a broker at 44 Whitehall Street, was arrested yesterday on a civil order in a $50,000 suit by Howard D. Baird of 606 West 115th Street for alienating the affections of Mrs. Pearl Adele Baird. Douglass was released on giving a bond of $2,000. It was said yesterday that Douglass had a wife and two children in San Francisco. The Bairds have a thirteen-year-old daughter.

Douglass denies that he had anything to do with the marital unhappiness of Baird.

Attack Validity of B. & M. Loan.

BOSTON, June 23.—Minority stockholders today filed a bill in equity in the Supreme Court against the Boston & Maine Railroad Company attacking the validity of outstanding loans of the road and its leased lines amounting to $13,000,000, which the Legislature of 1915 authorized the company to pay. It is claimed that the act is unconstitutional, in that the Legislature exercised both executive and judicial powers, and also that it deprives persons of property without trial by jury.

HAMBY TRIAL BEGUN; JURY SOON CHOSEN

District Attorney Lewis Will Make Opening Address This Morning.

THRONG AT COURTHOUSE

Prisoner Retells of Desire for Speedy Trial and Death Rather Than Long Prison Term.

The trial of Gordon Fawcett Hamby, charged with the murder of two employes of the East Brooklyn Savings Bank, was begun yesterday in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, before Justice Lewis L. Fawcett. The day was devoted to selecting a jury. The twelfth juror was accepted shortly before 4 o'clock, and the proceedings were then adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning, when District Attorney Harry E. Lewis, who is conducting the prosecution in person, will make his opening address.

Long before the opening of the Court House, both the front and rear entrances to the building were surrounded by an eager, pushing crowd anxious to get a glimpse of the unusual prisoner. Policemen, especially detailed, cleared the Joralemon Street entrance as Hamby, handcuffed to Deputy Sheriff James J. Shortell, appeared. Hamby was dressed in the same gray suit he wore when he was brought back from Tacoma. It had been freshly pressed.

Hamby appeared pale and rather nervous as he took his seat behind that of Frank X. McCaffry, designated by the court to act as his counsel. In a short time he recovered his composure, and during the greater part of the time sat with his chin in the left hand, in conversation with the Deputy Sheriffs guarding him. Several times when prospective jurymen became entangled in their answers to questions Hamby smiled and seemed to enjoy their embarrassment.

District Attorney Lewis asked the veniremen the usual questions as to their feelings toward capital punishment. He impressed upon them that under the statutes of this State a man who in the act of committing a felony causes the death of another person is guilty of murder in the first degree, even if he did not intend to kill the person whose life was taken. Mr. McCaffry confined his questions to whether the veniremen had an open mind and could give his client a fair trial. "The only point you will be called upon to decide," he said, "is the identity of the man who entered the bank and committed the crimes, and whether that man is the defendant now on trial."

The jury as finally selected consists of:

JEREMIAH F. MOWER, foreman, 15 Linden Avenue, wholesale fish merchant.

THEODORE C. HILDEBRAND, 1,530 Putnam Avenue, accountant.

GEORGE HISCOX, 796 St. John's Place, salesman.

JAMES V. CONWELL, 748 Lexington Avenue, decorator.

DANIEL S. GOODING, 296 Carlton Avenue, salesman.

JOHN P. McGREEVY, 122 Third Place, painter.

HORACE G. TEELE, 604 Sixth Street, salesman.

AUGUSTUS P. HOFFMAN, 2,100 Dropsey Avenue, salesman.

JOSEPH J. IRWIN, 1,823 East Eighth Street, salesman.

MAXEY GOODMAN, 442 Fifteenth Street, salesman.

All of the jurymen are of middle age and nine of them are married.

When court adjourned Hamby was taken again to the prisoners' pen, where he talked for twenty minutes with newspaper men and detectives. He repeated the statements that he had made before concerning his anxiety to have the trial as brief as possible and his desire to die in the electric chair rather than spend a long term in prison. Hamby smoked cigarettes constantly while being interviewed and the fingers of his right hand showed plainly the yellow tobacco stains. Hamby admitted yesterday to the deputy sheriffs guarding him that he knew the whereabouts of the "short" man who was his partner in the East Brooklyn bank crime, but asserted that he would never "squeal" on him.

The attendance at the trial was limited to persons having business there.

AUTO DRIVER HELD ON HOMICIDE CHARGE

Car Crashing Into Sidewalk Hurls Man to Death and Injures Wife Probably Fatally.

BODY FALLS INTO AREAWAY

Owners of Car, One of Whom Was Driving, Held in $10,000 Bail for Examination.

The charge of felonious assault originally made against Louis Rose, 27 years old, of 10 East 108th Street, and Isidore Mekritz, 26 years old, of 49 West 116th Street, was changed to that of homicide following the death of Morris N. Spiegelglass, 34 years old, of 305 West 120th Street, who, with his wife, Eva, 28 years old, was struck by an automobile driven by Rose at an early hour yesterday morning on Seventh Avenue, between 120th and 121st Streets.

Spiegelglass died at Harlem Hospital, where he was taken after the accident, and his wife is unconscious at Mt. Sinai Hospital. Identification of Spiegelglass and his wife was made by Morris Wincler, a brother-in-law of Spiegelglass, whose home is at the same address.

When struck by the automobile Spiegelglass's body was hurled against the front of the building and dropped fifteen feet into an areaway below. His wife's hair was caught in the flywheel of the motor and she was dragged about twenty feet under the car.

From what the police were able to learn it was said that Rose and Mekritz are partners in a hacking business, having their garage at the corner of Seventh Avenue and 127th Street. According to the police Mekritz said that he and his partner had spent the day at Rockaway and were on their way to the garage when the accident occurred. Mekritz, they said, stated later that Rose, who is not a chauffeur and has run the car but a few times, had been anxious all day to be allowed to operate the machine, but had been persuaded not to do so owing to the congestion of holiday traffic, but in the early morning hours when they were almost home and there were but few machines on the streets, Mekritz turned the wheel over to Rose. Everything went well, the police say Mekritz is alleged to have said, until the car was approaching the crossing at 120th Street, when a big machine was seen coming west on that thoroughfare at a fairly high rate of speed.

A collision seemed inevitable, it is alleged, and Rose became confused. The driver of the other car, however, turned his machine north into Seventh Avenue in time to avert a crash, but Rose lost control of the car. It swerved to one side, and as it did so, Rose in his confusion, it is alleged, pushed down with his foot on the gas, sending the auto across the sidewalk at a high rate of speed, crashing through an iron fence that surrounded the building against which it finally came to a halt.

Spiegelglass and his wife were passing on the sidewalk at the time and were unable to dodge the automobile. The fence where the machine crashed through was torn away for a distance of fifty feet, and the radiator and guards of the auto were demolished. Neither Rose nor his companion were hurt by the crash.

Magistrate George W. Simpson, in the Washington Heights Court, held Rose and Mekritz in $10,000 bail each for examination on Wednesday.

SEEKS TO TAKE OVER UPTON

Government Petitions to Make Part of Camp Permanent.

A petition was filed in the United States District Court in Brooklyn yesterday, for the condemnation of a part of the property now included in the Camp Upton aggregating 6.245 acres. The camp is to be permanent. The property heretofore was leased to the Government. The entire area now being used as a camp will not be taken. The petition for the condemnation of the property was presented by United States Assistant District Attorney Charles J. Buckner, who will act for the Government in the proceedings.

The property mentioned in the petition includes the pumping stations and wells with the pipe lines, the roads leading from the camp and that part of the cantonment most used and designed for permanent purposes. There are thirty-eight names set forth in the petition as the parties owning the land sought to be condemned. The property involved is valued by experts at $230,000.

The petition will be brought up on notice before a Federal judge and commissioners will be appointed to determine the value of the land if the court itself determines that the Government is entitled to condemn the property.

TELL OF "HOLY OIL CURE."

"Healer" on Trial for Larceny in Defrauding Patients.

The trial of Joseph Barbera on a charge of grand larceny, in the alleged defrauding of many poor Italians by professing to heal the sick by the use of a crucifix and "holy oil" was begun yesterday before County Judge Louis D. Gibbs and a jury in the Bronx County Court. The oil, according to the alleged victims who testified, was rubbed on the patient and then the crucifix, accompanied by prayers and supplications on the part of Barbera.

Four witnesses appeared against Barbera, and all testified to substantially the same ceremony. Mrs. Rose Orlando, 44 years old, in whose apartment at 363 East 151st Street, the treatments are said to have been given, was a witness for the prosecution, although she is also under indictment together with Barbera. She testified that it was her duty to prepare the "holy oil," which, according to her, consisted of sweet oil, vinegar, and water.

Detectives Philip Murphy, Michael Foley, and James McCarton of the Morrisania Station, told of finding $34 in marked bills on Barbera at the time of his arrest. They said that the money had been given to Barbera by Frank Morasco, an ice dealer of 137 West 106th Street, on whose complaint the arrest was made. Barbera, who is 50 years old, is in the real estate business at 150 Nassau Street and lives at 325 Sydam Street, Brooklyn.

FAILS TO APPEAR AT TRIAL

Bail Bond of Man Accused of Abducting Young Widow Forfeited.

When the case of John E. Carey, a manufacturer of surgical instruments, reputed to be a man of means, who is charged with the abduction, in primitive fashion, of Mrs. Helen C. Waterman, a young widow, living at 234 Sterling Street, Brooklyn, was called yesterday in the Kings County Court, the defendant did not appear. Judge McDermott declared his bail bond of $5,000 forfeited, and issued a bench warrant for his arrest.

Carey met Mrs. Waterman some months ago, and they had been friendly. According to Mrs. Waterman, Carey drove up to her home in a taxicab one night in May, and after gaining entrance to the house, forcibly took her, against her will, to the cab and then to his apartment in Livingston Place, Manhattan. Detectives found her there later.

Counsel for Carey told the Court his client went to Atlantic City Friday to find some witnesses.

Will You Help The Home Building Campaign?

TODAY there is a great home buying and home building movement in the Boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens. It deserves to be encouraged. Lending money on mortgages will do this.

We have loaned $16,000,000 on mortgage since January first and are prepared to lend more as fast as investors take these mortgages off our hands.

They are good mortgages, all of them guaranteed by the Bond & Mortgage Guarantee Company to net 5% to the investor.

We have sold $892,000,000 of such mortgages and no investor has ever lost a single penny. No other investment offered to the public has any such record.

We have on hand a number of small mortgages as shown below to meet the usual July first demand from investors.

TORNADO WRECKED TOWN, KILLING 60

Three Funnel-Shaped Clouds Fell Upon Fergus Falls, Minn.

400 BUILDINGS LEVELED

MANY OTHERS MISSING

Houses at a Nearby Summer Resort Were Thrown Into a Lake.

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., June 23.—Telephone communication between Fergus Falls and the outside world was restored late this afternoon, when an estimate was made by Adjt. Gen. Rhinow that sixty persons were killed in the tornado that overwhelmed the town last evening.

Up to a late hour forty-seven bodies had been recovered and taken to temporary morgues. Ten to twenty more are thought to be lying beneath the wreckage which marks the sites of nearly 400 homes and stores leveled by the storm.

Search is being made among the ruins by electric light tonight. More than 150 persons with serious injuries are being cared for at the State Insane Hospital and Wright and St. Luke's Hospitals.

Arrangements are being completed to drag Lake Alice, a near-by Summer resort. Many persons at the lake were swept into the water, some believed. A large number of the Summer cottages which line its shores were blown far out into the lake.

Citizens say they believe that three storms struck the city in quick succession. Several persons assert that three funnel-shaped clouds were seen.

The first apparently struck the town from the northwest and tore through the Lake Alice district. This wrecked the Grand Hotel.

The second cloud brought driving rain and approached from the southwest. A third swept over the eastern section from the southeast.

Virtually the entire northwestern section of the city is in ruins. Public buildings and churches were destroyed, and the property loss will reach several million dollars.

State troops began searching the wreckage shortly after daylight. Fifty persons were in the Grand Hotel when the tornado came. About thirty are dead.

At noon it was announced that the bodies of forty-three persons had been removed from the wreckage and identified.

Special relief trains from St. Paul and Minneapolis arrived at Fergus Falls this morning.

The Ottertail County Court House, County Jail and Sheriff's residence were destroyed. At One Mile Lake, near Fergus Falls, four children of John Kreidler, a farmer, were blown into the lake and drowned.

George N. Woodhouse of Estevville, Iowa, owner of the demolished Grand Hotel, arrived in the city only a few minutes before the storm struck, to take personal charge of the hostelry. He was killed under the ruins.

Dr. V. W. Cowan, of McKeesport, Penn., traveling through Minnesota on a motor tour, had expected to spend Sunday in Fergus Falls at the Grand Hotel, but lost his way and was delayed by muddy roads. He was at Lake Park, nearby, when he saw the tornado, and hurried into the city to help in the rescue work.

Two members of the Federal Grand Jury panel were in the Northern Pacific Railroad Station and clung to the office safe, while the storm swept the station away over their heads.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 23.—Railroad officials say they are unable to obtain accurate information of the conditions caused by the storm. Efforts to learn the number of persons injured when the Greated Northern Oriental Limited was swept from the track have been unsatisfactory. Early reports said that only one girl was injured and her hurts were not of a serious nature. No mention has been made of the members of the train crew.

Information obtained from the passengers on the Oriental Limited said the rear coaches of the train, which numbered eleven cars, were lifted in the air by the tornado. Only the high banks of the cut, through which the train was passing saved the coaches from toppling over when the rear coaches slid into the hole gouged in the roadbed by the blast as it swept the baggage car out from the train.

The baggage car probably saved the others from going into Pelican River, which was only 200 feet ahead of the train when the storm came. Twisted across the rails, the baggage car effectually halted the rear coaches, which then toppled over against the bank, remaining almost upright.

WINS LONDON AERIAL DERBY

LONDON, June 22.—The revival of the London Aerial Derby on Saturday was won by Captain Gathergood. The winner made the flight of two circuits of London, aggregating 190 miles, in 87 minutes and 45 seconds, an average speed of 140 miles an hour. The best previous time was made by Hamelin in 1913 when he flew at an average speed of seventy-six miles an hour. The race has not been contested since 1914.

Captain Gathergood is an experienced pilot and has made a record in testing machines, having flown, it is said, eighty-seven different types of airplanes.

Captain Sir John Alcock, the pilot of the Vickers-Vimy machine which made the transatlantic flight, was unable to compete owing to other engagements.

PLANS LONG FLIGHT TODAY.

Will Attempt Non-Stop Trip from Florida to Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 23.—An attempt is to be made tomorrow to establish a new record for a one-man nonstop flying run, if the weather permits. Lieutenant H. J. Johnson of the Army Air Service, who made a world's record by making 457 consecutive loops, will start from the army field at Arcadia, Fla., in a De Haviland biplane to fly to the Atlantic City air post.

The distance is 933 miles. The biplane to be used is equipped with a Liberty motor and carries fuel to last ten hours.

Three seaplanes of 800 horse power flew to Atlantic City today and gave flying demonstrations, going far out to sea and returning. They circled several times over the million-dollar pier for the benefit of delegates attending the convention of the Master Railroad Mechanics' Association.

Propose to Curb Packers by Means of License System

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Federal control of the meat packing industry through a licensing system is proposed in identic bills introduced today by Senator Kenyon, Iowa, and Representative Anderson, Minnesota. The measures were drawn after conferences between Senator Kenyon and representatives of agricultural organizations. Senator Kendrick of Wyoming also introduced a meat packing control measure, framed on different lines.

Under both these plans the stockyards would be divorced from packing houses. The Kenyon measure puts supervision under the Secretary of Agriculture, while the Kendrick bill provides for the appointment of a commission.

ACCUSE TRACTION HEAD OF BURGLARY

SAFE BLOWERS IMPORTED

ST. LOUIS, June 23.—Robert McCulloch, President of the United Railways Company of St. Louis, today was charged with burglary in the second degree and larceny in connection with the theft, June 15, 1918, of referendum petitions against the street car company's franchise ordinance in an information issued by Circuit Attorney Lawrence McDaniel. The Circuit Attorney announced the case would be taken before the Grand Jury tomorrow.

McCulloch, whose salary was $25,000 a year, shortly afterward announced his resignation as operating manager of the street car company. Bruce Cameron, Superintendent of Transportation of the company, who already is under indictment on a burglary and larceny charge in connection with the theft of the petitions, also tendered his resignation. Both resignations were accepted by Receiver Rolla Wells.

The charges against McCulloch grew out of testimony given last week by J. C. Jackson, former Chief Special Agent of the company, at a hearing in a receivership suit, that McCulloch ordered the burglary and discussed the plans with him.

A safe in the offices of the Referendum League was blown on June 15, 1918, and the petitions stolen. Jackson testified at the hearing that he arranged the details of the robbery at the direction of McCulloch and that he brought three safeblowers from Chicago to do the work.

Witnesses who will be called before the Grand Jury besides Jackson are James F. Brady, confidential agent in the company's claim department, who testified that he forwarded $500 to Jackson in Chicago by McCulloch's orders; George W. Baumhoff, formerly General Manager of the St. Louis Transit Company, who stated that while the burglary was being investigated by the Grand Jury last Summer McCulloch said he did not expect to be indicted because three of the Grand Jurymen were his friends.

Circuit Attorney McDaniel said the investigation would not end until every person in St. Louis having any knowledge of United Railways affairs had appeared before the Grand Jury.

Following the issuance of the information a warrant for McCulloch's arrest was placed in the hands of the Sheriff. McCulloch appeared an hour after the issuance of the information in Judge Chauncey J. Kreuger's division of the Court of Criminal Correction and pleaded not guilty. His preliminary hearing was set for July 7. He gave a bond of $2,500.

McCulloch said he had no statement to make for publication. Asked if he would continue as President of the company, he merely answered: "I am the President."

McCulloch is expected to continue as President, but will have no control while the receivership lasts, and will receive no salary.

The State statutes prescribe a penalty of from two to five years' imprisonment for burglary in the second degree and larceny. It may be applied separately for each offense.

FLIGHT WEATHER STILL BAD.

Handley-Page Crew Now Fears Raynham May Start First.

Special to The New York Times.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., June 23.—Today's transatlantic weather was so bad, according to the reports gathered by the meteorological officers at St. John's, that Rear Admiral Mark Kerr, who had gone to that city for the week-end, did not even return to Harbor Grace.

The other three members of the Handley-Page crew could find nothing more exciting than a hurriedly organized football game to amuse them, and though they heard no direct weather reports, they correctly interpreted Admiral Kerr's failure to return as meaning there was no hope of starting the transatlantic flight today.

All members of the expedition are chafing at the long delay; it now having been nine days since the Vickers-Vimy got away for its successful crossing, and an equal period since the Handley-Page men expected to hop off, but were forced to accept delay and defeat on account of inadequate radiators. Added to the delay of enforced idleness in this small village, which offers little opportunity for diversion, and disappointment over the loss of a race for The Daily Mail's $50,000 prize, there is uneasiness for fear the Handley-Page headquarters may order some change in the flight plans, and anxiety lest Raynham in his rebuilt Martinsyde get off first.

All these factors are working together to make the delay unpleasant, and to increase the fliers' keenness to be away, though they realize they dare not leave until ideal weather comes, since therein lies their only hope of flying further than Alcock and Brown.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 23.—Vice Admiral Mark Kerr, head of the Handley-Page expedition, announced here tonight that he hoped to get away on Wednesday. He will start, he said, with the first strong westerly breeze.

Captain Frederick P. Raynham, who is preparing for his second attempt at the flight with a small Martinsyde biplane, said that he probably would await the next full moon, which is due about July 13. He expects to spend the intervening time making further tests of his plane.

MINE SINKS AMERICAN SHIP.

The Farnam, 3,655-Ton Freighter, Was Bound to Sweden.

LONDON, June 23.—The American steamer Farnam, from Baltimore, has been sunk by a mine explosion, according to a dispatch to Lloyd's from Gothenburg.

The Farnam was a vessel of 3,655 gross tons and owned by the United States Shipping Board. She was under assignment to the Earn Line Steamship Company of Philadelphia, and sailed from Baltimore May 16 for Gothenburg with coal. She was built in 1918 at Newark by the Submarine Boat Corporation.

HUGE AIR PAGEANT TO GREET NC FLIERS

Honor Escort of 60 Airplanes Will Meet Returning Aviators at Sandy Hook.

TO FLY AS SINGLE SQUADRON

Army and Navy Air Forces and Private Owners to Join in Mammoth Tribute.

The largest squadron of airplanes ever assembled over this city will fly out over New York Bay on Thursday morning as an honor escort to Lieut. Commander A. C. Read and his crew of five, who were the first men to cross the Atlantic in an airplane and who are returning on the steamship Zeppelin after receiving ovations in three foreign countries. It is expected that between fifty and sixty seaplanes and airplanes of all types will be in the squadron that greets the returning crews of the three American Navy NC seaplanes that started the Atlantic flight from Trepassey Bay under command of Commander John H. Towers on May 16.

It was the opinion of the officials of the Aero Club of America that no more graceful tribute or greeting could be given to the crews of the three seaplanes than to provide an honor escort of as many planes as could be assembled, and officers of the army and navy in command of the aviation camps near the city agreed with them. An attempt will be made by the Aero Club to have all the planes fly as a single squadron, and plans to this end are now being worked out.

It is expected that at least twenty seaplanes will fly out, probably as far as Sandy Hook, from the Naval Air Station at Rockaway Beach, whence the three NC planes started their journey to their hopping off place in Newfoundland on May 9. This squadron of planes probably will be accompanied by the naval dirigible C-4, commanded by Lieutenant J. J. Quinn, a sister airship of the C-5, which was carried away by a gale at St. John's on May 15, while she was awaiting favorable conditions for a flight over the Atlantic.

A squadron of more than twenty army airplanes will leave the army fields at Mineola to join the honor escort of navy planes, and it is expected that a plan of co-operation will be worked out by army and naval aviation officers so that the two squadrons of planes will fly as a single unit. In addition, the Aero Club of America has received word from Glenn H. Curtiss, who was, with American naval aviators, joint designer of the NC planes, that several seaplanes from his works at Garden City would join the big squadron.

Invite Private Airplanes.

Augustus Post, Secretary of the Aero Club, said that he had assurances from several other airplane manufacturers that some of their planes would join the squadrons, and a call has been sent out to the owners of all other airplanes to aid in the tribute to the Americans who made the epochal flight over the ocean. Some of the new police aviators will fly, and at the headquarters of the Aircraft Manufacturers' Association, at 501 Fifth Avenue, it was said that every effort would be exerted to have all the members represented by as many planes as they could assemble.

An effort is being made to induce Captain Eddie Rickenbacher, the "American ace of aces;" Major James A. Meissner, and other masters of aviation in the old Ninety-fourth Pursuit Squadron of the American army to pilot planes in the gigantic squadron, but no answers have been received from any of them yet. It is certain, however, that Eddie Stinson, the trick aviator, will perform his evolutions over the incoming Zeppelin. Ruth Law also may pilot one of the Curtiss planes.

"The greeting to Commander Read and the crew of the NC-4, and to Commander Towers, chief of the expedition, and the crews of the other two planes that met disaster because of the bad weather, should be the greatest aerial demonstration this city has ever seen," said Mr. Post. "Commander Read and the members of his crew were the first men to fly over the ocean, and their names already are famous in the history of aviation. The crews of these three planes in the expedition have added invaluable data to the science of aviation and they are all to be honored for their zeal and for their intrepidity."

At the headquarters of the Third Naval District yesterday it was said that an honor guard of bluejackets probably would be sent to the pier at Hoboken, and that Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, with members of his staff, official representatives of Secretary Daniels, and other naval officers probably would go down the bay on a navy boat to greet the returning aviators. It is expected that Mrs. Read, Mrs. Towers, Mrs. Richardson, and other members of the families of the aviators will be on the official boat. Captain N. E. Irwin of the Rockaway station also will go down the bay with members of his staff.

City's Official Greeting.

Murray Hulbert, the City Dock Commissioner, announced yesterday that he had accepted the invitation of the Aero Club of America to serve as Chairman of the committee that is to greet the aviators. He said that his boat, the Manhattan, probably would be available for the members of the honorary committee. It will leave Pier A a few hours before the Zeppelin is due to dock. Commissioner Hulbert said he might go as far as Sandy Hook to extend the official greeting of the Aero Club. The police boat Patrol will go down the bay with members of the Mayor's Committee to extend the official welcome of the city, and Grover A. Whalen, the Secretary of the committee, was at work yesterday on plans for their reception by the Mayor at City Hall and a public dinner to be given to them later.

A cablegram from Commander Read said that the crews probably would go to Washington immediately upon their arrival here, to report to the Navy Department. With the permission of the Secretary of the Navy they will return to this city for the dinner to be given by the Mayor's Committee and a function by the Aero Club of America, when medals will be presented to the members of the three crews.

The members of Commander Read's crew of the NC-4, all of whom are on the Zeppelin, are Lieutenants Walter Hinton and E. F. Stone, pilots; Ensign Charles Rodd, radio expert; Lieutenant J. L. Breese, Jr., and Chief Machinists' Mate E. S. Rhodes, engineers. Commander John H. Towers, commander-in-chief of the expedition, and four of the members of the crew of his airplane, the NC-3, also are on the Zeppelin. They are Lieutenant D. H. McCulloch and Lieut. Commander H. C. Richardson, pilots; and Lieutenant Braxton Rhodes and Boatswain L. R. Moore, engineers. Lieut. Commander R. A. Lavender, the radio expert on the NC-3, already has reported to Secretary Daniels.

Boatswain Lloyd R. Moore, one of the engineers of the NC-1, brought back the damaged plane to the Brooklyn Navy Yard several days ago. The other members of the crew of the NC-1 on the Zeppelin are Lieut. Commander P. N. L. Bellinger; Lieut. Commander M. A. Mitsher and Lieutenant L. T. Barin, pilots; Lieutenant Harry Sadenwater, radio expert, and Chief Machinists' Mate C. I. Kesler and Machinist Rasmus Christensen, engineers. The NC-4 is on her way to this country on the U. S. S. Aroostook, having been dismantled at Plymouth.

PERCENTAGE IMMIGRATION PLAN.

In this week's issue of The Annalist there is a description of the important Percentage Immigration Plan, now before Congress. Under this system the number of newcomers would be determined by the success of the United States in assimilating their predecessors. 10c on news stands, $4 a year.—Adv.

Two Children Killed By Army Airplane While Landing at Public Park in Boston

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 23.—Two children were killed, one seriously injured, and the observer hurt when the seventh airplane of the so-called "Flying Circus" landed at Franklin Field this afternoon after a flight from Albany, N. Y., sped along the ground some 120 feet and crashed into a tree. The dead are John Lawrence Bonaglia, 12, of 80 Canterbury Street, Dorchester, and Beatrice Rosenblatt, 8, of 78 Lainsdale Street, Dorchester. The injured are Sarah Weiner, 12, and Captain William Chandler, observer on the wrecked plane.

Lieut. Col. H. B. Claggett, in charge of the "Flying Circus" and pilot of the wrecked plane, said after the accident:

"I came in twice the other way, and being unable to land, as the field appeared crowded with children, I circled over again and then came in south-east. Nearing the ground I saw a number of children. I gave her the gun, but it was too late. I saw that I was slipping down and made every effort to regain speed that would take me into the air.

"It all happened in such a short time, and, due to the fact that I was already on the ground, the accident was unavoidable. I tried to make for the clearest spot that I could see, but even there were a number of children. There was only one other thing to do, head her into the air. This I did, and she doubled up. I jumped from the pilot's seat and made every effort to rescue those who had been injured."

It is estimated that there were a thousand children on the field, which the inadequate police force on hand was unable to keep out of the danger zone. The safe landing of six of the planes so excited the children that they would not obey orders. They all wanted to get close up to the machines. The planes descended just as the children were coming out of school after the afternoon session.

The "Flying Circus" came here from Dallas, Texas, via Dayton, Ohio, Buffalo, and Albany, and is here to assist in the recruiting campaign for men for the Air Service.

SENATE INCREASES ARMY AIR FUNDS

Approves Appropriation of $55,000,000 for Aviation Development.

MEETS IN NIGHT SESSION

May Authorize Purchase of Two Airplane Plants and Building of Dirigible Station.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Taking up the $888,000,000 annual Army Appropriation Bill today and continuing its consideration at a night session, the Senate tentatively approved an appropriation of $55,000,000 for the Army Air Service, an increase of $40,000,000 over the amount voted by the House.

Although the Army Bill was under consideration for nearly ten hours, little progress was made, action upon many important committee amendments being deferred until tomorrow, at the request of Senators. Among these was the one fixing the average strength of the army during the next fiscal year at 400,000 men. Action upon the amendment introduced during the day by Senator Fall, Republican, New Mexico, declaring the war at an end and directing the immediate return home of American military and naval forces, also went over.

Owing to the fact that the army bill as well as the navy and other appropriation bills must be passed before July 1, night sessions in the Senate this week are planned.

Plans of the War Department for the rapid demobilization of the army were revealed to the Senate tonight by Chairman Wadsworth, who said that while on July 1 the army would consist of 1,039,000 officers and men, this number would be reduced to 748,266 by July 31, 472,288 by Aug. 31, and from Sept. 30 for the next nine months under the 400,000 plan would consist of 322,000 officers and men. Under the House proposal for an army of 300,000 War Department estimates showed that to the last nine months of the fiscal year the army would consist of 195,835 officers and men, while under the War Department recommendations for an average of 500,000 it would be 448,400. Chairman Wadsworth said, however, that whatever else Congress fixes would be only temporary and would remain in effect until a permanent military policy has been established.

$230,000,000 for Transportation.

With brief discussion the Senate adopted the item of $230,000,000 for army transportation, a decrease of $5,000,000 from the House appropriation. It also adopted the committee recommendations for $85,000,000 for army subsistence, an increase of nearly $30,000,000, and that of $25,000,000 for clothing, an increase of $7,500,000.

The large increase in the bill for vocational training facilities, from $10,500 to $5,000,000, as recommended by the Military Committee, also was approved. Chairman Wadsworth said the House appropriation for this purpose was "gravely inadequate" and would prevent operation of the law offering vocational training to soldiers.

Increase in the appropriation for storage and shipping facilities from $22,750,000 to $45,000,000 also was adopted by the Senate after Mr. Wadsworth explained that the influx of supplies returned from abroad is overflowing all Government storage facilities.

The Senate also accepted its committee amendment appropriating $300,000 in place of the House provision of $100,000 for the maintenance and construction of post roads in Alaska.

To Purchase Aviation Plants.

In tentatively approving the air service appropriation the Senate authorized $962,000 for the purchase of the Curtiss-Elmwood plant at Buffalo, N. Y., $3,200,000 for the Dayton-Wright airplane factory at Dayton, Ohio, and $834,800 for a dirigible station and necessary buildings for the housing of airships in Burlington County, N. J. Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee reserved the right, however, to ask the Senate to reconsider its action on these provisions when the bill is taken up finally in the Senate.

A provision in the bill by which the War Department could continue to employ C. W. Hare, a Philadelphia business man, at a salary of $25,000 a year, as Director of Sales, was stricken out on a point of order made by Senator McKellar. Chairman Wadsworth, of the Military Committee gave notice that he would take steps later to have the provision reinserted.

Senator McKellar made an attack on Mr. Hare, reading testimony given to a Senate committee last session to the effect that, while serving as Assistant Director of Munitions at $1 a year, Mr. Hare also received a salary from a gas company in Philadelphia.

Senator Curtis, Republican, of Kansas, criticised the selling of airplanes which originally cost $20,000,000 for $3,000,000, but Chairman Wadsworth said testimony given to his committee indicated that they were obsolete.

AIRPLANES PATROL FORESTS

Army Fliers Cover 7,616 Miles in One Week in California.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Reports received by the War Department show that excellent service is being given by the aerial forest patrols in California. During the week ending June 21 fifty-three flights were made, in which 7,616 miles were covered in 7,046 minutes. Fifteen officers and men participated in these flights.

The Mather Field Staff at Sacramento, Cal., reports that during the week ending June 21 twenty-one flights were made over the national forests and four fires discovered and reported to the forestry service at Placerville, Cal. The total mileage of the patrol was 3,000, and the patrol pilots were fifty-three hours in the air.

The March Field Staff at Alessandro, Cal., reports twenty-four trips, occupying thirty-eight hours and covering 2,500 miles.

The Rockwell Field Staff at San Diego, Cal., reports eight flights in twenty-six hours and twenty-six minutes, covering a distance of 2,116 miles.

ARMY SPENT IN WAR $14,544,610,223

Total Is Given by Secretary Baker to the House Investigating Committee.

$12,704,822,234 USED HERE

Cost of Maintaining the Expeditionary Force Given as $1,839,787,989.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The total amount expended by the War Department from April 6, 1917, to June 1, 1919, reached $14,544,610,223, according to a statement sent by Secretary of War Baker today to the special House Committee to investigate the conduct of the war. Of this amount $12,704,822,234 was expended in the United States, while $1,839,787,989 was used in maintaining the American Expeditionary Force.

This, together with other items of war expenses, and a list of contractors with their affiliations, was given by Mr. Baker to the committee, about to begin its inquiry into all phases of the war, in reply to questionnaires propounded by the committee, of which Representative W. J. Graham of Illinois is Chairman. With this concrete information the committee will decide just where to start its investigation, which probably will last for several months, and will be pursued while the House takes its three-day recesses.

The expenditures during the period from April 6, 1917, to June 1, 1919, for Quartermasters' supplies, services, and transportation were $8,265,705,423. In the United States these expenditures were $7,142,250,947, and for the same purposes abroad the expenditures amounted to $1,122,454,496.

For ordnance supplies the total expenditures amounted to $4,142,483,822, divided as follows: In the United States $3,783,345,386, and $359,138,496 abroad.

For the Engineers Corps the War Department expended $298,003,436 in the United States and $25,603,565 abroad.

The expenditures made for the Signal Corps in the United States amounted to $435,762,509, and for the same branch of the service in the American Expeditionary Force $204,298,587.

The Adjutant General's Department used $128,601,757 in the United States and $8,517,848 abroad.

In the United States there was expended by the Provost Marshal General's Department $30,873,427, while no money was expended by this department abroad.

For contingent expenses not covered in the regular departments and not covered in the above there was expended in the United States $2,514,951 and $440,450 abroad.

For additional employes during this period there was spent $23,411,978 in the United States, while no return is given for such expenses abroad.

ALLIED TROOPS TO OCCUPY DANZIG

Armistice Concluded Between the Poles and the Ukrainians, Paris Hears.

PARIS, June 23.—The Supreme Allied Military and Naval Council met at Versailles today to consider details concerning the replacement of the German and Polish troops at Danzig with allied soldiers.

An armistice has been concluded between the Poles and Ukrainians, who have been fighting in Galicia and Volhynia, a dispatch from Warsaw states.

It is reported also that an agreement has been reached between the Poles and the Rumanians, so that neither will cross the river Dniester.

HOUSING BILLS SIGNED.

Governor Hopes They Will Be Incentive to Private Enterprise.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 23.—Governor Smith today signed two of the so-calling housing bills which were passed at the special season of the Legislature Monday night last.

The Governor also approved the bill introduced by Assemblyman Machold making an appropriation for mileage of the officers and members of the Senate and Assembly at the extraordinary session. The items are as follows: Mileage of Senators and officers of the Senate, $1,085.70; mileage of Members and officers of the Assembly, $5,917.50; total, $6,002.50.

The housing laws signed were the act to amend the banking law authorizing investments by saving banks in bonds and mortgages on unincumbered real property on which there is a building in process of construction to the extent of 60 per cent. of the appraised value of the property, and the act in relation to the tenement house law providing for four-family converted dwellings.

Governor Smith says that it is hoped that under this law numerous permits for reconstruction will be immediately filed and that private enterprises will aid freely in carrying out the provisions of the law so as to relieve the congested conditions now existing in the populous cities of the first class in the State.

BAKER'S PLEA FOR SOLDIERS

Asks Congress to Pass Bills Benefiting Them, Nurses, and Navy Men.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Secretary Baker today asked Congress to pass several bills relating to the War Department which failed in the last Congress. They include one authorizing payment of six months' pay to dependents of officers and enlisted men who lost their lives in the war, and another proposing retirement of members of the army nurse corps (female) after twenty years' service and on three-quarters pay.

Under other measures benefits of the War Risk Insurance act would be extended to West Point cadets and Annapolis midshipmen, and the pay of student aviators would be increased from $33 to $75 a month.

40 HURT IN WRECK ON ELEVATED LINE

Canarsie and Lexington Avenue Trains Collide in Brooklyn —Two May Die.

PANIC AMONG PASSENGERS

Walk Ties in Dark to Nearest Stations — Many Cut by Broken Glass.

Forty persons were injured, two of them seriously, in a rear-end collision between Gates Avenue and Halsey Street, on the Broadway elevated line in Brooklyn, at 11:20 o'clock last night.

A two-car Canarsie-bound train crashed into a Lexington Avenue train of three cars. The impact was so great that the Lexington Avenue train, which was stalled while the motorman was trying to put out a small fire on the track ahead of it, was pushed ahead over the ties a distance of fifty feet.

The motorman is William Kessler, 32 years old, of 192 Fountain Street, Brooklyn. His skull was fractured. Both he and an unidentified negro passenger were taken to the Bushwick Hospital, where it was said they probably would not recover.

Both trains were crowded, and a panic followed among the passengers who were thrown violently about the cars. Every window pane in the trains was shattered, and the passengers were showered with splintered glass.

A call was sent for ambulances to the St. Mary's, St. John's, Williamsburgh, Brooklyn, and Bushwick hospitals. Police reserves from the Ralph Avenue Station and a hook and ladder company were called upon.

Passengers whose injuries were not serious made their way on foot to either the Gates Avenue or the Halsey Street station. Many of the women and children were carried along the tracks to safety. The injured received temporary treatment from the ambulance surgeons, who climbed to the tracks by ladders.

A number of soldiers aboard the Lexington Avenue train aided in taking care of the passengers. The motorman of the second train was among the injured. He was badly crushed.

The rear end of the Lexington Avenue train, which was built of wood, was badly damaged, but the steel cars of the Canarsie train did not suffer so severely.

Several thousand persons collected about the scene of the accident, many of them believing friends or relatives had been in the accident.

COUNSELLOR POLK NOW UNDER SECRETARY

Change in State Department Under New Law—Gonzales First Ambassador to Peru.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Frank L. Polk of New York, Counsellor of the State Department and now Acting Secretary of State, was nominated today by President Wilson to be Under Secretary of State, a new office created under the 1920 Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation bill passed by the late Congress. The office of Counsellor of the Department is abolished by the law, which fixes the salary of the Under Secretary at $7,500. Three Assistant Secretaries are provided for.

William E. Gonzales of Charleston, S. C., now Minister to Cuba, was nominated by President Wilson to be Ambassador to Peru; Boaz W. Long of New Mexico, former Chief of the Latin American Division of the State Department, was nominated to be Minister to Cuba, and Benton C. McMillan of Tennessee to be Minister to Guatemala. The appointment of Mr. Gonzales to Peru is in accord with the agreement between that country and the United States to raise the rank of their diplomatic representatives. Mr. Gonzales will succeed Mr. McMillan, who is now Minister to Peru.

The appointment of Frank L. Nebeker of Salt Lake City as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Public Lands Division of the Department of Justice was announced by Attorney General Palmer. The nomination was sent to the Senate by President Wilson. Mr. Nebeker was a member of the Democratic National Committee from 1908 to 1916, and was Special Assistant to the Attorney General in charge of the prosecution of I. W. W. leaders. He succeeds Francis J. Kearful, who has resigned to resume the practice of law.

DOCTOR SHOT; WIFE IS HELD

Washington Heights Physician Is Probably Fatally Wounded.

Shortly after Dr. Thomas Tuggle, 56 years old, a physician of the Washington Heights district, returned from a call to his home at 523 West 140th Street late last night, he was shot and probably fatally wounded by his wife, Mrs. Jennie B. Tuggle, 46 years old, who is believed to have suddenly gone insane. Dr. Tuggle was in bed when the shots were fired, and Mrs. Tuggle held in one arm their adopted son, Woodrow, three years old, while she fired a revolver with the right hand.

Four shots were fired at Dr. Tuggle by his wife. Two of the shots took effect, one lodging in the left side of the breast and the second in the left side of the head. It is believed that the wounds are of a fatal character. But the physician rose from his bed, staggered to the stairs and managed to make his way to the front door. Standing on the front stoop, he blew a police whistle and Patrolmen Francis Rice and Edward Luby, of the West 152d Street Station answered.

Mrs. Tuggle after being examined by the police was removed to Bellevue Hospital for observation. The boy, Woodrow, was taken care of by a friend.

Movement in Germany Gaining Ground, Berlin Paper Says.

PARIS, June 23.—The movement for a military dictatorship in Germany is gaining ground, according to advices received by the American military authorities here, quoting the Kreuz-Zeitung of Berlin.

Die Freiheit, the Independent Socialist paper, says that the counter-revolutionary element is preparing to strike a blow against the Government.

SEEK WIDER WIRE STRIKE.

California Unions Would Include Entire Northwest.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23.—Representatives of striking telephone operators in California and Nevada and telegraphers in the city threatened today to call out the locals of the entire Northwest in an effort to settle their differences if the telephone company did not grant their demands.

The telegraphers' officials urged striking girl operators to serve as pickets before the Postal Telegraph Company's plant here. Operators' and linemen's officials waited today for an answer to the demands presented last week. Officials of the company held a conference, but made no announcement.

Uruguayan Officers Removed to Prevent Revolt by Army

BUENOS AIRES, June 23.—President Brum of Uruguay, according to dispatches from Montevideo, has issued a decree removing from the army all officers who are partisans of former President Viera, in order to prevent a projected revolution. Montevideo, it is said, is quiet.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 23.—After publication today of a decree separating officers from their commands, all the troops were ordered confined in barracks.

A sensation was caused by the action of President Brum, who, in the early hours of the morning, following a council with the General Staff, signed a decree removing the officers from their posts and also from office all partisans of former President Viera, who is now President of the National Administrative Council.

At the same time President Brum demanded the immediate resignation of the Chief of Police and the arrest of several regimental officers, including a brother of ex-President Viera.

The police, as well as the troops, are confined to their respective stations. Six hundred artillerymen are guarding the Government house.

CHANGE PROVISIONS FOR LIQUOR SEARCH

House Judiciary Committee Substitutes the Regulations of the Espionage Act.

CUT OUT MINIMUM FINES

Provides That State Gets Surplus Over Penalties for Liquor Seized in Transportation.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The provision of the prohibition enforcement bill permitting search of private houses for contraband liquor when the warrant was sworn to "by at least two creditable persons," was stricken out today by the House Judiciary Committee. The system of search as provided in the Espionage act was substituted.

Under provisions of the Enforcement act as tentatively modified today in committee, transportation of intoxicating liquors in automobiles, aircraft, or other vehicles would prove an expensive undertaking if the owner were caught. As the bill originally stood, it stipulated that the vehicle should be sold at public auction and the difference between the selling price and amount of the fines and the costs should be refunded to the owner. The committee changed the provision today to provide that any surplus which might remain after the fines and costs were paid should be given to the State.

The committee also tentatively agreed to eliminate minimum penalties attached to violations of the law, for first offenses, and to permit the Judge to use his own discretion in sentencing offenders.

THIEVES 'DOPED' SOLDIERS

Army Officer Declares Four Died from "Drugged" Whisky.

Lieutenant John M. Finnerty of the Provost Guard asked the War Camp Community Service yesterday to warn the uniformed men using its clubrooms, canteens, and sleeping quarters to accept cigarettes only from agents of recognized relief organizations or from persons they know.

"There have been a number of cases recently," said Lieutenant Finnerty, "where the Provost Guards have found soldiers and sailors unconscious in doorways. In every case the service man had lost everything of value. They are always drugged and always tell of having received free a package of cigarettes. We heard of this drugged cigarette game about two months ago, and the men used to say they had received the cigarettes from a woman. Now it seems there are other crooks who are working the game, and I want every man in uniform to accept no smokes from any person they do not know."

Lieutenant Finnerty said that he had learned of several cases in which service men had been supplied with drugged whisky. In four cases recently, he said, the whisky had been too heavily drugged and the soldiers had been found dead in hallways.

MAY CALL OUT MACHINISTS.

Talk in Waterbury of Extending the Present Strike.

WATERBURY, Conn., June 23.—Although the number of strikers who went back to work today exceeded the number of new strikers, the majority of the 6,000 striking employes of local brass mills are still out. There is talk on the street of a machinists' strike, but their plans are known only to themselves, as they have not presented any demands to the factories. Six representatives of the strikers appointed a committee today to seek permission from Mayor Sandland to hold a mass meeting, at which a new set of demands will be drawn up. The new demands will be that the Workers' Union be recognized and that an increase in wages be given.

The saloons are still closed although a committee of saloon keepers called on the Mayor and asked to have the ban lifted. The suburban trolley lines to adjoining "wet" towns are crowded on almost every trip. Naugatuck saloon keepers are profiting by the strike in Waterbury.

There has been no attempt to place pickets at the factory gates although there have been several arrests on the charge of intimidation, growing out of attempts on the part of the strikers to influence workers to walk out.

VOTE ON STRIKE IN OMAHA.

Sixty Locals May Walk Out in Sympathy with Striking Teamsters.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., June 23.—A dozen different labor unions are tonight voting on the question of calling a general strike in Omaha on Wednesday, and by Wednesday morning all the sixty labor locals affiliated in the Central Labor Union will have voted upon the question. The Executive Committee of the Central Labor Unions has already gone on record as favoring a general strike, and the different locals are now voting a ratification of the action of the Central body.

Street car conductors and motormen, plasterers, tailors, barbers, painters, building laborers, locomotive firemen, egg candlers, and packing house working men are among those voting tonight. A number of locals balloted on Sunday evening but the result will not be made known until Wednesday.

More than ninety per cent. of the ten thousand workmen in the packing plants are members of the union and a strike in that industry would cause a shutdown of all the big packing houses in the city.

The unions are threatening a general strike to force employers to settle along the lines of all the demands of the striking teamsters and truck drivers.

3,700 GO ON STRIKE IN PRODUCE TRADE

Drivers, Teamsters, and Porters Demand Higher Wages and Shorter Hours.

CITY FACES SHORTAGE

Walkout Threatens Loss of Half a Million Dollars' Worth of Fruit and Vegetables.

700 CARLOADS TIED UP

Shipments Are Diverted to Other Cities—Employers and Workers to Meet Today.

Unless negotiations this morning result in the settlement of the strike of 3,700 drivers, teamsters, and porters in the fruit and vegetable trade, which was called yesterday morning, New York City will face a serious shortage of fruit and vegetables, and the thousand or more carloads now here or arriving this morning will be a total loss. Even with an adjustment of the differences today the loss will be considerable, in the opinion of the dealers. There arrived yesterday between 500 and 700 carloads of fruit and vegetables, valued at $300,000, and there will arrive this morning at least 500 more cars. Merchants notified shippers of the situation here and asked them to divert their shipments to other cities.

The strike was called by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Local 202, with headquarters at 205 Chambers Street, when the commission merchants refused to meet the demands for increased pay and shorter hours. Strike officials said that the demands were as follows: Drivers of single trucks to receive $28 a week; teams, $32 a week; chauffeurs of trucks under two tons, $30 a week; over two tons, $36 a week; nine hours work for both drivers and chauffeurs and $1 an hour for overtime. They asked that the head porter be paid $35 a week and the second porter $30 a week for eight hours' work, and extra porters to receive $6 a day and 75 cents an hour for overtime. Porters have heretofore been earning $35 to $40 a week, strike officials said, but the hours ran from eighteen to twenty-two a day.

An unsuccessful effort was made in the afternoon by a committee representing the State Board of Mediation, composed of Michael J. Reagan and John J. Dealin, to settle the strike. They met with a committee of strikers after the committee had learned the attitude of the produce men at a conference earlier in the day, at which the employers were represented by L. J. Lippman, A. W. Frost, George W. Nix, J. E. Reid, and A. L. Lempkau. At the close of the conference it was announced that a meeting between committees representing the strikers and the produce dealers would be held this morning at 10 o'clock.

Joseph B. Ropp, Secretary and Treasurer of the union, said that the men were unanimously opposed to returning to work until every dealer had signed the agreement. He said that at a meeting of the union earlier in the day 400 members had voted unanimously against going back to work last night, and also had repudiated the agreements signed with the smaller dealers, who they accused of assisting the larger jobbers to unload their produce.

West Street, from Beach Street to Desbrosses Street, was piled high yesterday with perishable fruits and vegetables. Special guards were placed on duty to watch the commodities last night. The dealers expressed the hope yesterday afternoon that they would be able to move about 10 per cent. of the shipments last night.

L. J. Lippman, Chairman of the joint committee representing the New York Section of the National Commission Merchants' Association and the Fruit and Produce Dealers' Trade Association, issued a statement, in which he presented the produce men's side of the controversy. He also gave out a copy of a telegram that had been sent to the Federal Trade Board at Washington, the Governor of the State, the Director General of Railroads at Washington, and Mayor Hylan, in which the hope was expressed that by the combined support and co-operation of these agencies some immediate solution could be found. The full responsibility for the strike was placed on the union by Mr. Lippman.

The strike does not affect the delivery of merchandise received through the American Railway Express Company. The commission merchants receive daily thousands of packages by express. There are many cities in the West, and in the New England States, and also in Canada, which will be affected by the strike here, in the opinion of local dealers, as they receive their fruits and vegetables through New York.

In Jersey City some 200 truckmen and drivers employed by various New York commission houses went on strike late Sunday night, and left a considerable quantity of produce, vegetables, and fruit in the Jersey Central, and Pennsylvania Railroad yards.

In its market report for yesterday the Bureau of Markets of the United States Department of Agriculture, after noting the strike and the resultant accumulation of fruits and vegetables on the piers, especially at Pier 28, the downtown Pennsylvania Terminal, said:

"There were absolutely no sales made up to 8 o'clock this morning, as the buyers have been dissatisfied since the ruling made some time ago requiring them to pay cartage charges from the docks, and they are making no efforts to assist the receivers by offering to deliver their own produce. The longshoremen are also in sympathy with the strikers and refuse to assist in handling perishables on the docks. Some effort is being made by the receivers to truck some of their produce to the stores through their own salesmen, who are acting as loaders and drivers. Many receivers are refusing to sign for the produce consigned to them."

SOME BAY STATE CARS RUN.

International Union May Revoke Charters to Men Who Quit.

BOSTON, June 23.—The strike of union carmen of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, which started yesterday, continued generally effective today in cities and towns north of Boston, except Gloucester, where the men remained at work.

On the south side of this city cars were operated on full schedules, the union men having decided to follow the advice of W. D. Mahon, President of the Carmen's International Union, and defer strike action pending his efforts to negotiate with the company.

In East Weymouth the carmen refused to abide by the strike vote, and after voting to seek reorganization separate from the Quincy local union, operated their cars as usual.

In a public statement, President Mahon said:

"The Bay State carmen are working under a contract which provides for arbitration. They have broken this contract, and unless they follow my order to return to work, the International Union will revoke their union charters."

COTTON STRIKE ENDS.

Lancashire Workers Get 48-Hour Week and 30 P. C. Wage Increase.

MANCHESTER, June 23.—The strike of the cotton mills workers in Lancashire was settled today on the basis of the workers obtaining a forty-eight-hour week and a 30 per cent. increase in wages.

Work will be resumed June 30.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular Pending Peace Settlement—Call Money Goes to 10 Per Cent.

Irregularity prevailed throughout yesterday's stock market, the trading being of a halting, hesitant type which reflected a degree of doubt as to the course of outside events. Paramount in the minds of most traders during the early hours was the question of whether Germany would set her hand to the Peace Treaty, admitting the unconditional surrender demanded by the Allies. While there was a certain degree of buoyancy at the opening of the market, with many of the issues higher than their previous close, it soon became evident that commitments were being entered into cautiously and that underneath a certain degree of strength there was nevertheless a quiet liquidation of long holdings.

Sentiment became a medley of hopes and fears during the balance of the day. Even the news shortly after noon that the Germans had agreed to sign the Peace Treaty unconditionally, did not serve to brighten the market except sporadically. The tinge of uncertainty was still present, not too much faith apparently being pinned to the word sent out from Weimar. The closing of the market was something of a balance between gains and losses, but the gains were not large, except in expectional instances, and the losses were seldom more than fractions.

The somewhat disconcerting element of higher money rates entered into considerations during the latter half of the trading session. The memory of the sharp reaction which followed high money rates some few days ago is still too fresh in the minds of the trading public for an abnormal call money rate to be easily overlooked. Although renewals were made on the basis of 6 and 6½ per cent. for mixed and industrial collateral, respectively, the last hour found the relative rates at 6½ and 8 per cent., and before the close 10 per cent. was ruling on both classes of collateral. Considering the trend of outside events, with their uncertainties, and the high money rate in conjunction, the market bore up decidedly well, there being a firm undertone throughout the last hour. The stringency in money was attributable partly to the reported calling of loans by out-of-town banks. It has been realized for some time that anticipation of the July requirements would probably cause a tightening of money, but the fact that the higher rates ruled yesterday was somewhat surprising to many because of the interim of a number of days which still remains. The interior banks were evidently of a mind that ample preparation for the July disbursements was the wisest course.

In the minds of some traders who, during the last few days, have been actively engaged on the short side, there was disappointment that the market did not react on the news of Germany's willingness to sign the Peace Treaty. This was based on the idea that once good news is out there is a disposition generally to sell stocks. In this one case, however, precedent was set at nought. Some of the issues, among them several high-priced favorites, made noteworthy gains during the day, and there was active demand for stocks of the tobacco and the so-called food group, two issues in the latter class mounting to new high levels for the year.

The foreign exchange market was somewhat heavy without there being any market changes. Sterling moved slightly against London. While a break in francs seemed imminent during the early part of the day, the net change was not great. The neutral exchanges, with the exception of Swiss francs, which were rather weak, showed little variance from the preceding close.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Peace.

Wall Street received the report that Germany would sign the Peace Treaty without particular enthusiasm, as far as the stock market was concerned. The professional traders have maintained for some days that the final surrender was being discounted, and that when peace actually came a majority of stocks would be a sale. That prices failed to decline sharply when the news was received served to show that these market prophets were wrong in their estimate, and while the general list continued irregular, there were numerous instances of spasmodic buying strong enough to advance some of the more active specialties. The food stocks were strong on the assumption that peace meant a foreign demand even greater than had been expected.

Foreign Credit Negotiations.

The suggestion in some quarters in the financial district yesterday, that the Federal Reserve Board and New York bankers were not working along the same lines in planning for the extension of broad credits to European nations, found almost immediate denial in authoritative quarters. Conferences are being held daily in Wall Street as to the best lines upon which such credits may be arranged. It was asserted that both the local bankers and the Federal Reserve Board were working to the same end. Europe must be financed and both agencies were doing their best to find the proper machinery for such action.

A Changed Market.

For the first time in many weeks there was a pronounced change noticed in the market yesterday. To those who watched the tape it became apparent that in place of the buoyancy of not long ago, when the market turned for higher levels, there was yesterday a decided degree of dullness, the market apparently going dead on the rallies. Yet there was always considerable activity to augment a tendency toward the decline.

Food Stocks in Demand.

The so-called food shares were in demand throughout the day, vying for a place of prominence with the tobacco issues. Corn Products was one of the features, with an advance of more than 4 points. A new high record for all time was touched at 77⅜. Recent rumors have tended to help this issue, one of them being to the effect that the company was extending its foreign interests. United States Food Products also moved forward into new high ground, but reacted in the last hour, so that the net gain was less than a point.

Superior Steel Cuts Dividend.

The Directors of the Superior Steel Company yesterday reduced the quarterly disbursement from $1.50 a share to 75 cents a share. The dividend is payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 18. The reduction is a commentary on the situation of steel companies during the second quarter of this year. The more firmly intrenched will not be obliged to make any dividend cuts, except from the point of view of conservatism, but it is fair to assume that earnings will be far from favorable. As a matter of fact, the steel companies are not thinking so much of the past as they are of the future. The hope is held out that the last half of this year will show results which will offset in large measure the unfavorable conditions of the early reconstruction period.

Copper Price Holds Firm.

While it is true that the demand for copper has fallen off until the market is described as dull, the fact also remains that the price holds firm. It is believed, without official confirmation attaining, that the copper producers are determined to uphold the 17⅜-cent price in the belief that they can get this figure from European consumers once the Peace Treaty has been signed. English, French, and Italian stocks of copper are abundant, but the other countries, particularly Germany and Austria, it is understood, are quite bare of the metal.

Baldwin Locomotive.

The upward turn of Baldwin Locomotive to better than 110 has been associated with a variety of rumors that do credit to the inventive genius of the speculative following in this issue. The proximity of dividends on the common shares having been denied officially and therefore being useless as a market argument, there was a report yesterday that the directors of the company were planning a division of the present shares on a four to one basis. It was short lived, however, for a director of the company was quoted as saying that the proposal was ridiculous and, furthermore, that no such proposal had ever come before the board.

Demand for Steel Increases.

The demand for steel and iron is reported to be better than for some time. Certain companies in the Pittsburgh district are now engaged in blowing in furnaces, whereas not long ago they were blowing them out. Many of the manufacturing plants are now working at about 70 per cent. of capacity. When it is remembered that the capacity of nearly all the steel mills of the country has been increased over that of the pre-war period, it is safe to assume that the present percentage of operation represents something closely akin to capacity operation in 1914. With the increase apparent now, overhead is being reduced, and if prices follow the course of demand it seems that the steel companies will before long be favorably situated, even though high costs continue to prevail.

U. S. Rubber Advances.

One of the strongest issues in yesterday's training was United States Rubber, the common shares going as high as 128 and later reacting a point and a quarter. This issue continues to be something of a mystery, for it is asserted that dividends are not to be expected in the immediate future. On the other hand, assets behind the common stock are known to be high, and this has undoubtedly made an appeal to those who buy for the long pull. At the same time a speculative element has been brought in. The strength of the stock, however, implies that there is no timidity on the part of holders.

Low-Priced Rails.

Many of the low-price rails have been bid up several points in recent sessions, there being a disposition on the part of some to overlook the present unsettled railroad conditions in the hope that with eventual clarification there will be a substantial increase in the value of the stocks of the carriers. Texas & Pacific has been bid up both because of the business which it is doing as a railroad and because of its claim to oil lands and the drilling operations which it is conducting thereon. It is now reported that Missouri Pacific, for some time heavily interested in Texas & Pacific, has increased its holdings. This has led to an advance in the Missouri Pacific shares which stood up well in yesterday's trading.

Trading in Small Blocks.

That which appears to prove that the large operators are not in the present market, and that there is a widely diversified public interest, is the size of the blocks of stocks traded in. A glance at the tape shows that the 1,000 and 2,000 share lots are decidedly infrequent. Most of the ticker run is of the 100 and 200 share variety, even the 500-share lots being exceptional. For all that the trading steadily mounts beyond the million-share level, although the margin above this is not by any means as great as several weeks ago.

A Record Broken.

When yesterday's trading went beyond 1,000,000 shares a new record for the New York Stock Exchange was set, there having been forty-five consecutive million-share days in the present bull market. The previous record of forty-four consecutive days was made in 1901. Saturdays in both cases are excepted, as the session on that day is of only two hours, and million-share Saturdays are almost as infrequent as 2,000,000-share regular days.

LIFTS TIN TRADE BAN.

War Industries Board Announces Purchasing May Be Resumed.

The War Industries Board has announced that all restrictions on trading in tin by consumers, dealers, jobbers, and smelters, have been discontinued. Licenses to purchase tin are no longer required. Import restrictions on pig tin and metal alloy containing tin, when imported from the countries of origin, will be removed Aug. 1. In the meantime, the War Industries Board, and the War Trade Board will continue to keep supervision over tin. Until Aug. 1, all importations will be consigned to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

All the interallied tin, consisting of 10,160 tons, has been sold. The depletion of this stock has been going on steadily for some time. An estimate of the supply on hand in the United States indicates there is sufficient to provide for all requirements, assuming that consumption is on a normal basis, until the end of October.

Consumers whose stocks are low may replenish their supplies by purchase. Any consumer having such tin for sale is required to notify the American Tin and Steel Institute. The needs of consumers will be satisfied so far as possible, if application is made to the Institute.

Crucible Steel Declares Dividend.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 23.—The Directors of the Crucible Steel Company of America met here today and declared a 1½ per cent. dividend on the common stock for the quarter. They also elected to the board of directors, W. H. Childs, President of the Barrett Company of New York; August Heckscher, President of the New Jersey Zinc Company, and Judge Nathan L. Miller of New York.

Prices Firm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, June 23.—Prices were firm on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 62 francs 80 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 29 francs 52 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 70 centimes. The dollar ranged from 6 francs 35 centimes to 6 francs 40 centimes.

Bonus Stocks

Common stocks given as a bonus frequently attain great value.

A strong electric light and power company with large earnings pays 7% on its preferred stock, now offered at par with 80% in common stock as a bonus.

Total Trade of United States for Year Ending with June Will Be About $10,000,000,000.

The position of the United States in international trade is shown by a statement in the foreign trade record issued by the National City Bank, that "the United States is now supplying one-half of the manufactures entering international trade." The non-manufacturing sections of the entire world, it is asserted, are looking to this country for a large proportion of their supplies.

In discussing conditions, the bank statement says:

Prior to the war the United States was supplying about one-sixth of the manufactures entering international trade; in the year which ends with this month we have supplied about one-half. Manufacturers entering international trade in pre-war years averaged about $7,000,000,000 per annum, but with the suspension of exports by certain of the great manufacturing countries of the world, notably Germany, Austria, and Belgium, and the great reduction in exports by the other European manufacturers, Great Britain, France, and Italy, the value of manufactures other than war materials entering international trade was temporarily reduced, and the total value of the manufactures entering world commerce in the fiscal year 1919 is probably little more than $6,500,000,000, of which the United States supplied about one-half.

Manufacturers exported from the United States in the calendar-year 1918 aggregated $3,395,000,000, exclusive of those sent to our own noncontiguous territories of Hawaii and Porto Rico, which are not included in the figures of foreign trade. A compilation by the National City Bank of New York shows that the exports of manufactures from the United States has averaged $265,000,000 per month during the ten months of the fiscal year, for which figures are now available, and in the latest month, April, were $290,000,000, thus justifying an estimate of over $3,000,000,000 as the record for the fiscal year ending with June, 1919, of which nearly two-thirds is included in the period following the close of the war.

The "non-manufacturing" area of the world, which was prior to the war accustomed to draw its manufactures chiefly from Europe and the United States, consists of South America, Africa, Oceania, Asia, except Japan, and all of North America outside the United States. Manufactures formed, prior to the war, about 66 per cent. of our exports to Asia, 85 per cent. of those to South America, 85 per cent. of those to Oceania, 75 per cent. of those to Africa, and 55 per cent. of those to North America. With the fall off of available manufactures from Europe our exports to all those areas have enormously increased. Our total exports to Asia increased from $115,000,000 in the fiscal year 1914 to about $550,000,000 in the fiscal year ending with June, 1919; to South America from $123,000,000 in 1914 to nearly $400,000,000 in 1919; to Oceania from $54,000,000 in the pre-war period to $190,000,000 in the current year; to Africa from $28,000,000 to $75,000,000, and to North America, which also takes its manufactures chiefly from the United States, the increase is from $329,000,000 in 1914 to approximately $1,275,000,000 in the year which ends with this month, and most of these phenomenal gains occur in manufactures.

The United States is, in fact, the only manufacturing country of the world other than Japan showing an increase in its exports of manufactures during the war period.

The total trade of the United States in the fiscal year ending with June will be the highest on record, and may cross the $10,000,000,000 line. For the eleven months ended with May, for which official figures are now available, the grand total is $9,111,000,000, against $8,949,000,000 in the full fiscal year 1917, the highest record ever made for an entire fiscal year. Thus the grand total for the eleven months ended with May exceeds that of any full year in the past, and should the June figures equal the monthly average of the eleven months already elapsed, the grand total for the fiscal year ending with June 30, 1919, would be over $10,000,000,000.

NEW FRENCH TAX PLAN OUT.

Klotz Expects It to Increase Revenue by 550,000,000 Francs.

PARIS, June 23.—New taxation proposals, estimated to yield nearly 650,000,000 francs, were presented to the Chamber of Deputies today by Louis Klotz, the Minister of Finance.

The proposals include an increase in the inheritance taxes of 3 per cent. on legacies of 10,000 to 50,000 francs and 7½ per cent. on legacies of 10,000,000 francs and upward. Other duties will remain the same, while legacies under 2,000 francs will not be taxed. It is proposed that hereditary rights to intestate estates be suppressed for relatives beyond the fourth degree. The increase in inheritance taxes, it is estimated, will yield 95,000,000 francs.

A tax of 5 per cent. on incomes that have increased as compared with 1918, the Finance Minister said, will yield 100,000,000 francs. The Minister expects that a supertax of 15 per cent. on war profits will bring in 350,000,000 francs.

18,000	June 1, 1923	24,000	June 1, 1926	434,500	Dec. 1, 1928

Denominations: $1,000 and $500 bonds in all maturities; $100 bonds in 1928 maturity only.

Property Mortgaged: The bonds are a direct closed first mortgage on the land in fee and on the building, which is an apartment hotel, twelve stories in height, of reinforced concrete fireproof construction, with brick and stone facing and terra-cotta trimming. The building will have 285 rooms, each equipped with bath, and arranged so that they can be used singly or in suites. On the first floor are to be the lobby, a cafe to seat six hundred, and an auditorium. The land fronts 110 feet on Tenth Street and 165 feet on Third Avenue South.

Value of Property: The property is appraised at $910,000.

Location: A residential section within five minutes' walk of the business center of Minneapolis. This property is in the path of the city's progress, and with the rapid growth of the nearby business section, values should continue to enhance, as they have for years.

Earnings: The net annual earnings after deducting all expenses are conservatively estimated at $100,000. This is over two and one-half times the greatest annual interest charge. This estimate includes a liberal allowance for vacancies. The demand for apartment hotel accommodations in Minneapolis is so great that vacancies should be reduced to a minimum. The Curtis Court, adjoining, is filled to capacity and has a long waiting list, and the Annex is being erected to meet this demand.

Borrowing Corporation and Guarantor: The bonds are the obligation of the Curtis Hotel and Apartment House Construction Company of Minneapolis and are unconditionally guaranteed as to the payment of principal and interest by Theodore F. Curtis and Linn F. Melony, whose holdings in the original Curtis Court Apartments and in other Minneapolis real estate are substantial and with whom we have had satisfactory dealings.

32,500	May 15, 1923	35,000	May 15, 1926	425,000	May 15, 1929

Denominations: $1,000 and $500 bonds in all maturities; $100 bonds in 1929 maturity only.

Property Mortgaged: These bonds are secured by a closed first mortgage on the land in fee and building located at 16th and "R" Streets, N. W., Washington, D. C. The Chastleton Apartment Building will be an eight-story fireproof building of the most modern construction. It will contain 155 apartments of from one to four rooms, kitchen and bath. All of the apartments above first floor have private porches off the living room. There will be two passenger elevators and one service elevator and the building will contain every other modern facility for the comfort and satisfaction of the tenants. The land fronts 94 feet on 16th Street and 252 feet on "R" Street.

Value of Property: We have appraised the mortgaged security, building and land, at $975,000.

Location: The property is situated on the northeast corner of 16th and "R" Streets, less than a mile from the White House. Sixteenth Street is generally regarded as one of the best boulevards in Washington, and is the location of many of the foreign embassies.

Earnings: The net annual rental income, after deducting operating costs, taxes and insurance, with an ample allowance for vacancies, repairs and decorations, is estimated at $112,920. This is more than two and one-half times the greatest annual interest charge and much more than ample to meet both interest and principal requirements.

Borrowing Corporation: The bonds are the direct obligation of The District Apartment Corporation, a company controlled by strong financial interests.

Price, Par and Accrued Interest on both issues to net 6%.

MONTHLY DEPOSITS: In accordance with the usual provisions of the Straus Plan, in both of the above bond issues monthly deposits of principal and interest are required so as to provide systematically for the payment of both principal and interest in cash on the days when due and to make certain that the profits as received each month are applied to the payment of the bonds. Each monthly deposit is one-twelfth of the total amount of principal and interest coming due during the year.*

We have purchased the above issues with our own funds after careful investigation and recommend them as thoroughly safeguarded investments.

Canadian-American Paper Trade

During the last fiscal year Canada exported approximately $100,000,000 of pulp, paper and pulpwood. Eighty-two per cent. came to the United States. This phenomenal growth of a basic Canadian industry and the part which American trade has played in it is shown by the following tabulation:

	—Fiscal Year Ending March— 1919	1918	Per Cent. Increase
Canada's Total Export	$99,260,000	$71,820,000	27.6
Exports to U. S.	82,090,000	67,928,000	21.7
Per Cent. to U. S.	82.7

American importers of pulp and paper, and American exporters of pulp and paper machinery and supplies will find the services of the New York Agency of the Union Bank of Canada at their disposal. With 360 branches at all strategic commercial points throughout Canada, the Union Bank of Canada is in a position to give efficient service.

The Best Way to Obtain a Large Income is in a conservative way is to purchase preferred stocks which are well protected by property and by earnings. Many of the strongest corporations have considered it advisable to put on the market preferred stocks, rather than bonds. This method of financing has indirectly saved money for the borrowers through decreased taxation and has directly improved the income of investors. For our recommendations of preferred stocks ask for Circular No. 457.

The Price of Crude Oil

Will the price of crude oil be reduced this summer? The question has been foremost in the minds of oil producers recently. If foreign needs for petroleum products are to be taken as an indication, it does not appear that supply and demand will justify reduction. Requirements through renewed industrial activity are certain to make themselves felt heavily, once the blockade is definitely lifted, in view of the shortage in the European supply caused by the war.

CITY MAY LICENSE BROKERS ON CURB

Welfare Committee to Report Ordinance Today for Action by Aldermen.

AIM TO REMEDY EVILS

Other Measures Under Consideration to Safeguard Public Against Speculators.

In a statement issued at the City Hall yesterday, Alderman William F. Quinn, Republican, criticised conditions in the Broad Street Curb Market, asserting that if those conditions were not remedied it would mean that the Curb Market must be abolished entirely. Alderman Quinn said that he had introduced an ordinance providing for licensing Curb brokers for an annual fee of $1,000 and putting them under a $25,000 surety bond, which ordinance, he said, was now in the Committee on General Welfare.

Alderman William T. Collins, Democrat, and Chairman of the Committee on General Welfare, said that Alderman Quinn's ordinance with certain amendments would be reported from committee today for action by the board. Chances are said to favor the enactment of the ordinance.

In his statement, Alderman Quinn began by pointing out that the Government had educated more than 15,000,000 men and women as bond buyers through various Liberty Loan campaigns and that these persons would be easy prey for the stock jobbing swindlers and bucket shops. He declared that no protection was given by the District Attorney or Police Commissioner of this city. His statement reads in part as follows:

"The first ordinance dealing with the matter, which I introduced, is not complete and will not take care of the entire situation, but there will be two more to follow, which will cover every phase of this situation and make it impossible for the operations of stock swindlers to continue if the other ordinances are passed and put into operation.

"The new ordinances will provide for the licensing, not only of the Curb brokers, but also all stocks traded in on the Curb and the licensing of all individuals or companies publishing quotations of stocks traded in in the streets of New York. It would also have a provision making it a misdemeanor for any publication or newspaper to publish quotations of any stock that is not listed in the License Department of the City of New York.

"Ordinances of this type, properly administered by the License Department, will absolutely and conclusively end for all time the illegitimate issue of and trading in stocks that are worthless, regardless of the nature of the business. Conditions on Broad Street today, where the Curb market operates, are worse than they have ever been in the history of the institution."

On behalf of District Attorney Swann, Assistant District Attorney Kilroe gave out a statement yesterday in reply to an article in The National Municipal Review. The article was written by Chase Mellen, and, according to Kilroe's statement, gives a distorted account of labor cases upon which was predicated a complaint against Swann.

RELIEF WORKERS CONFER.

Talcott Williams Tells of Massacres in Armenia.

At a special conference of relief workers to sail for Europe on June 24, held yesterday at the national headquarters of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, Talcott Williams spoke.

"You will find there people scattered, starving, and forsaken," said Dr. Williams. "For centuries they have been persecuted, tortured, and massacred, but never in the history of all ages has there been a massacre like this one which has just been perpetrated in our own day, when what was once a great nation has been reduced to scattered groups."

Offer 75 Carloads of Cupro-Nickel.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The War Department, through its Director of Sales, is making inquiries designed to develop a market, other than the United States Mint, for seventy-five carloads of cupro-nickel, the material from which the five-cent piece is coined. This material was acquired for metal jackets for small arms ammunition. The alloy has a slightly higher copper content than that used for coinage. It consists of 85 per cent. copper and 15 per cent. nickel.

SEES FORESTS ENDANGERED

Chief of Survey Says Heavy Exports Threaten Our Resources.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Unless steps are taken quickly to protect the forests of the United States a serious situation due to the heavy demands for export to European and South American countries, will result, Colonel Henry S. Graves, Chief of the United States Forest Survey, announced today.

Europe will need 7,000,000,000 feet of lumber a year above normal demands for emergency reconstruction, Colonel Graves said, and exportation on that scale unless accompanied by provision for regrowth would seriously deplete the supplies needed by home industries and impose hardships on the consuming public. The question of export, he said, could not safely be left to itself.

The situation was especially critical, Mr. Graves said, with grade woods, such as ash, oak, sycamore, yellow poplar, southern yellow pine and black walnut, which are the support of important industries such as furniture, vehicle and farm implement industries.

"Most of the leading industrial nations of the world," said Colonel Graves, "whether lightly wooded and dependent upon imports or heavily wooded and exporters, are taking steps to safeguard and develop their timber resources. The United States alone appears to be content to build up a great export trade without considering the ultimate effect upon domestic timber resources and their capacity in the future to supply the home market."

15,000 KNITTERS TO STRIKE.

'Demands of Union for 46-Hour Week Refused, Officials Say.

Fifteen thousand knit goods workers will go on strike this morning, according to announcement made yesterday at the Knit Goods Workers' Union, Local Greater New York of the Amalgamated Textile Workers of America, 31 Union Square, following the refusal of the manufacturers to meet the demands of the union for a forty-six-hour week, an average of 20 per cent. increase in wages, the establishment of a minimum scale of wages and recognition of the union and shop Chairmen. The union also asks for time and a half for overtime; double time for work on Sundays, and during the slack season the work to be equally divided among all the workers.

It was said by union officials that for some time the union had been working to bring about better conditions in general for its members. Some manufacturers, it was said, had agreed to grant the demands of the union and that others had asked for a conference in an effort to adjust the differences. The workers affected by the strike order today are said to be about equally divided between men and women.

UNION FOE OF BOLSHEVISM.

Steel and Copper Plate Printers Open Convention.

Prepared to take a stand against Bolshevism an dseditious propaganda, delegates of the Steel and Copper Plate Printers' Union of North America, the "100 per cent. union," as they call themselves, opened their twenty-seventh annual convention yesterday at the Broadway Central Hotel. The sessions will continue all week.

The delegates represented 2,700 men engaged in the industry in the principal cities throughout this country and Canada. They were welcomed by Edward L. Hannah, President of the Central Federated Union; A. D. Hutchinson, Superintendent of the American Bank Note Company; Ernest Bohn, Secretary of the Federated Union, and William E. Kelly, former President of the Letter Carriers' National Association.

President Hannah and Secretary Bohn denounced the principles of Bolshevism in their addresses, saying the country looks to such organizations as the Plate Printers' Union for work to offset radical and seditious propaganda. Joseph Leach of Boston, President of the association, presided. It was said that resolutions denouncing Bolsheviki tactics will be adopted during the convention.

RAISES NAVY APPROPRIATION

Senate Committee Increases House Figures to $646,272,000.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Carrying $646,272,000, an increase of $44,803,000 over the House total, the 1920 Naval Appropriation bill was completed today by the Senate Naval Committee and will be taken up in the Senate after the passage of the army appropriation measure.

Increase in the navy enlisted personnel from 171,000 men, as proposed by the House, to 191,000, and an increase of the navy aviation fund from $15,000,000 to $35,000,000 were the principal changes made by the Senate Committee.

Favors War Risk Commutation.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Replying to a resolution by Senator Robinson, Democrat, of Arkansas, Secretary Glass informed the Senate today that he had not approved any contracts for the converting of Government insurance held by service men by which their beneficiaries could receive a lump sum instead of monthly payments. He explained, however, that the Director of the War Risk Insurance Bureau thought it advisable to provide a plan by which lump sums or monthly payments could be made optional, and that he had asked the Attorney General for an opinion as to the legality of such a plan.

Our Free Record Book Will

Simplify Your Income Tax Return

The work of making out your Income Tax returns each year can be greatly simplified, first, by understanding the Income Tax provisions, and second, by recording accurately and systematically your income as it is received.

To accomplish this purpose, we have prepared a 24-page Record Book, 8½ x 11 inches, which provides for accurately recording by months various forms of income—both taxable and exempt; also places for allowable deductions.

The book also contains a brief synopsis of the Federal Income Tax Law and a concise statement of the tax exemption features of the various Liberty Bond issues.

By the use of this book, you can avoid a great deal of unnecessary annoyance in making your Income Tax returns.

We shall be pleased to mail a copy upon request to those desiring it. Address Department G.

FROM A MERCHANT'S POINT OF VIEW

A GROUP OF MERCHANTS met in an office of lower Manhattan in October, 1855, and discussed the organization of the "Park Bank." These men, composing our first Directorate, were leading merchants of that day, active in the business life of this city.

THROUGH the intervening years The National Park Bank has been characterized by the commercial nature of its business, and the intimate association between its Board of Directors and the industrial activity of our country.

THE PRESENT Directors are men who are identified with substantial business interests, who have a practical and intimate knowledge of commercial conditions, and an appreciation of the merchant's point of view.

COTTON AT HIGHEST MARK OF SEASON

News from Germany Starts Strong Upward Movement in All Prices at Opening.

CHECKED BY PROFIT TAKING

New Rally Follows Cable from Weimar, Forcing Level Up Again.

With the news over the week end indicating the early signing of the Peace Treaty by Germany as a stimulus, yesterday's cotton market went into even higher ground than was established Friday, when the season's best prices were made. The bulge in prices at the opening showed all active months up 67 to 87 points from Saturday's closing quotations.

January opened at 32.55c and shortly worked up to 32.95c. October's opening at 32.49c was run up to 32.70c. December's first price of 32.48c got up to 32.70c during the first call. A similar range of advances was shown in the other months.

The buying was of a general character, Wall Street, the South, and Western commission houses participating in the demand for the staple, which sent it to new high records. Later the market worked back to lower levels on a profit-taking movement, the recession accounting for all the advance made after the opening. On the scale down trade interests were buyers, and the tone steadied with prices around Saturday's closing.

The earlier expectation of the signing of the Peace Treaty was substantiated later by the definite cable news from Weimar. This brought out a fresh line of buying orders, on which the market went up 30 to 40 points from the earlier low prices. A quiet tone prevailed to the closing hour, all months regaining most of their losses and closing substantially above Saturday's final prices.

The Liverpool market was quiet, futures closing 2 to 14 points up from Friday's last prices. The market there was due to have shown a better tone as a result of the higher levels of our market Saturday, but the threatened labor trouble among the British mills caused the market to pursue an irregular course.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

RELEASING TROOP SHIPS.

Its Total Tonnage Now 1,856,000 Less Than in December Last.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—A report made public today by the War Department shows that the tonnage used under its direction has dropped to 1,297,000 dead-weight tons, as compared with 3,253,000 dead-weight tons on Dec. 2.

Of the total now in use 1,129,000 tons is being employed to bring back troops. The troopships in use on Dec. 2 in this work totaled 472,000 tons. The other tonnage employed by the War Department is as follows: Refrigerator, 28,000 tons; cargo, 151,000 tons.

Many of the ships now bringing back soldiers were formerly used as cargo ships. On Dec. 2 there were 2,402,000 tons of vessels in use as cargo carriers. This dropped to 1,652,000 tons on Jan. 6, and the decrease has continued steadily. On Jan. 6 there were ships totaling 336,000 tons in food relief work under supervision. This has all been withdrawn.

Organize Godchaux Sugars, Inc.

The Godchaux Sugars, Inc., has been organized to take over the sugar properties and business of the Godchaux family in Louisiana. The capitalization will be $3,500,000 in first preferred stock, 300,000 shares of second preferred, and 70,000 shares of common stock of no par value. The Godchaux interests, it is said, will continue in control, retaining all the second preferred stock and a majority of the common. The property is said to comprise more than 37,000 acres of land in the cane growing district, of which approximately half is under cultivation. A public offering of stock is probable.

To Redeem Certificates in Cash.

The local Federal Reserve Bank announced yesterday that it had been authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem in cash, beginning June 23, Treasury certificates of indebtedness which mature on July 29, 1919. The certificates in question were offered Feb. 27, 1919, and $174,501,500 were subscribed in the Second Federal Reserve District.

JERSEY WILL FIGHT NEW YORK TAX LAW

State May Provide $10,000 to Oppose Levy on Incomes of Its Residents.

MAY RETAIN C. E. HUGHES

Attorney General of New Jersey Declares Act Is Unconstitutional—Criticises Specific Provisions.

TRENTON, N. J., June 23.—A conference upon methods to be adopted in protecting New Jersey residents from some of the features of the New York income tax, which taxes non-residents who make their money in New York, but allows them no exemptions, was held this afternoon by the State House Commission. The members of the commission are Governor W. N. Runyon, State Controller Newton A. K. Bugbee, and State Treasurer W. T. Read.

It was said that they probably would provide money out of the State emergency fund to defray the expenses of New Jersey's fight to have the objectionable sections of the law repealed or made inoperative. A fund of $10,000 had been suggested. The Governor was to take with him to the conference an opinion of Attorney General Thomas F. McCran that the Tax act was unconstitutional.

The Attorney General said that a New York lawyer ought to be engaged, and it is said that the Governor favors John W. Griggs, former Governor of New Jersey and ex-United States Attorney General, who lives in Paterson and is a member of the New York bar. Mr. McCran said that, while it was true that a State had the right to tax everything and everybody within its jurisdiction, he would not concede that the earnings of nonresidents were to be included.

It was reported about the State House that Charles E. Hughes might be appointed by Attorney General McCran to carry on the fight against the New York income tax levy on nonresident doing business in New York. The Attorney General said he would announce later whether Mr. Griggs or Mr. Hughes would be asked to act as counsel for the State.

LIBERATED REGIONS THANKFUL TO HOOVER

PARIS, June 23.—Daniel Vincent, head of the Commission of the Liberated Regions of the Chamber of Deputies, has sent a letter of thanks to Herbert C. Hoover for the Allied Relief Commission's work in revictualing invaded France. The letter says:

"Sir—Now that the high mission of humanity committed to your care by the American Government has come to an end, the Commission of the Liberated Regions in the Chamber of Deputies wishes to express to you the deep gratitude of the populations of northern and eastern France for the generous assistance you have given them when they heroically awaited, under the enemy's domination, the liberation of the French territories. The methodical revictualing you have carried out so successfully with the zealous assistance of a great many American citizens, who have devoted themselves wholly to the task, proved an invaluable relief and a real comfort to our countrymen in the most painful times of the war.

"The Commission of the Liberated Regions wishes you to accept for yourself and for your countrymen who came to the assistance of invaded France the appreciation of its unutterable gratitude."

SEEK TROOP RETURN RECORD

War Department Aims to Bring 340,000 Back This Month.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The War Department announced today that it hoped to establish a record for the monthly return of overseas troops by bringing back 340,000 during June. Sailings since the beginning of the month totaled 216,358 on June 21. If the 340,000 mark is to be reached 123,642 more troops must be embarked from France before the end of the month.

The total sailings during the period between Nov. 11, 1918, when the armistice went into effect, and June 21, aggregate 1,477,900, and if the June schedule is carried out the total on June 30 will have passed the 1,600,000 mark. The sailings so far in June include 7,794 officers and 204,458 enlisted men of the army, 1,540 nurses, and 490 marines. The total since Nov. 11 includes 60,945 officers and 1,387,490 enlisted men of the army, 7,357 nurses, 665 field clerks, 4,748 marines, 7,229 civilians, 7,088 of the navy personnel, and 2,389 listed as miscellaneous.

To Sell Bond Campaign Equipment.

Desks over which many millions of dollars of Liberty Bond transactions were made, together with other office equipment which played an important part in financing the war, will be sold at public auction at 551 Fifth Avenue on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week. Included in the collection is the entire equipment used at the headquarters, 120 Broadway, as well as the various precinct headquarters of the Metropolitan Canvass Committees. The furniture originally cost $30,000, according to the Liberty Loan Committee.

Copenhagen
THIS city is the capital of the Kingdom of Denmark and had in 1911 a population of over 559,000 (including Frederiksberg). The city is built on portions of two islands and it is the natural channel between the two which forms the excellent harbor of Copenhagen.
Copenhagen is by far the most important commercial city in Denmark and exemplifies the steady increase in the trade of the country. It was the first free port in Scandinavia. Copenhagen is not an industrial city and its manufactures are inconsiderable.
There are no hindrances to the establishment of agencies by Americans in Denmark and the market for America's goods offers possibilities for increased sales of many articles. The growth of Copenhagen as a distributing center for goods destined for Russia and Scandinavia makes it an important place for the location of representatives of American firms.
In 1913 Copenhagen's shipping tonnage equalled 3,441,000 tons entered and 3,484,000 tons cleared.

Expectations Realized
The expectation that losses by bad debts will be within the normal during any future twelve months will be realized by the Manufacturer or Wholesaler who obtains the American's Unlimited Policy of Credit Insurance.
Under the American's Unlimited Policy, the manufacturer or wholesaler is protected not only against those incredible losses that strike so unexpectedly, but he obtains a service in credit granting and in turning past due accounts into cash that frequently saves many times the moderate premium paid for the Policy.
The American's Unlimited Policy is an assurance that Expectations will be Realized.

ZIEGLER'S WIDOW RESIGNS.

With W. S. Champ Asks to Retire as Executor of Husband's Estate.

Mrs. E. Matilda Ziegler, widow of William Ziegler, baking powder manufacturer, and William S. Champ, for many years Mr. Ziegler's private secretary and after his death the active head of the interests he left, filed an application in the Surrogate's Court yesterday for permission to resign as executors. The late Mayor Gaynor was a co-executor during his lifetime, and after his death William Ziegler, Jr., the adopted son and chief heir of the decedent, reached maturity and qualified as an executor. Mrs. Ziegler, who lives at 907 Fifth Avenue, gave as her reason for retiring that she is 70 years old and because of her infirmities cannot be burdened longer with the affairs of the estate. Mr. Champ states that as the result of taking five trips to the Arctic regions with the Ziegler expeditions and of devoting himself to Mr. Ziegler's large interests for many years he is also broken in health. The executors reported that the estate consisted of $13,392,063 when Mr. Ziegler died and is now $10,093,576, after all the bequests have been paid, including half the principal of the residuary fund which went to the adopted son. The widow receives $50,000 a year and inherited the town house and country place. The bulk of the estate consists of $7,064,541 in securities and $2,262,612 in bonds.

Underwrite 500,000 Oil Shares.

Prichitt & Co. and E. W. Clark & Co., have underwritten 500,000 shares of common stock without par value, of the Transcontinental Oil Company, a new corporation organized under the laws of Delaware, for the purpose of taking over the Tex-Penn Oil Company, the Pittsburgh, Texas Oil and Gas Company of West Virginia, the Riverside Eastern Oil Company of Delaware, and the Riverside Western Oil Company of West Virginia. It is stated that the new company will have no preferred stock and no funded debt. The shares underwritten by the bankers will be offered for subscription at $47 a share.

Tidewater Oil Profits Grow.

The report of the Tidewater Oil Company for the first three months of this year shows a surplus after all charges and Federal taxes of $2,377,022, or the equivalent of $7.45 a share, on the outstanding capital stock. This compares with a surplus of $2,385,135, or $7.32 a share, in the March quarter of 1918.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

To the Stockholders of Aetna Explosives Company, Inc.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a special meeting of stockholders of AETNA EXPLOSIVES COMPANY, INC., will be held at the office of the corporation, Room No. 2701, 165 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City, County and State of New York, on the 10th day of July, 1919, at twelve o'clock noon, to transact the following business, to wit:

1. To take such action as the stockholders may determine with reference to the approval of certain Terms of Settlement, dated May 28, 1919, formulated by a committee appointed by Hon. Julius M. Mayer, Judge of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, to prepare a plan to carry out the settlement suggested by him of the differences between the various classes of security holders and to terminate the receivership of the corporation, which Terms of Settlement were approved by Judge Mayer on May 24, 1919, copy of which is on file in the office of the corporation. Said Terms of Settlement provide, among other things, in effect, that the holders of the present bonds shall be entitled to receive therefor, at their option, either (a) 85% thereof in cash or (b) 100% thereof in a 8% Series A bond of the corporation maturing in twelve years; that the preferred stockholders shall be entitled to receive for each share of preferred stock $20.70 in cash and $75 in a 6% Series B bond of the corporation maturing in twenty-two years; that the common stockholders shall retain their existing holdings; that Messrs. J. & W. Seligman & Company, representing bondholders and preferred stockholders, shall enter into an agreement with Messrs. Holt and Odell, the receivers of the corporation, in form approved by the Court, under which the preferred stock represented by them shall be voted by Messrs. Holt and Odell and/or their nominees for the purpose of carrying out the Terms of Settlement, and under which the bonds and preferred stock represented by said firm shall, at a time or times designated by the Court, be delivered to Messrs. Holt and Odell or some bank or trust company designated by them; that Messrs. J. & W. Seligman & Company, representing bondholders and preferred stockholders, shall enter into an agreement with Messrs. Holt and Odell, the receivers of the corporation, in form approved by the Court, under which the preferred stock represented by them shall be voted by Messrs. Holt and Odell and/or their nominees for the purpose of carrying out the Terms of Settlement, and under which the bonds and preferred stock represented by said firm shall, at a time or times designated by the Court, be delivered to Messrs. Holt and Odell or some bank or trust company designated by them, or be voted by medium of proxies running to Messrs. Holt and Odell and/or their nominees, as the latter may deem advisable; and that the stated capital and/or the certificate of incorporation of the corporation might be changed or amended as approved by the Court and the Committee.

2. To take such action as the stockholders may determine with respect to the ratification and approval of a contract, dated June 2, 1919, between Aetna Explosives Company, Inc., J. & W. Seligman & Company, as Readjustment Managers under a plan of readjustment of Aetna Explosives Company, Inc., dated March 18, 1918, and Messrs. George C. Holt and Benjamin B. Odell, as receivers of Aetna Explosives Company, Inc., which contract has for its object the carrying out of said Terms of Settlement of Aetna Explosives Company, Inc., referred to above, copy of which is on file in the office of the corporation.

3. To take such action as the stockholders may determine with reference to authorizing an amendment to the certificate of incorporation of Aetna Explosives Company, Inc., so as to reduce the amount of the stated capital of the corporation from $18,100,000 to $8,050,000.

4. To take such action as the stockholders may determine with reference to consenting to the making, execution and delivery by the corporation of a mortgage, in such amount as may be necessary, securing the Series A and Series B bonds required to be issued by the corporation to carry out the Terms of Settlement.

5. To take such action as the stockholders may determine with reference to any other action by the corporation as may be necessary or convenient to carry out the Terms of Settlement.

6. To elect directors of the corporation.

7. To transact such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

F. E. FENTON, Secretary.

Dated June 14, 1919.

CYPRESS HILLS CEMETERY.

The annual election for Directors of the Cypress Hills Cemetery will be held at the office on the cemetery grounds, Jamaica and Crescent Avenues, Brooklyn, N. Y., on Tuesday, July 8th, 1919, during the hour from 12 to 1 o'clock P. M.

A. M. FRASER, Secretary.

ORDERS ARREST OF 3 FOR STOCK DEALINGS

District Attorney Seeks Partners and Manager of H. C. Loup & Co.

SIXTY CUSTOMERS COMPLAIN

School Teacher Tells of $14,000 Loss—One Man Says Firm Owes Him $125,000.

Following further investigation into the affairs of H. C. Loup & Co., promoters and dealers in stocks at 50 Broad Street, the District Attorney requested the police yesterday to arrest Herbert C. Loup, Joseph Kelsey, partners, and Frank B. Taylor, manager of the concern.

"I have asked the port officers and the detectives and police of nearby cities to assist in finding these men," said Assistant District Attorney Dooling. "The employes have been questioned, and the books of the concern, seized Saturday, have been examined. I find some sixty customers of the firm have lost amounts ranging from $20 to $125,000. This last amount represents the loss of Joseph Kaye of Emporium, Penn."

According to the District Attorney, the firm was not a member of any exchange in the financial district here or elsewhere. Many customers have complained that they were unable to get delivery of stocks purchased, the return of collateral in the form of securities deposited as security for trading purposes, or any satisfactory settlement of their accounts, including estimated profits due. Mr. Dooling said the firm could not deliver the stocks because the stocks had not been bought. This evidence, he says, he obtained from examining the firm's books.

Miss Margaret McCabe, a public school teacher, of 545 West 153d Street, told the District Attorney she had $14,000 invested in dividend-paying securities, marketable at any time, and that a representative of H. C. Loup & Co. induced her to dispose of this investment for stock in an oil concern. Mr. Dooling said that apparently her investment and those of other customers whom he had questioned had been lost.

"Miss McCabe has as dependents upon her earnings a blind sister and other relatives," he said. "She said she had told a member of the firm that her investments were not bringing in as large returns as she required for these dependents. She was assured she would receive large returns if she invested in the oil stock."

Benjamin Spellman of 115 Broadway, attorney for some of the customers and creditors, told the District Attorney that a petition in bankruptcy had been filed in the Federal District Court against Herbert C. Loup and Joseph Kelsey as individuals, doing business under the firm name of H. C. Loup & Co. The petitioning creditors were said to be Morris Poole, with a claim of $2,000; Isadore Lawner, $100, and Alexander S. Friedman, $1,300.

Joseph Kaye of Emporium, Penn., and his attorneys, McHarg & Metcalf, at 115 Broadway, gave Mr. Dooling information concerning Kaye's experience in trading with the concern. They showed an affidavit made by Kaye, June 19, with a supporting affidavit by his attorneys, presented to Supreme Court Justice Donnelly, asking for an order of civil arrest for Herbert C. Loup and Joseph Kelsey in an action for an accounting and a return of securities deposited as collateral.

In the affidavit Kaye said that in November, 1918, he was solicited by Joseph Kelsey, who then made his headquarters in Pittsburgh, to open an account, and that he did so Nov. 2, 1918. In lieu of margins he deposited as a basis for trading credits 300 shares of Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Corporation, valued at $31,750, and 200 shares of Aetna preferred, valued at $10,000.

On June 11 Kaye, who estimated that profits on his trading and investments should approximate $48,723.75, asked for a settlement, which was not made. He then offered, the affidavit said, to buy outright all the shares of stock in which he had been trading, which represented total transactions of $610,000. He was told, he said, that after deducting his profit and having his securities returned he then would owe the firm $488,763.18. He could not get the stocks, his profits, nor the return of his securities, he asserted.

"Kaye then went to Taylor, who is said to have been the active manager of the company, and again demanded his stock, profits, and securities," said Mr. Dooling. "He says Taylor told him that the stock and securities had been sold or pledged for the firm's benefits, but that payment would soon be made of the profits and that the collateral securities would be restored. On June 18 checks for $10,200 and for $10,000 were drawn by Loup & Co. and given to Kaye's attorneys as part payment. One check was on the New York Trust Company, which returned it with the notice 'Acount closed.' The other came back from the Chatham & Phoenix National Bank, payment refused because of insufficient funds."

An employe of Loup & Co., in a statement to District Attorney Swann yesterday, said that the firm had a deposit in the Franklin Trust Company at 46 Wall Street, then at the Chatham and Phoenix National Bank at 179 Broadway, and more recently at the New York Trust Company at 24 Broad Street. This witness said Mrs. E. J. Mountz of Smithville, Penn., according to the accounts, had a claim for $100,000 against Loup & Co., either for investments or trading.

TO AID RENT INQUIRY.

Insurance Companies Offer to Supply Information Wanted.

Progress in the formulation of plans in connection with the inquiry of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering into the investments of the insurance companies and their alleged failure to relieve the real estate mortgage market, was made yesterday, when Jacob E. Hedges called upon Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee and William T. Collins, Chairman of the Aldermanic General Welfare Committee to facilitate the work and to cooperate with the committees. Mr. Hedges is counsel for the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, officers of which had been subpoenaed by the committees, but were not able to testify at the first hearing because of lack of time.

It is understood that the date for the next hearing will be set in a day or two, and that Samuel Untermyer and Frank Moss, the counsel for the joint committee will continue the examination of witnesses, attempting to show that the life insurance companies retained large investments in stocks and bonds which depreciated in value.

The Mayor's Committee continued to receive letters from tenants who complained of exorbitant increases in rent. William Selig wrote that when he first occupied his apartment the rent was $30, that shortly afterward it was raised to $38.50, and that now the owners, Schechter & Kroopf of 25 St. Nicholas Avenue, demand $55.

W. L. D. O'Grady, a former employe of the City Clerk, wrote that he had been paying $75 per month for an apartment in Donald Court, 700 West 179th Street, and that he had received a notice that his rent would be raised to $125, and that he would have to pay for telephone service.

Favors Capital Increase.

Fred Hirschorn, President of the General Cigar Company, in a circular sent out to shareholders discussing a special meeting which has been called for July 7, to vote on a $10,000,000 increase in the company's capitalization, urges the ratification of new stock as necessary to strengthen the company. The stockholders will be asked to approve an authorization of $5,000,000 new debenture preferred, and $5,000,000 new common stock. If the issue is approved, it will be offered to stockholders at par on the basis of one new share for every four of old now held. Mr. Hirschorn states in the circular that earnings for the first five months of 1919 after tax deductions were at the rate of approximately 11.25 per cent. on the common stock.

ASKS AID FOR SOUTH RUSSIA

American Captain Tells Hoover Miners Face Starvation.

PARIS, June 22, (Associated Press.)—Herbert Hoover, Chairman of the Interallied Food Commission, has received an appeal from Captain Berry of the American military mission to South Russia, asking for immediate shipment of flour to save the lives of laborers in the Donetz Basin and in Krivoy-Rog, about 100 miles northeast of Kherson.

These are centres of the coal and iron industries, and the people there are threatened with extinction because of the food shortage, Captain Berry declares.

In addition to the supplies needed by the miners and metal workers, Captain Berry appeals that assistance be sent the Denikin Government, which is caring for more than 50,000 refugees from Armenia and Syria in the Ekaterinodar district. These refugees cannot be repatriated under present circumstances.

Captain Berry says that the industries which are threatened are manned by workmen who helped fight back the Bolshevist invasion, but who are now unable to continue the work of helping to rebuild the country, as they are forced to travel constantly in search of food.

Sub-Treasury Gets $21,000,000 Gold

A shipment of $20,000,000 in gold coin has been received at the sub-Treasury from the Philadelphia mint. The transfer was made necessary to meet the demand for export. Recent shipments of gold to South America have virtually depleted the sub-Treasury supply of gold coin. The local Assay Office will be unable to sell gold bars for export purposes until after July 1, because of the annual auditing and accounting now going on.

NEED NOT PAY INCOME TAX.

Railroad Men Not Affected by New State Law.

The new State Income Tax law recently passed by the Legislature will not affect the incomes of employes of railroads under the control of the Railroad Administration, according to a statement which will appear in the June number of The New York Central Magazine. The statement is made by C. C. Paulding, solicitor of the New York Central, and is the result of an inquiry by the railroad's law department and an opinion by the State Controller that so long as the railroads remain under Federal control officials and employes of the Railroad Administration are exempt upon salaries and wages.

After saying the law imposes a tax on the net incomes of residents of the State and upon incomes of nonresidents derived from sources within the State, Mr. Paulding says:

"The tax is to be payable upon incomes received during the calendar year 1919 and is due March 15, 1920. The law defines gross income and prescribes certain rules for ascertaining net income and provides that salaries and wages received from the United States Government by officials and employes of the Government shall be exempt from taxation."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The food division shares were substantially advanced in the trading on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday. The motor issues were also given a forward impetus, while the steel, rail, and oil properties were in supply and showed a sagging tendency. Corn Products was bid up 4½ points, United States Food Products 2⅝, and American Linseed 3⅝. General Motors moved up 8⅝, a new high mark, and closed at the top, while Studebaker, which gained at the start 1⅝, ended about unchanged from Saturday's close. Baldwin Locomotive moved irregularly, ranging between 105⅝ and 102⅝. Tobacco Products was best of its group, gaining 1⅝. Texas & Pacific moved widest of the rails, the others of this group selling fractionally below the previous close.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday......5¼@5½% for the best names
Saturday......5¼@5½% for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Jobbers Make Allotments.

Woolen jobbers are now following in the steps of first hands and allotting supplies to their customers. Merchant tailors accustomed to deal with the middleman rather than the mills find that in some cases their orders are being filled in half-piece lots. The pieces are divided in this manner, the jobbers state, in order to please as many customers as possible with the smallest amount of goods. The importers seem to be in little better position than the houses selling domestic goods only, shipping facilities leaving much to be desired.

Straw Hats by Express.

Straw hat jobbers are using express deliveries to a greater extent, it was stated yesterday, than in any previous season. Rush orders have the trade topsy-turvy trying to get out goods where supplies have not yet become exhausted. All first-class merchandise is selling at regular prices, with advances taken in some instances. There will be little or none of the closing-out-sale business this season, compared with previous ones. While the manufacturers are doing their best to keep up with the demand, labor and material conditions are not giving them satisfactory production.

Dress Goods for Spring.

With the output sold up for the present season, stylers in the dress goods market are beginning to form plans for the next season. While the leading houses are not in a position to say yet what will be featured for next Spring, some hints are being made. The novelty end, it is said, will see some variations of the tricotine weave tried out. Some are of the opinion that considerable attention will be devoted to the matter of new colors for the forthcoming season. Small, neat check designs are also well thought of, and should have a prominent place in next season's offerings.

Straight Lines for Dresses.

The dress manufacturing trade has about decided to retain the straight line effect through the Fall season. While there was some talk of getting closer to the Paris interpretation of styles and using the bouffant effects more freely, there has not been a tendency to put words into action. The fact that the suit manufacturers have also adopted the straight line design might have had some influence on the decision of the dress houses, but the counsel of buyers is regarded as the chief factor in settling the matter. The buyers have generally favored the straight-line models.

Burlap Demand Exceeds Supply.

The call for burlaps opened actively enough in the local market yesterday, and the trade appears still to be in the position of having more demand than goods with which to meet it. The effect is shown in the prices asked. Spot eight-ounce 40-inch cloths were quoted here yesterday at 11½ cents, with 10½-ounce burlaps of the same width held at 13 cents. Dundee was again reported firm and high, and the same was true of Calcutta. The scarcity of rupees and high exchange rates are making it difficult to get shipments from that market, and sentiment here is generally bullish.

Interested in Dye Situation.

Interest in the settlement of the dyestuff problem and in the activities of the supporters of the licensing plan for imports is widespread among manufacturers who use such products. In the silk industry it was reported yesterday that the views of several of the large houses are not fully in accord with the aims of the domestic dyemakers. It was pointed out that, while the dye industry here has made fair progress during the war, efforts were directed along lines of least resistance and most profit. To shut off competitive products, it was explained, would not tend to building up the domestic lines if the wartime policy were followed.

Sport Shoes in Demand.

One of the features of the current business being done here in footwear for both sexes is the demand for various kinds of sports shoes. These calls range all the way from simple canvas pumps to specially devised golf, tennis, and hiking shoes. As with other lines of merchandise, the best is being bought most freely, despite the fact that very few types of sport shoes are even moderately priced. In the run of "regular" business the chief flaw in an almost perfect season—so far as getting orders is concerned—is the difficulty experienced in obtaining deliveries. This is said to be especially true of some of the better grades of women's goods. For Fall, despite the high prices, few of the manufacturers have little left to do in the way of selling.

Gray Goods Have Good Day.

Whether reports of the signing of the Peace Treaty had anything to do with it or not, the fact remains that a considerable yardage of gray goods, especially printcloths, changed hands in this market yesterday. One of the most interesting reports heard concerned the selling of Southern 38-inch 60-squares for contract delivery, at 26¼ cents. Other printcloth sales included 38½-inch 64-60s at 16 cents, said to be for deliveries running through the rest of the year, and 38-inch 68-72s at 19 cents. Sheetings business included some four-yard, 48-square goods at 15½ cents. Fine yarn cloths had a fair snap to them, and business in the so-called clothing numbers again was put through at sellers' prices in a good-sized way.

Leather Looming Up in Hats.

While leather hats for women, obviously designed for motor wear, have been shown in local millinery circles for some time, in at least one quarter of the trade are now being offered models in leather that are especially adapted to sports or street wear. One natty hat of this type is made of dull black leather and trimmed with a black leather quill faced with bright orange. It is of medium size and made with a long front. A new millinery trimming shown here is patent leather, which is sometimes cut into flowers and leaves and appliquéd on duvetyn shapes. An attractive hat in peacock blue material has cut-out flowers of black patent leather strewn over the upper part of it. With the leather flowers hand-painted "posies" are intermingled in the sprays and outlined in gold thread.

Will Share with the Employes.

On July 1 a novel profit-sharing plan will be put into effect by M. Lowenstein & Sons, Inc., cotton converters, 40 to 46 West Twenty-third Street. It will apply to employes of the corporation and of its predecessor firm of M. Lowenstein & Sons, who have been with it for the last three years and to other employes who have earned its commendation. Under the plan $100,000 will be used to purchase shares of the first preferred stock of the corporation bearing interest at 7 per cent., payable quarterly. Shares will be allotted on July 1 and will be deposited in trust with Myers & Goldsmith, attorneys, 100 Broadway. If a sharing employe continues with the corporation until Jan. 2, 1923, his share of the allotted stock will become his absolute property. In the meantime the employe will receive outright the dividends declared from time to time, the first of which, it is expected, will be paid on Sept. 30. In the case of an employe's death before Jan. 2, 1923, the allotted shares will go to his designated beneficiary immediately. Should an employe resign before that date his interest ceases and inures to the benefit of those participants of July 1, 1919, who are still in the employ of the corporation on Jan. 2, 1923.

BUSINESS NOTES.

B. Lowenstein & Brothers, Memphis, Tenn., will give up their local office at 225 Fifth Avenue on July 1. After that date they will be represented in this market by Frederick Atkins, resident buyer, 220 Fifth Avenue.

H. A. Pope, who was connected for nine years with the Hudson Bay Stores in Canada, is now associated, as ready-to-wear buyer, with Stanley C. Macrae, resident buyer, 1,270 Broadway.

At 10:15 this morning, at 599 and 601 Broadway, Durling & Dole will hold the closing auction sale of the season. By order of several well-known mills, agents and others, they will sell about 500 pieces of fine fancy worsteds, serges, suitings, cassimeres, tricotines, checks, &c.

Frank W. Misnick, resident representative, 1,170 Broadway, is now handling the account of the Benson & Thorne Company, Omaha, which operates the largest specialty store in that city.

LABOR WILL WORK FOR SIX-HOUR DAY

Federation Declares 44-Hours-a-Week Program, and Will Aid Further Reduction.

RAILROAD UNIONS APPLY

"Big Four" Brotherhoods Ask for Membership in Larger Body—Annual Meeting Adjourns.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 23.—The policy of organized labor toward the shorter work day was adopted today in the closing hours of the convention of the American Federation of Labor. The program calls for a universal forty-four-hour week in industry, pledges support to unions which are planning to begin a campaign for the six-hour day, and calls for double time for overtime as a penalizing measure, with all efforts exerted to discourage overtime as much as possible.

President Samuel Gompers announced that application has been made for membership in the American Federation of Labor by the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and the Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen. The addition of the "Big Four" railway brotherhoods would increase the membership of the Federation by 800,000. The present membership is 3,260,000.

Details of questions of jurisdiction have to be cleared up before the brotherhoods are admitted. The alliance of the railroad men with the Federation will combine into a close union the two largest bodies of organized labor in this country and Canada. It will bring together some of the ablest labor leaders in the country.

A group of almost 4,000,000 voters would have no small influence on any political situation, if brought to bear. In this connection, it appeared significant that one of the last resolutions adopted by the convention asked the Director General of Railroads to rescind his order forbidding railroad workers to engage in politics.

A change in the constitution was made calling for the revocation of the charter of any central labor union issuing a call for a strike vote or ordering out on strike any affiliated union without sanction by the international body. In the debate which followed this action attacks were made on the general strike in Winnipeg, Canada.

Attack Wire Companies.

A resolution was adopted condemning the "arbitrary, unwarranted and autocratic" policy of the Western Union and the Postal Telegraph employers in their refusal to treat with employes. A committee, consisting of John Walker of the Mine Workers and W. E. Bryan of the Leather Workers, was appointed to go to Washington to lay the case before Postmaster General Burleson. The committee was instructed to ask that the principle of collective bargaining as granted by Mr. Burleson to telephone employes be extended to telegraph employes.

Delegate Green of the Mine Workers said his organization intends to press for a workday of less than eight hours in order to take care of unemployed miners. He said the greatest production of coal in the history of the country was mined on an eight-hour-a-day basis with 100,000 fewer workers than under the longer workday. The federation, he added, will pledge its support for the seven-hour day, the six-hour day, or whatever length day the miners may decide to be necessary.

Speaking for the constitutional amendment placing a ban on the unauthorized calling of general strikes by central labor bodies, J. W. Hays of the International Typographical Union attacked the strike in Winnipeg as a movement intended to alienate the unions from their internationals and from the American Federation.

"This strike is a question of life and death for the international trade-union movement and for the American Federation," he said. "The International Typographical Union is not going to stand for any foolishness of that kind. We are going to fight it hard. It has cost us a lot of money in Winnipeg because our members cannot work, although they are not on strike. Our organizations refused to vote on the general strike, but the central body decided in favor of it, and said it therefore applied to the Typographical Union."

Argue on Sympathetic Strikes.

James A. Duncan of Seattle said that on his way to the convention he had spent some time in Winnipeg.

"There was never a time since its inception that the strike could not have been settled by the recognition of the right of workers to organize and bargain collectively," he said. "If that principle is at stake in any city, unionists who have any red blood are going to quit work until that right is recognized. Those soldiers on strike in Winnipeg fought for democracy, and they now demand that principle be applied.

"Speaking to those men in Victoria Park, I placed myself on record as opposed to one big union, but I told them so long as they kept the issue clear on the right of collective bargaining all union men would be with them."

C. F. Grob of Los Angeles said that, regardless of what laws were put into the Federation constitution, members of unions would have to protect their rights. He predicted that the law would be a dead letter, for if the interest of the workers required them to take part in sympathetic strikes they would do so.

The committee ordered to prepare a report on the attack made by New Jersey manufacturers on Basil M. Manly, Joint Chairman of the War Labor Board, reported that Mr. Manly's record as a friend of labor was too well known to make special reference necessary.

Urge a Tariff on Pearl Buttons.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—In urging a tariff for the protection of their industry, pearl button manufacturers told the House Ways and Means Committee today that Japanese competition threatened to wipe out the industry in this country. They said that because of low labor costs Japanese manufacturers could sell in this country at a price lower than the actual cost of American manufacture.

BILL TO LICENSE DYES.

Longworth Says Tariff Alone Would Not Exclude German Product.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Members of the Ways and Means Committee have become convinced that it would be impossible to put a duty on dyestuffs high enough to keep German dyes out of the country and protect the dye industry started here during the war. To make certain that the industry shall have ample protection, Representative Longworth, author of a bill to increase the duty, today introduced a bill providing for a licensing system. Under this double plan Mr. Longworth believes the United States can prevent Germany flooding the American markets with dyes.

Mr. Longworth asserted that investigation demonstrated the need of a licensing system such as England and France have established.

"A Government licensing commission," he said, "is to be created which may permit the importation of any dye not produced in this country or the price of which is unreasonably high. I have become convinced that a licensing system is absolutely essential.

"It appears from the evidence that Germany not only had at the beginning of the war a very large supply of dyestuffs on hand, but that during the war her great dye establishments, while they were turned over mainly for the production of explosives, also produced a substantial amount of dyes, which are stored in Germany, Switzerland, and probably other countries. It seems evident that Germany will seek to dump these materials into this country at any sacrifice, and that no duty would be high enough to prevent it."

HEARING ON TRANSIT WAGES

Boston and Rhode Island Trolley Men Before War Labor Board Here.

The employes of the Boston Elevated Railways and of the company which operates trolley lines throughout the State of Rhode Island were heard yesterday at the City Hall here by the National War Labor Board on their petitions for increased wages and shorter hours.

The employes of the Boston Elevated ask a maximum of 73 cents an hour instead of 43 cents. It was explained that the reason for the great increase demanded was that the employes want an eight-hour day and hope for a compromise. The Rhode Island employes make practically the same demands.

J. Ware Barnum, counsel of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, submitted a number of statements showing the financial condition of the road before and after public operation, and indicated that the deficit of the various lines from July 1 last year to June 1 of this year amounted to approximately $4,500,000. He said it had been necessary to increase the fare from 5 cents to 7 cents a month after public operation began and then to 8 cents, which, he said, was found inadequate, as the present average cost of operation was 9.2677 cents for every rider in the cars.

ANSWERS BREWERS IN MILD BEER SUIT

District Attorney Caffey Calls Injunction Effort to Nullify Power to Weigh Crime.

SEES COURTS AS REMEDY

Declares Move to Bar Prosecution, However, Shows Desire to Control Government.

Federal District Attorney Francis G. Caffey, who is a co-defendant in the suit brought by the Jacob Hoffman Brewing Company to enjoin Federal officials from interfering with the manufacture and sale of 2.75 per cent. beer, filed an answer yesterday in the United States District Court, in which he argues against an injunction which would restrain him from proceeding criminally against the brewer.

Mr. Caffey asserts that the object of the suit is to nullify his power to weigh evidence and arrive at a determination whether a crime had been committed or not, and to prevent action when he had reason to believe that a Federal Statute had been violated. He argued that decisions have been rendered definitely denying the propriety of any injunction interfering with a United States District Attorney to the extent of denying his right to prosecute where he believed he had found evidence of a crime.

Denying the contention of the brewers that any contemplated action by Federal authorities under the law now in effect would be equivalent to confiscation, Mr. Caffey said:

"This defendant has not now and has not at any time had any purpose or intent with respect to all the matters mentioned in the complaint, except if there be presented to him evidence which, in his judgment, was sufficient to show the commission of a crime, he would in due course and solely in his official capacity, commence a prosecution."

Refusing to admit that legitimate property interests are at stake and, insisting that the plaintiff brewer exhibits a desire to control the official course of the Government, Mr. Caffey said:

"If the defendant or any of its plaintiff officers, agents, or servants were prosecuted, they would be tried in the District Court of the United States, for the Southern District of New York, which would afford them a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law. If not guilty, the quitting of the employment of the complainant or other act of the accused, as alleged in the complaint, as anticipated by and expected to be injurious to the complainant, would be the consequence exclusively of the voluntary conduct of the accused and would not be caused by any wrongful or actionable act of this defendant."

Prohibition is likely to result in diminishing tipping and increasing the use of mechanical devices for serving patrons, according to Copeland Townsend, proprietor of the Hotel Majestic, who said yesterday that most of the big tips came from parties who had had wine or other liquor with their meals. He said that it was very hard to get well-trained waiters, either men or women, and the loss of the incentive afforded by occasional big tips would make the shortage still more pronounced.

NEED MEN FOR FARM WORK.

2,000 Jobs Open at Good Pay in This State Alone.

Dr. George W. Kirchwey, Director of the United States Employment Service, issued another appeal yesterday for farm workers. He declared that unless the farmers in this State can obtain sufficient labor soon many thousands of dollars worth of garden truck of every description will rot in the fields.

"The Bureau of Agricultural Placements at 22 East Twenty-second Street, is being swamped with requests from farmers all over the country who declare that they must have workers immediately," said Dr. Kirchwey. "More than 2,000 men are wanted in this State alone. The wages offered for workers in the wheat fields run from 50 cents to 75 cents an hour, with room and board included, and the farmers in the vicinity of this city offer inducements almost as advantageous. The man who takes up farm work at this time can earn at least $6 a day."

Colonel Arthur Woods, Assistant to the Secretary of War in re-employment of discharged soldiers, has formally advised the National Executive Committee of the American Legion that the legion is the only agency that can effectively absorb and carry out the Government's re-employment work for discharged service men. The legion is already effecting a national organization to perform this task as part of its adopted program.

In a communication to the National Executive Committee which comprises the Executive Committees appointed in Paris and St. Louis, Colonel Woods says:

"The entrance of the American Legion in the work of helping soldiers to re-establish themselves in civil life would be of the greatest possible help to discharged men. I feel that you will be able to accomplish the best results if your posts all over the country get in touch with our field representatives and find out what we have been doing, and then go ahead from that."

WANT BETTER LOCOMOTIVES

Railroad Men Favor a Joint Tractive Research Bureau.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 23.—W. J. Tollerton of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, President of the mechanical sections of the American Railroad Association, speaking to locomotive builders today, recommended a joint research bureau for perfecting tractive power on American lines.

"We have gone far since some twenty railway master mechanics met in Cleveland fifty-one years ago tomorrow to organize an association to study the question of motive power, but we still have far to go," President Tollerton said.

Alexander Kearney, Norfolk & Western, reported that war pressure for speeding up of train movement had greatly increased installations of mechanical stokers or automatic firemen. Their number increased from 1,611 on April 1, 1917, to 3,717 on Jan. 1, 1919, chiefly upon large engines. "The committee," he said, "found that the stoker-fired locomotives burn more fuel than those fired by hand. Percentages of difference range from 10 to 41 per cent. in favor of hand firing. This difference, however, is expressed in terms of coal, and does not recognize the advantages of improvement in the performance of the locomotive."

Conferees Down Daylight Saving.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—House and Senate conferees today approved the rider on the Agricultural Appropriation Bill providing for repeal of the daylight saving law next Oct. 26. The House managers finally accepted the Senate amendment after urging passage by the Senate of the separate House bill repealing the law. Adoption of the conference agreement is regarded as certain.

First

The New York Times recorded in May the largest gain in advertising ever made by a New York newspaper in any one month—459,316 agate lines over May, 1918. The volume of advertising in May, 1,669,932 lines, is greater than any other New York newspaper and is exclusive of many thousands of lines of a questionable or doubtful character refused by The New York Times.

A total of 7,064,487 agate lines of advertising was published by The New York Times in five months of this year. The gain over the corresponding period of 1918 was 1,535,457 agate lines, a greater gain than The Times recorded for the entire year of 1918 over 1917.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Yesterday's real estate market was unusually quiet, few sales being recorded, and most of those were small ones. The largest deal of the day involved the Murray Hill and the Santa Anita, seven-story elevator apartment houses at the northwest corner of Thirty-fourth Street and Lexington Avenue, the former a double building, occupying a plot 95 by 117.6, and the latter a plot 46 by 117.6, which were sold by Henry E. Jones of Paris, France, to the 210 West Fifty-sixth Street Company, Irving I. Lewine, President. The properties were held at $280,000 and are said to have been sold for a price close to that figure, through William S. Baker and David C. Cornell. They are removed by one building from the 71st Regiment Armory and are among the first elevator houses erected in the Murray Hill district, and have been owned by the seller since 1890. The new owners bought with the view of making structural changes, but nothing will be done until the expiration of leases, about a year hence.

Colonnade Row for Restaurant.

Joseph Conte purchased through Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company 434 Lafayette Street as an annex to his restaurant in 432. The property is part of the famous Colonnade Row, opposite the former Astor Library, and at one time was the residence of Jay Gould. Colonnade Row, also known as La Grange Terrace, was built in 1838. President Tyler lived in 432, and Bryant, Dickens, Thackeray, and Washington Irving figured in the society of the Row, which in civil war days was the "official" reviewing stand of the soldiers off to war and upon their return.

Brown Buys the Fortress.

Frederick Brown bought the Fortress, a six-story elevator apartment house, 77.6 by 111, held at $225,000 and renting for about $32,000, at 235 Fort Washington Avenue, northwest corner of 169th Street, from the Tindall Realty Company, F. M. Dyer, President. J. C. Gough & Co. were the brokers.

Uptown Apartment Sales.

M. M. Smith bought the six-story elevator apartment house at 507 and 509 West 124th Street from Margaret Bray through Sidney B. Hickox.

Samuel Greenhouse has sold to Hyman Yarmovsky 202 and 204 West 146th Street, a six-story apartment house, 46 by 99.11, for $37,750.

Frederick Brown resold through Slawson & Hobbs to William B. Knapp, 414 Riverside Drive, near 114th Street, a five-story bachelor apartment house, on lot 25 by 118 by irregular, held at $75,000. The seller recently acquired the property in exchange for 428 and 432 West 204th Street from Leopold Weiss.

Private Dwellings.

E. H. Lowerre sold the three-story dwelling, 20 by 100, at 123 West 119th Street, to a client of Porter & Co. for occupancy.

Florence Castile bought the three-story and basement brownstone dwelling at 148 West 136th Street through Nail & Parker. The same brokers sold a three-story brick dwelling at 312 West 138th Street for a Mrs. Drummond.

Frederick Brown sold to Morris Mechner 162 Edgecombe Avenue, a three-story dwelling, 17 by 80.

Mrs. Emma Lehrburger sold 137 East Sixty-third Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, 20 by 100, to Mrs. F. R. Childs, who will have the house remodeled for her own occupancy. Douglas Gibbons & Co., Inc., were the brokers. The same firm sold for Joseph J. Keenan 242 East Sixty-second Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, 16 by 100, to a client who will alter and occupy.

Fifty-fourth Street Sale.

The estate of Seaman Lichtenstein sold the five-story and basement building, on a plot 50 by 100.5, at 138 and 140 West Fifty-fourth Street, through Charles B. Van Valen, Inc.

Tenement Deals.

Pauline Meyers sold the four-story brick tenement building, with two stores, on lot 25 by 75, held at $12,000, at 1126 Second Avenue, to George A. Bruno, through David D. Weinberger & Co. Gerson C. Young represented the purchaser as attorney.

Archibald Henry MacDonald Sinclair sold a five-story double flat, 20 by 100, at 18 West 104th Street, to an investing client of Robert A. Martin through Oscar D. and Herbert V. Dike.

Lowenfeld & Prager sold two five-story double flats at 302 and 304 West 138th Street, to a client of Freidus & Co.

Electus T. Backus of the Guardian John R. Davidson sold for Robert Fulton the five-story flat, on plot 25 by 100, at 62 West 100th Street, to a client for investment. It was held at $22,000.

Hobling Company resold for Sarah P. McCoun the five-story tenement, on a plot 36 by 100, at 375 Manhattan Avenue, held at $40,000.

James H. Cruikshank purchased from Milton M. Silverman 8 East 110th Street, a five-story single flat, on plot 18.6 by 100, assessed by the city at $18,500. B. Harris was the broker.

The Bronx Market.

Marianna Dowe sold the four-story brick flat on lot 25 by 90, at 1,634 Bathgate Avenue, through Richard Dickson.

Dr. R. Joyce sold the one-family dwelling at 1,893 Washington Avenue to George Robinson through R. Rasmussen. The same broker sold the one-family dwelling at 4,082 Park Avenue for C. Weissmann to Louis Silverberg.

F. A. Holly sold to the Ararat Realty Corporation the property, 30 by 75, at 886 Rogers Place. Negotiations are pending for its resale.

The Single Realty Company bought the block front on the south side of Burnside Avenue, from Grand Avenue to Harrison Avenue, consisting of about eight lots held at approximately $36,000; and also the southwest corner of Burnside and Harrison Avenues, a plot of three and one-half lots held at $8,000. The property was included in the holdings of the Jerome Avenue Realty Company, and the deal was negotiated by Charles M. Rosenthal.

Heller & Sussman, operators, sold 775 East 185th Street, 40 by 100, to an investor for $45,000.

The Benenson Realty Company has sold to G. Posner for occupancy the three-story commercial building on a plot 100 by 106 at 458 to 462 Austin Place, 172 feet north of 144th Street.

The Reich Building Corporation, Jacob Reich, President, sold to B. Posner, 1,056 and 1,060 Bryant Avenue, southeast corner of 165th Street, two five-story apartment buildings, on a plot 110 by 100; also 881 and 885 Westchester Avenue, two five-story apartment houses, each on a plot 42 by 100. The combined properties return $36,000 in rents and were held at $275,000. J. Rubin and Leitner, Brener & Starr were the brokers.

Eugene L. Larkin sold for the McGill Real Estate Company, Inc., the private dwelling and garage at 3,486 Cannon Place, near 238th Street. The buyer will occupy.

The five-story apartment house, on a plot 50 by 130, at 2,486 Valentine Avenue, held at $75,000, has been sold by Christian Young. This property was reported to have been taken under contract by Max Natanson last March, but the transaction was never completed. The new owner is an investor.

The estate of Lambert S. Quackinbush sold the three-family brick house, 25 by 101, held at $15,000, at 1,056 Grant Avenue, to an investing client of Nathan Schwartz.

Brooklyn.

Francis A. O'Neal sold the three-story and cellar brick one-family house on lot 20 by 112, at 311 Eastern Parkway, to an investing client of the Bulkley & Horton Company.

The Artee Realty Corporation sold a plot of ground at Forty-ninth Street and Eighteenth Avenue to Oscar Sherman, who has filed plans for the erection of thirty one-family detached dwellings. Realty Trust negotiated the sale.

Realty Associates sold three three-story frame flats, 25 by 100 each, at 143 to 147 Twelfth Street, to Albertina Krenski through Mrs. T. Rosenburg, broker. The same organization sold a four-story brick store and flat building, 20 by 100, at 166 Sutter Avenue, to Benjamin Cohen, and a four-story brick dwelling, 18.8 by 72.6, to Sallie Hirsch.

Edward Hungerford sold a two-story and basement brick dwelling at 171 Woodruff Avenue to Charles F. Erleman through Howard C. Pyle & Co.

Queens Borough Sales.

Badgley & Brewster sold for George W. Hodgers his residence at Brightwaters to Charles W. Ross.

State Land Board to Visit Bronx.

The Standing Committee of the State Land Board, consisting of Attorney General Charles D. Newton, Treasurer James L. Wells, and State Engineer and Surveyor Frank M. Williams, will hold public hearings this morning at 10 o'clock at the New York City offices of the Attorney General, 51 Chambers Street.

After the public hearings the committee will proceed to the Bronx and make a special examination of several parcels of land owned by the State of New York on Brook Avenue, Tiebout Avenue, White Plains Avenue, Bronxwood Avenue, Olinville Avenue, Old Williamsbridge Road, and land under the waters of East Chester Bay, near Pelham Bridge.

On their journey to the properties the members of the committee will make an inspection of the Harlem River Barge Canal Terminal, at Exterior and East 138th Streets, and the Harlem River Improvement.

The committee will then proceed to Clason Point and cross Long Island Sound and examine land under water in Powell's Cove, in the Borough of Queens.

MONEY-MAKING SALESMANSHIP.
Experienced stock salesmen and men who understand the technicalities of securities but have not sold stock, are wanted to sell an offering—placed direct by an established, dividend-paying manufacturing company—to the public or private investor. This is not the cut-and-dried or get-rich-quick brand of stock selling, but the attractions that make stock selling easy and profitable to the salesman are here in fine combination. We pay a liberal commission. We help the salesman. Any man who is accustomed to hearing other stock selling propositions described without discovering the unusual feature which he seeks to make him want to handle them will find not only one, but a number of compelling sales magnets in our offering. Don't jump at conclusions. Don't form any opinions without the facts before you. If you want to identify yourself with a success and make money your job is here. Call immediately. Ask for Sales Manager, Room 46, 25 West Broadway, corner Park Place.

Education Notes.

The Board of Superintendents yesterday nominated Ernest L. Crandall for Supervisor of Lectures, and recommended that the salary for the office be made $6,000 a year. The position has been vacant since Dec. 1, 1917, when Dr. Henry M. Leipziger died. His salary was $6,500 a year. Mr. Crandall was graduated from Williams College and was a teacher in it. He was admitted to the bar. He taught in the Boys' High School, Brooklyn, and was then appointed first assistant in modern languages in the Washington Irving High School, a position he now holds. He has been Principal of the Harlem Evening High School and of the Eastern District High School, Brooklyn. He has been President of the Male High School Teachers' Association and of the Evening High School Teachers' Association. He is President of the New York City Federation of Teachers Association and had much to do with the passage of the new State-wide salary bill for teachers.

Associate Superintendent McAndrews of the sub-committee on drama and pageants has asked a number of leading citizens to go to the auditorium of Public School 59, Manhattan, Fifty-seventh Street, between Second and Third Avenues, at 4 P. M. tomorrow to suggest various ways for the schools to prepare for a peace and democracy celebration next Fall.

The Committee on Teachers' Salaries under the new law will get to work at once in arranging the different schedules. President Prall has withdrawn from the committee and Frank D. Wilsey has been appointed Chairman in his place. The other members are Arthur S. Somers and Joseph Yeska.

The Board of Education has decided to establish Summer classes for handicapped children in day camps.

The City Superintendent has been authorized to continue the sessions of selected classes in English and citizenship and in general improvement during July and August.

The services of Lena Lefkowitz, license No. 1, will be discontinued, her license not having been renewed by the City Superintendent.

The Teachers' Interests Organization has sent letters to Governor Smith, Senator Lockwood, Speaker Sweet, Dr. Finegan, Assemblyman Fertig, and to the Senate and Assembly thanking them for their efforts in behalf of the State-wide Teachers' Salary bill.

The Board of Education will hold a meeting tomorrow.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Pressure is generally low over the Central and West portions of the country, with a well-defined depression over Southern Minnesota. There were showers in the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys, the Gulf and South Atlantic States, but no other precipitation of consequence. Temperatures were somewhat lower in the Ohio Valley and higher in the lower lake region, the Middle Atlantic States, and New England. Elsewhere they remain high and abnormally so in the extreme Northwest.

There will be local thunder showers Tuesday and Wednesday in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States, Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, and the upper lake region, extending Wednesday and Wednesday night through the lower lake region into the Middle Atlantic States. In New England fair weather will prevail Tuesday and Wednesday. Temperatures will average higher.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday: North Atlantic, moderate southwest winds, becoming variable Wednesday, fair; Middle Atlantic, moderate southwest to south winds, fair weather; South Atlantic, moderate winds, mostly southeast, with showers, except east off South Florida Coast, with partly cloudy weather; East Gulf, gentle to moderate south winds, fair south, local showers north portion.

FORECASTS TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Tuesday, warmer west portion. Wednesday partly cloudy, probably showers west portion.

Southern New England—Fair Tuesday, warmer on the mainland. Wednesday partly cloudy.

Northern New England—Fair Tuesday, warmer interior. Wednesday fair.

New Jersey and Delaware—Fair Tuesday, warmer interior. Wednesday partly cloudy.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, somewhat warmer Tuesday; showers Wednesday or Wednesday night.

Western New York—Partly cloudy Tuesday, warmer. Wednesday showers.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

Estates Appraised.

ASHLEY, JESSIE. (Jan. 20, 1919.) Total estate, $65,287; real estate, $460; cash, $1,451; personal, $3,100; stocks and bonds, $60,245. The entire estate goes to her sister, Anita C. Ashley of 103 Waverley Place.

MILLER, ANDREAS M., who helped build up the City of Duluth, Minn., died in his apartment at the Hotel Savoy, (May 23, 1917.) The total estate was $1,750. The report of Charles Sweeney, Transfer Tax Appraiser, shows that several years before his death Mr. Miller had created several deeds of trust aggregating $1,559,889, which sum is also taxable in the State of New York. After explaining in his will that he leaves nothing to his wife, Annie E. Miller, or his granddaughter, child of his deceased son, Athol M. Miller, because he had already amply provided for them, the decedent leaves his entire net estate of $77,905 to his daughter, Mrs. Maren L. Fellowes of 27 Fifth Avenue. The following relatives and the City of Duluth, Minn., benefit under the deeds of trust as follows: Mrs. Maren L. Fellowes, life estate in $654,900; his daughter-in-law, widow of his son, Mrs. Helen S. Miller-Ames of Duluth, life estate in $159,464; his daughter, Athelene M. Miller, who lives with her mother, Mrs. Ames, life estate in $159,444, and the City of Duluth, for charitable purposes, $587,000.

Ideal Vacation

2000 MILES 8 Days on the Water — $68.52 and up—according to stateroom selected — All Expenses Included On Steamers

Don't miss this most unusual, exhilarating and economical 8 to 11 Day Trip

From New York every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday

The trip includes 1650 mile cruise along the Atlantic Coast, permitting shore visits at Charleston—famous homes of old Southern Aristocracy, Cathedrals, Forts Moultrie and Sumter of Confederate fame, Navy Yard, etc. At Jacksonville—Metropolis and Gateway to enchanted land of Ponce de Leon, Ostrich farm, curio shops, sightseeing trolley and automobile trips, beaches, etc. Also 400 miles of luxuriant scenery by daylight and searchlight.

On the Beautiful St. Johns The American Nile

The most fascinating and interesting inland water trip in America, with glimpses of alligators, tropical birds, marvelous water foliage and quaint native settlements. Every convenience and comfort in ocean travel: social halls, music room; open air shelter, sun parlor, wide promenade decks; incomparable dining service with party tables for two, four or eight persons, meals being served during hours at passenger's convenience. Drawing Room accommodations, consisting of large bedrooms with twin beds and private bath; Rooms with double bed and private bath; Rooms en suite or singly, without bath, but with private lavatory; may be obtained at moderate additional cost or you may select a more modestly appointed—but none the less comfortable—stateroom or berth without additional room charge.

EXPENSES

The eight day trip can be made on certain steamers without necessity of stopping over at any point, for $68.52 including transportation, meals and minimum priced stateroom accommodations in both directions—although higher priced rooms are available if desired. On other steamers there is a stop-over of one to three days at Jacksonville—dependent upon schedule, in which case shore expenses are to be borne by the passenger; but in any event, cost of the entire trip of from eight to eleven days may be kept well within $100 per person. All fares are subject to 8 per cent. war tax.

OF ACCUSED WOMEN

District Attorney Says He Will Name a Woman Assistant to Conduct Prosecutions.

RESULT OF INVESTIGATION

Nine Convictions Before Magistrates Reversed by Higher Courts Since Jan. 1.

As a result of his investigation into the conviction before Magistrate Francis X. Mancuso of two young women accused of flirting, District Attorney Swann announced last night that if he would committed perjury at their trial he would present the case to the Grand Jury. He said he was handling the investigation personally.

Mr. Swann also said he intended at the first opportunity to appoint a woman Assistant District Attorney to handle cases in the Women's Court. Pending this appointment, he has assigned Deputy Assistant District Attorney Maurice A. Lynch to the Women's Court. In a statement, he said:

"Mr. Lynch will interview witnesses in advance of the trial, so as to have the evidence properly presented before the Magistrate, and so that only legal evidence will be offered. He will aid the Magistrate in procuring additional witnesses whenever they are available. He will see that the women defendants have every opportunity to present the evidence for the defence.

"If I can find a good woman lawyer, I will send her up there. Mr. Lynch can break her in to the work. She will then remain to look after the work in the Women's Court, and Mr. Lynch will return to his own court."

Records in the office of the Clerk of General Sessions show that since Jan. 1 no fewer than nine cases of women convicted by City Magistrates have been reversed by the General Sessions Judges, and there are now pending six appeals from convictions. Last year, twelve convictions were reversed. The nine cases of this year were:

Helen Rogers, arrested by Detective Michael J. Kelly of the Central Office Squad, in a room at 101 West Eighty-fourth Street, Jan. 18; tried before Magistrate Moses H. Grossman; convicted, sentenced to one day in the workhouse. Attorney I. T. Flato, 261 Broadway, appealed. Judge Rosalsky reversed the conviction April 27 and discharged the young woman.

Elsie Rogers, 32 Division Street, arrested by Detective Edward Donohue of the Fourth Inspection District, Jan. 23; convicted by Magistrate Francis X. Mancuso March 21, sentenced to the House of the Good Shepherd; appealed by Attorney J. D. C. Murray, 130 Sixth Avenue; reversed and discharged by Judge James T. Malone April 16.

Vivian Styles, 8 West 105d Street, and Dolly Murray, 128 West Ninetieth Street, arrested by Detective Joseph Maloney of the Fourth Inspection District, Jan. 13; convicted by Magistrate W. [illegible]; Miss Murray sentenced to Inwood House and Miss Styles to the House of the Good Shepherd; appealed by Attorney Louis Spiegel, 346 Broadway. Judge Rosalsky reversed judgment and discharged Miss Styles. Judge Malone reversed judgment and discharged Miss Murray.

Rose Winters, 19 Ludlow Street, arrested by Detective Bernard Goldman of the Vice Squad Dec. 10; convicted same day by Magistrate William A. Sweetser, sentenced to six months in the workhouse; appealed by Attorney Charles Hecht, 110 West Fortieth Street; reversed and discharged by Judge John F. McIntyre Jan. 9.

Grace Graham, 243 West Forty-third Street, arrested by Headquarters Detective Arthur T. Stephen, Jan. 16; convicted by Magistrate Cobb, Jan. 18; sentenced to Inwood House appealed by Attorney William H. Hatfield, 220 Broadway; reversed and discharged, March 10 by Judge Thomas C. T. Crane.

Fanny Rice, 2,852 Kelly Street, arrested by Detective James G. Williamson, of the Third Inspection District, Nov. 25, 1918; convicted by Magistrate Maran Dec. 10, 1918; sentenced to workhouse for an indefinite term; appealed by Attorney James Murray, 113 Sixth Avenue; reversed and discharged by Judge McIntyre Jan. 10. Judge McIntyre, in an opinion, said the detective did not produce the m n Mrs. Rice was alleged to have stopped, and that his charge against her was based on a mere assumption on his part. The woman has a record of five convictions against her. She says her husband is blind and she had a child five months old.

Rosie Goldberg, arrested Nov. 27, 1918, by Detective Christopher W. Confrey of the Third Inspection District; convicted by Magistrate Marsh Dec. 13, 1918, and sentenced to workhouse; appealed by Attorney Alexander Lang, 77 Nassau Street; reversed and discharged by Judge McIntyre Jan. 31, "on the facts." She had a record of fifteen convictions.

Carrie Nieman, 10 West Sixty-fifth Street, arrested by Detective Edward F. Donohue of the Fourth Inspection District Feb. 6; convicted by Magistrate Marsh Feb. 7; sentence suspended; appeal made by Attorney Nathan W. Chadsey; court reversed judgment, but directed that Mrs. Nieman stand trial by jury. Her husband is a policeman, and it was contended that a fellow-policeman attempted to "frame up" a case against her. She was acquitted.

Sallie Cohn, 214 Henry Street, and Lillian Kahn, South Second Street, Brooklyn; arrested March 5 by Detective Gunson; convicted by Magistrate Mancuso; probation for six months; reversed and discharged June 17 on recommendation of District Attorney.

Judge John F. McIntyre of General Sessions who on July 7 is to charge the Grand Jury which, it is expected, will be asked to investigate convictions in Magistrates' Courts, yesterday received the following anonymous letter:

Judge McIntyre: I understand from the press you are to charge the Grand Jury with reference to the Vice Squad doings. Do you know that within a few minutes after unfortunate women are taken to the Thirtieth Street Police Station lawyers appear with same bondsmen? A deal is very often made whereby for from $100 to $500 is obtained from them or their friends for a guaranteed discharge in the Female Court.

Why do those with money get out? Does the detective's memory lapse after talking with a lawyer? I know of a friend who was fleeced, and know if the money was not produced a term in the workhouse would have followed. Records of the court would show detective and lawyer in cases. Hoping you will give this matter your worthy consideration, I am,

FRIEND OF A VICTIM.

Judge McIntyre said he would give the letter to District Attorney Swann. The letter is written on stationery of a hotel in Miami, Fla. It is dated June 21, 1919, and was mailed, apparently, in this city.

What might explain the anxiety to obtain a conviction felt by some recent appointees among the patrolmen assigned to vice work became known yesterday from a source of unquestioned authority. The informant said that if a plain-clothes man fails to obtain conviction when he has arrested a woman for improper behavior he must obtain a copy of the affidavit he made in the Women's Court and of the charge he made in the police station at the time of the arrest. He then is put "on the carpet" before his commanding officer.

GAVE TRIBUNE FACTS

Correspondent Who Supplied Information for Editorial Testifies in Libel Suit.

PUBLISHED DENIAL LATER

Asserts That Four Days After Story Appeared Ford Told of Plans for Guardsmen.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., June 23.—P. W. Williams, the Detroit newspaper correspondent who wrote the "Flivver Patriotism" dispatch which caused The Chicago Tribune three years ago today to publish the editorial calling Henry Ford an anarchist, took the stand today.

Williams testified that following the President's call to mobilize the National Guard he received a dispatch from The Tribune asking him to get definite statements from Henry Ford or his official mouthpiece on how many guardsmen were Ford employes, whether their jobs would be held for them, if their wages would be paid while gone, if their families would be provided for, and what Mr. Ford's attitude was toward the military activities.

He quoted Mr. Klingensmith as saying he did not know how many guardsmen Ford employed, and would not tell if he knew, and that the company would not pay wages or make special provisions for the families, as the men were regarded as having resigned to take other employment.

Williams's original dispatch was produced. It bore a pencil notation which Williams said he telephoned afterward.

Four days later Williams said he sent a dispatch taken from an afternoon paper quoting Henry Ford personally as saying the guardsmen would be treated like any other employes absent unavoidably and denying The Tribune story. This later story as published stated that it was Ford's first expression, previous statements having been from an "unofficial mouthpiece." Williams denied writing this part, saying he never had considered Klingensmith as such.

Williams said that several months later he interviewed Klingensmith and that the latter accused him of misquoting him. Williams said he denied doing so. Since then he said he had several times gone to Klingensmith for information and had no trouble in getting it.

Herbert Brand, Chicago Tribune reporter, who was assigned to interview employers as to provisions for guardsmen employes going to the border in 1916, was recalled for cross-examination by William Locking. He was asked if it was not true that out of hundreds of firms called on the telephone only twenty agreed to pay the wages of their employes while away. He said the

When the World Starts to Dress

These are the facts:

In this country right now, there is an alarming scarcity of woolens. Mills are months behind on deliveries.

In many countries there is practically no clothing at all. Foreign looms have been idle for years.

As soon as peace conditions return, the world will turn to America for clothes—willing to pay any price. America's already depleted stock of fabrics and clothing will not meet this demand.

Literally, it is going to be difficult to buy good all-wool clothes in this country. It is just ordinary common sense to buy clothing now.

Our assortments of Hart Schaffner & Marx Good All-wool Clothes are still complete.

These suits emphasize our value-giving policy whether you pay $30 or $65 for your selection. Opportunities abound at $45, $50, and $55.

There's a Film On Your Teeth—Remove It

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

—not your teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. The teeth have no enemy which compares with that film.

This film is not ended by the old ways of tooth brushing. The ordinary tooth paste cannot dissolve it. The film clings and hardens in crevices and elsewhere. So millions find that, despite their brushing, teeth discolor and decay.

Dental science has now found a way to combat that film. The way is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Its results are quickly apparent. A ten-day test will be a revelation. We ask you to make it at our cost and see what clean teeth mean.

See the Result

That slimy film which you feel on your teeth is the cause of most tooth troubles. Brushing teeth can't save them if you leave that film. Millions of people have learned that.

This is to urge a new method. Combat that film for ten days. Then look at your teeth and judge for yourself if it pays.

That film is what discolors

A Delightful Test

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

Science has discovered a harmless way to activate this pepsin. The old way was an acid, harmful to the teeth. Now, for the first time, you can daily apply efficient, active pepsin to the teeth. Now you can clean them as you never could before.

Dental authorities have for years been proving Pepsodent. They have come to regard it as the supreme dentifrice. Leading dentists all over America are using and advising it.

The results are beyond any question. A pleasant test will prove them to you—some at once and all within a week. We ask you, for your own sake, to make that test—and now. Look at your teeth—see them glisten—judge for yourself what it does.

Let us send you a 10-Day Tube.

PEACE TREATY WILL BE SIGNED AT VERSAILLES FRIDAY; MUELLER IS LIKELY TO HEAD THE GERMAN DELEGATION; FRANCE WANTS REPARATION FOR THE SCUTTLED WARSHIPS

SEEK TO EXCLUDE PEACE LEAGUE FROM TREATY APPROVAL

Nations, Under Republican Plan, Must Indorse Reservations to Make Covenant Effective.

SURRENDER TO RADICALS

Borah-Johnson Group Insisted Qualifying Declaration Otherwise Would Be Futile.

TO PRESS FALL RESOLUTION

Democrats Will Fight Proposal to Declare Peace in Advance of Ratification.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Gradually, out of a whirl of developments, opponents of the League of Nations, it appeared today, are developing a policy to follow when the League covenant comes before the Senate as a part of the Peace Treaty, upon the President's return from Europe. While the two elements in the Republican ranks are not reconciled as to details, the general program, as far as worked out, will be:

1. To agree upon a qualifying resolution that will embrace reservations on matters contained in the covenant to which objection is raised, this resolution to follow approximately the line suggested by Elihu Root.

2. To embody in the qualifying resolution a clause that ratification of the Treaty of Peace by the Senate, so far as it applies to the League of Nations, shall not be effective, as to the United States, until the other nations signing the treaty shall have agreed to the reservations.

3. To press, in the meantime, the Fall resolution, declaring a status of peace to exist, so that the United States shall not nominally be at war with Germany and Austria-Hungary pending consideration by the Senate of the League covenant and the rest of the treaty.

This policy was discussed today among leaders of the conservative and radical wings of the Republican Party in the Senate. It was regarded as a compromise between the attitude of the Borah-Johnson element for direct amendment of the league covenant and the conservative group, led by Senator Lodge, which seeks a qualifying resolution that would express dissent from the features to which these Republicans object. The Borah-Johnson opponents of the covenant have maintained that a resolution of reservation would be merely negative and would pass back to the Peace Conference or the League of Nations Council for later determination any matters embraced in the Senate's dissent that might come up for dispute. They have argued that the council would be likely to reject the reservations, in which eventuality the United States would be bound to observe the terms of the covenant.

To Require Allied Acceptance.

To obviate the contingency suggested by the foes of the qualifying resolution, Senators Lodge, Knox, and other leaders among the conservatives have agreed to consider the insertion of a clause providing that the League covenant shall not be operative, as to the United States, until the reservations have been accepted by the allied signatories of the Peace Treaty.

The procedure under this plan would be for the Foreign Relations Committee to report a qualifying resolution embracing the reservations after the treaty of peace was before the Senate. No action would come before that time. The Senate expects to receive the treaty soon after July 1. Immediately after the Senate Committee reported the battle on the League covenant would begin on the Senate floor.

Senate leaders anticipate that the fight on the League covenant will consume at least six weeks, perhaps longer. Meanwhile, so that the United States would not be prevented from reopening commercial relations with Germany and Austria-Hungary, the Fall resolution would be pushed by Republicans. Under this resolution a state of peace would at once be declared by Congress to exist, regardless of ultimate ratification of the treaty of peace by the Senate.

Senator Fall wants immediate action upon his resolution. As a member of the Foreign Relations Committee he will ask the committee to take it up tomorrow and that a speedy report be made upon it. Administration Senators will oppose the resolution on the ground that it is the prerogative of the President to declare a status of peace to exist, through proclamation, after the treaty of peace has been ratified by the Senate. The Democratic Senators will endeavor to prevent any action being taken by the committee on the Fall measure, but if it is approved by the anti-League majority of the committee and is reported favorably they will fight it on the floor of the Senate. They will take the position that Dublin Denies Charges Made by Walsh and Dunne.

DUBLIN, June 24. (Associated Press.)—With reference to an allegation made by Messrs. Walsh and Dunne, representatives of American Irish societies, that the prosecution of Countess Markievics, Sinn Fein leader, was in retaliation for the Countess having given information to the delegates concerning brutalities against Irish women, an official denial of this charge was issued at Dublin Castle today.

The denial declares that the statement of the delegates is totally unfounded. It says the Countess Markievics was ordered prosecuted May 25, long before the first statement of the delegates was made.

REPORTS LOSS OF $300,000 IN GEMS

Mrs. Millhiser Says Jewels Were in Safety Box at the Biltmore.

VAULT GUARDED CLOSELY

Deputy Police Commissioner Lahey Declares Arrests Will Be Made Soon.

It became known only yesterday that on June 13 Mrs. Clarence Millhiser, widow of a manufacturer who died in Mount Sinai Hospital on May 20, reported to the management of the Hotel Biltmore and to the Police Department that jewels valued by her at between $250,000 and $300,000 had been taken from a safe deposit box in the hotel vault some time between the day her husband died and June 13. In carrying out their new policy of keeping from the public, as far as possible, all news of crime, the police advised Mrs. Millhiser to tell no one of her loss. The hotel management also urged this course, it was learned yesterday.

According to the story told by Mrs. Millhiser she placed her jewels in the safe deposit box at the hotel a few hours after her husband's death and did not return for them until she decided to move from the hotel to a Summer place at Deal Beach, N. J. She said she found then that some of them were missing, and although no list of the gems was available yesterday, it was learned that one of the pieces said by Mrs. Millhiser to have disappeared from the vault was a necklace of matched pearls valued at about $250,000. Other pieces reported missing were some diamond pendants and miscellaneous ornaments of other precious stones.

Lawyers who hired a private detective agency to make an investigation declared there was no evidence in the vault of any tampering with the safe deposit vaults, or with the box that had been in the possession of Mrs. Millhiser. The possibility that the box had been opened by some person who had contrived both a master key and a key to the individual box was discussed yesterday by private detectives. It was pointed out that this could have been done only by some person familiar with the lay-out of the hotel offices and of the habits of the six clerks and other employes who are on duty constantly in the hotel office at night.

In discussing the assertion of First Deputy Police Commissioner William A. Lahey that two arrests would be made soon, the managers of the hotel said they had no information to indicate that the suspected persons were members of the hotel staff. They refused to confirm a report that Mrs. Millhiser had been asked to obtain a warrant for two of the Biltmore employes.

It is estimated that at least 100 detectives, including those of the private agencies and hotel staffs, are working on the case, but a man in close touch with the search declared last night that some of the private detectives had informed him that it was the most mystifying case they had ever had. The detectives declared that not a single clue had been found and that the solution of the case depended largely upon suspicions and theories.

It was pointed out by detectives who have worked on jewel robberies for years that this was the largest theft reported since the jewels of Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, a daughter of Mrs. E. H. Harriman, were stolen from the Rumsey home at Narragansett Pier in July, 1913. Among the ornaments then taken was a matched pearl necklace valued at more than $50,000, with several other smaller gems, given by Mrs. Harriman to her daughter when she was married in 1910 to Charles Cary Rumsey, the sculptor. The necklace of more than 140 pearls and most of the other gems were recovered in this city a few months later.

All inquiries at the Biltmore yesterday about the circumstances of the report made by Mrs. Millhiser were referred to the counsel of John McE. Bowman, the law firm of Edwards, Murphy & Minton, at 26 Liberty Street. After a long conference with the detectives who have been investigating the case a brief, formal statement was given out by the lawyers. This is the statement:

On May 20 Mrs. Clarence Millhiser of Richmond, Va., who with her late husband

DEMAND THAT GERMANY PAY IN FULL FOR SHIPS

French Minister of Marine Says Both Armistice and Treaty Were Violated.

BIG THREE ORDER INQUIRY

Commission of Experts to Determine if Armistice Conditions Were Broken.

BRITISH BEACH 3 WARSHIPS

Expect to Salvage Many if Necessary Apparatus Arrives Before Bad Weather Sets In.

PARIS, June 24. (Associated Press.)—France has decided to require complete reparation from Germany for the sinking of the German warships at Scapa Flow. This announcement was made by M. Leygues, Minister of Marine, to the Naval Committee of the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon. He declared that the act of the Germans violated both the armistice and the Peace Treaty.

The Council of Three has referred the question relative to the sinking of the German fleet in Scapa Flow to a commission of experts, which will determine whether the armistice conditions were violated.

Viscount Gustave de Kerguesec, member of the Naval Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, told the Budget Committee of the Chamber yesterday that he had warned the French Ministry of Marine that the German fleet interned in Scapa Flow was not being watched with sufficient care.

Newspaper comment in some cases shows much bitterness over the acts of those whom the Figaro calls "a perjured race with no respect for their plighted word."

Some criticism is directed at the British Admiralty, the Journal saying: "No article in the armistice forbade the maintenance of British guards aboard the German ships."

L'Oeuvre says that the fate of the German ships was that proposed for them by the British Government.

"Germany," says the L'Action Francaise, "may one day, if we are not careful, scuttle the League of Nations as she scuttled the fleet. Premier Lloyd George and Sir Robert Cecil will be just as much responsible that day as are now the authorities at Scapa Flow."

It is likely that the whole subject will come up for discussion in Parliament.

LONDON, June 24.—Three of the German warships which their crews attempted to sink at Scapa Flow Saturday have been beached and the Baden is moored in readiness for beaching, it was announced officially today. There is every prospect of saving the ships in good condition if the necessary apparatus arrives before bad weather sets in. The ships beached are the cruisers Emden, Frankfurt, and Nurnberg.

Two destroyers are afloat and eighteen have been beached. It is added that there is no prospect of saving the other destroyers without elaborate operations.

PREDICT GERMAN OUTBREAKS.

More Surprises, It Is Said, Are to Follow Scapa Flow Incident.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, June 22, (via Berne.)—"That's not all. There will be more surprises soon."

This was the plain comment made today by one of the few Berlin political leaders not in attendance on the National Assembly at Weimar the moment he heard of the sinking of the German ships at Scapa Flow.

He explained immediately that his words should not be construed to mean that he had definite knowledge of similar enterprises in store for the Allies, but that no based his statement entirely on his belief that many symptoms indicated that further violence might be expected, probably much more startling than street riots. He expressed his confidence that they would last only a short time.

Listening to him, one gained the impression that he placed credence in the rumors that the old militarists of Prussia were preparing to defy both the German Government and the Allies after peace is signed. Hindenburg, commanding in the east, who sent a protest to Weimar against accepting the terms, might be considered as a possible leader of Prussia if that State declared its independence of the rest of Germany.

Another symptom in the situation was seen in the discussion whether the troops in Berlin would remain loyal to the present Government after it signed the treaty.

Some mystery attached to a secret meeting held last night by a large number of officers in Neubadelsburg, near Potsdam. The village where the officers gathered was surrounded by guards, who fired on all who attempted to approach. It is reported that the officers were dressed in the uniforms of enlisted men to avoid identification.

The old army officers are much dissatisfied with the present Government situation. They refer to the present Cabinet as "ersats," and say that while it is known as the Bauer Cabinet, it is really the Ersberger Cabinet. They contend that it will go out of existence as soon as its usefulness has been served by signing the Peace Treaty, and that then the National Assembly will have to dissolve because of lack of public confidence.

Importance is attached to a strike today of the employes of the postal money order office in Berlin, because it is feared that it will be followed by a strike of all postal and telegraph employes.

President Hopes to Sail from Brest Saturday Morning

PARIS, June 24. — Despite French demands for time it is understood that President Wilson hopes that the peace treaty will be signed on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

He will leave immediately for Brest, embarking for New York on Saturday morning.

Departure from Brest as late as Saturday morning would mean that the President's ship would have but six days to arrive on July 4. A recent dispatch from Brest said that the George Washington had taken on special coal with the expectation of having to make a speedy trip home.

WASHINGTON PLANS BIG PEACE FOURTH

Many Foreign Nations to be Represented in Parade and Symbolic Pageants.

WILSON AS CENTRAL FIGURE

Presence of Foch Hoped For —Project to Repeat Entire Spectacle in This City.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—A great international Fourth of July celebration to commemorate the return of peace will be held at the nation's capital, in which President Wilson will be the central figure, if his return from Europe is not delayed beyond that date. Representatives of many foreign nations will take an official part in the demonstration, and the hope has been expressed here that Marshal Foch will find it possible to come to the United States with President Wilson to participate. Marshal Foch has promised to come to America, but there is no definite information that he can accept the invitation at this time.

The celebration is being staged by the War Camp Community Service under the auspices of the Citizens' Committee, of which Commissioner Brownlow of the District of Columbia is Chairman. Among those who have promised to participate are diplomatic representatives of the foreign nations, the members of the United States Supreme Court, Cabinet officers, and members of Congress. There will be a great parade in which the foreign embassies will have elaborate floats.

Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, is at the head of the Arrangements Committee, General Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, will direct the parade, Lieut. Gen. Bullard, famous for the record he made in France, will be Grand Marshal, and Captain Roy R. Glenn of the British Embassy will assist him.

Parade of Troops and Floats.

The parade will be made up of eight or ten companies of infantry, and of floats representing the nations of the world and the various symbolic ideas which will enter into the celebration, interspersed with bands and singing organizations. It will swing up Pennsylvania Avenue for final review by the President, the Diplomatic Corps, the Justices of the Supreme Court, members of the Cabinet, and members of Congress. If Marshal Foch comes to America in time to participate, he too will be in the reviewing stand.

The parade will be preceded by a series of pageants arranged by Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest of the War Camp Community Service. This festival will begin at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, to avoid the intense heat of the middle of the day. The pageants will be presented at the various Government buildings and on the Ellipse. Approximately 15,000 persons will participate. The international character of the parade will apply to the pageantry as well.

The festival will be inaugurated with a fanfare of bugle calls, which will represent the bugle call to peace. This central idea, the celebration of peace, not of war, will be consistently carried through the entire program.

The first pageant will represent "The Call to the Service of Mankind," and will be shown in front of the Red Cross Building. The second pageant will be "The Call to Business, Commerce and Professions," and will be staged in front of the Pan-American Building. The third pageant will be, "The Call to Labor," with a parade around the Ellipse, in which the representatives of the crafts will march. The fourth pageant will be "The Call to Art." "The Call to the Land," representing agriculture, will be staged in front of the grounds of the Agricultural Department, and "The Call of the Colored Man to the Service of Country" will be staged at the south front of the National Museum.

Foreign countries have appropriated money to participate in the parade, which will represent the "World in

FOCH PLANNED GREAT DRIVE

Forces Were On Edge for a 60-Mile Advance Into Germany.

OUR MEN WERE IN TRUCKS

Changed Orders Brought Disappointment Over the Loss of New Adventure.

ALL EAGER TO COME HOME

Fifth Division Begins to Move Westward Today and the Fourth Will Follow.

COBLENZ, June 24.—The decision of the Germans to sign the Peace Treaty permits the revelation of the fact that the allied armies would have started forward at 7 o'clock last night. Orders had been issued to begin the movement into Germany at that hour and everything was in readiness.

The dash which would have begun then would have broken all records for rapid military advance. It would have been to a distance of sixty to 100 kilometers eastward all along the allied line.

On the American front 10,000 infantrymen of the 1st Division were to have started at 7 o'clock in Liberty trucks and gone in a rush to a line running through Marburg. Armored cars and cavalry were ready to protect them.

The 1st Division would have been followed by the 2d, with the 3d Division behind it.

The men of the 16th, 18th, 20th, and 28th Infantry, all of the 1st Division, were all packed into their trucks, each of which carried an extra gasoline tank, when orders came that the forward movement was off.

There was a general feeling of regret, the men thinking that they had been cheated out of a fine adventure.

Now that the war is really over, the minds of all the men in the American Army of Occupation have turned to the burning question, "When do we go home?"

The answer cannot be obtained here at this time, but it may be stated that no time will be lost in beginning the movement toward home.

The movement of the 5th Division begins tomorrow and the 4th Division will begin to move on Saturday. Seven trainloads daily will be scheduled under present plans.

Officers of the army here have no definite information as to when the 1st, 2d, and 3d Divisions will begin their westward journey. There have been many conflicting reports, but all wait on an announcement from Paris as to how many and what American troops, if any, will be kept on the Rhine.

Disappointed Because March Was Off.

June 22.—Sitting out on the front line and eating ice cream, the soldiers of the American Army of Occupation, with their backs to the Rhine and facing toward Berlin, spent today in bemoaning the turn of affairs which threatened to cheat them of the expected advance into Germany. Not that they were bloodthirsty men, these doughboys, (unlike the Germans, American soldiers are bloodthirsty only in the midst of battle,) but they had looked forward to an eastward march as a sort of glorified picnic tour, and having got that idea, whether true or false, and having spent the week preparing, they wished to see the thing through.

Upon the front line were the 1st Division and the 2d, with the 3d behind them, and they were ready to go. Their armored cars, their machine guns, their trusty field kitchens, their shiny 75s and 155s, with newly painted caissons, were all set. Cars were waiting on the railroad sidings, ready to get to the objectives just behind the doughboys.

The army newspaper, The Amexoc, gives the men the daily news of the latest developments, and every soldier knew today about the new German Cabinet and the apparent decision to sign the treaty.

This afternoon two camions of ice cream reached the men of the 16th, 18th, 28th, and 28th Infantry waiting on the jumping off line, and every one had refreshments from the big establishment newly taken over by the army.

Vaudeville entertainments were given right on the front line. Certainly this new war was going to be a novel kind if Foch gave word to go ahead.

But it must be admitted that some spice seemed to be gone out of the situation today. Two days ago the army appeared to be sitting on a volcano. Now the volcano seems to be all spent out.
